Milk Break At The Susquehanna County Courthouse

MONTROSE (Susquehanna Co.) — The Susquehanna County dairy princesses, ambassadors and dairy maids invited courthouse employees and passersby to take a break — a milk break.

On a summer day with temperatures near 90 degrees, dairy promoters wanted everyone to experience a refreshing glass of white or chocolate milk. Nearly 100 containers of milk were distributed.

The Susquehanna County Judge, commissioners and the chief clerk were among the guests that took time to visit the young promoters and enjoy a glass of cold milk.

After the milk break Darlene Page, the extension family living agent, did a food safety workshop for the dairy royalty, who also made their own serving of ice cream in a bag.

NEWVILLE (Cumberland Co.) — It's called a robot, but it doesn't look like one — at last not like the first picture that may come to mind of a mechanical gadget with head, arms, and legs in a roughly human form.

When it come to milking cows, however, it acts like a

AIRVILLE (York County) — Spend some time during next year's Farm Show in the Maine-Anjou area. Chances are you will meet York Countian Donald Walter, who has supplied the event with the last three champion females and several champion or reserve champion bulls . . . and shows no signs of letting up.

Noticing Maine-Anjou cattle "win show after show" more than 10 years ago, Walter de-

Agriculture Secretary Hayes Applauds State Budget

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes has given an "enthusiastic thumbs-up" to Gov. Tom Ridge's and the state legislature's continued commitment to the support of Pennsylvania's agriculture, as shown by the new state budget recently approved for the fiscal year that begins on July 1.

"This agriculture budget is excellent when considering the complex difficulties which were faced by Governor Ridge and our state lawmakers. While other states struggle, the new ag budget in Pennsylvania is an exceptionally good fiscal plan. As has been the case for the past few years, this new budget is good for agriculture and highlights the commitment and high level of support for agriculture from Gov. Ridge and our state lawmakers," Hayes said.

To firm up its national lead in farmland preservation and Gov. Ridge's "Growing Greener" initiative, $59.6-million is available beginning July 1. "Growing Greener" is Ridge's commitment to the environment and the preservation of open spaces.

Since 1989, Pennsylvania has spearheaded the preservation of 1,640 farms and 198,811 acres for future generations. Due to Pennsylvania's farmland preservation effort, the American

Eastern Region Frozen Eggs

ATLANTA, GA.
June 22, 2001
Report Supplied By USDA

Mostly prices were unchanged on sugar yolks and whites, unchanged to slightly higher on whole, but lower on salt yolks when compared to a week earlier. Supplies were usually adequate for current needs. Demand improved on whole with overall movement generally reported in a full range of light to good. Trade sentiment was steady, although traders continue to watch further market developments. Liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed under federal inspection in the Eastern region for the week ending June 16, 2001 were 2 % more than the previous week, but 13 % less than a year ago.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer

ATLANTA, GA.
June 27, 2001
Report Supplied By USDA

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds remained sufficient in keeping offerings in generally good balance. Buyers were noted as cautiously optomistic, but additional interest was usually limited to standing committments. Live supplies were at least moderate; weights were light to heavy, mostly desirable to heavy. Processing schedules were moderate to moderately heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 56 to 70 cents. Trade sentiment was mostly steady. In the parts complex, breast cuts were adequate to tight and in the closer balance on supplies of bone-in. Leg items were adequate. Wings were readily available.

NATIONAL TURKEY MARKET - At a glance, June 27:

DOMESTIC MARKET HIGHLIGHTS: Trade sentiment was at least steady on hens and consumer sized toms. Inquiry ranged light to instances fair on whole turkeys with improved interest starting to be noted for deferred shipments in some parts of the country. Trading slow. The market on bulk meat items was mostly steady with trading centered on fresh tom breast meat and fresh 15-20% mechanically separated turkey (MST). The thigh meat market continued to show signs of weakness and most sellers continued to be confident in the MST market. Bulk parts were generally steady with trading consisting mostly of light volumes.

EXPORT MARKET HIGHLIGHTS: Trading was active on frozen thigh meat at lower trending price levels and moderately light on tom drums at steady prices. Market activity was light on the balance of items. Some sellers have noted a less aggressive buyer interest from Mexico while they wait for new permits to be released.

Northeast Broiler Fryer Parts Part I

ATLANTA, GA.
June 27, 2001
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying interest was mostly moderate and noted as typical of midweek activity, however, many dealers were working from fully sufficient floorstocks in anticipation of approaching holiday movement. Offerings of bone-in breasts were in good balance, and boneless-skinless breasts were clearing well. Legs and leg quarters were at least adequate. Wings remained readily available. Movement through retail and distributive channels was moderate, and was best where feature activity was a factor.

The market tone was fully steady to instances firm on breast items, about steady on dark meat cuts, no better than steady on wings.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
June 27, 2001
Report Supplied By USDA

Daily National Grain Market Summary

Wheat bids finished around steady; corn and soybean bids moved higher. Traders await Friday's acreage and quarterly stocks reports. Light overnight sales of corn was also supportive. Good weather and harvest progress is still a negative factor for bids. Most gains were due to carryover strength from yesterday's strong close Wheat mostly steady. Corn steady to 4 cents higher. Sorghum 5 cents higher. Soybeans 4 to 5 cents higher.

Wheat bids held near steady as harvest pressure and slow export interest kept a lid on advances. Continued strong corn and bean trade added some firmness to wheat bids. Export sales have been slow this week.

Corn and soybean bids showed a strong finish today. An increase in the U.S. Crush report figure supported bids. May was reported at 132.6 million with meal stocks at 287 thousand tons. A few export orders were announced for corn.

COMPOSTCAT™
HIGH-RISE LAYER HOUSE COMPOST SYSTEM

The composting process eliminates methane gas and hydrogen sulfide odors while converting manure in a pathogen-free, weed seed-free organic product that will never revert to raw manure.

The end product is a stable organic material which has retained most of its nutrients and is no longer a breeding source for flies, beetles or other insects.

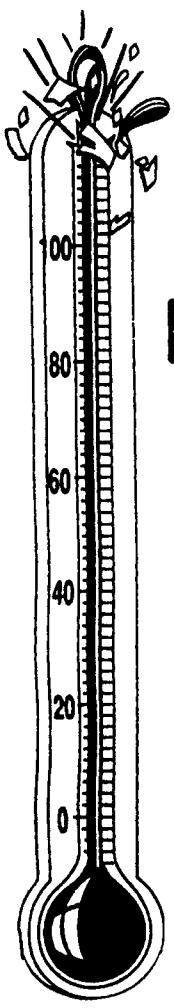
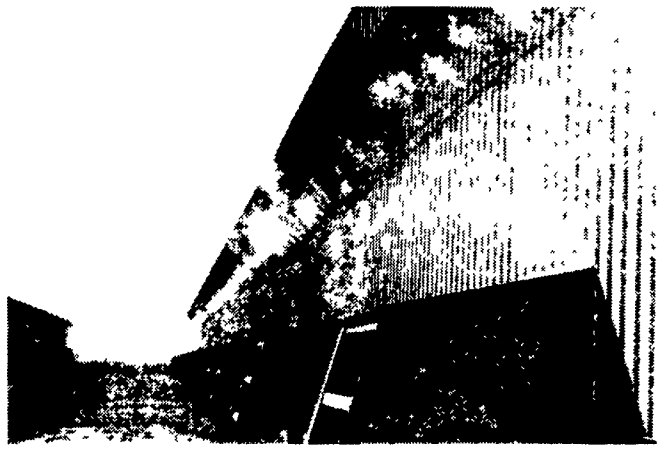
BEAT THE HEAT WITH . . .

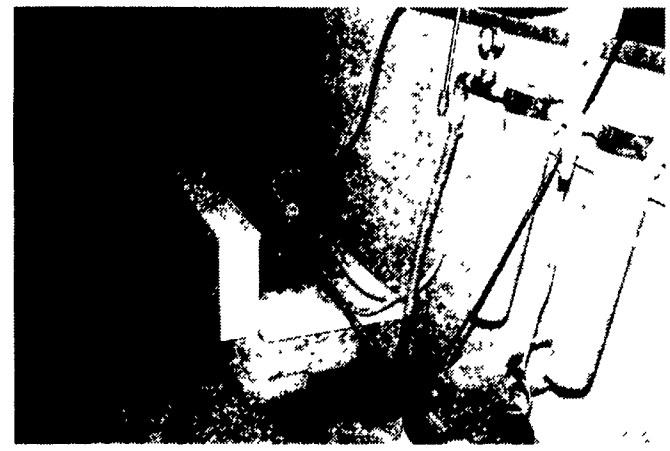
VAL WATERING SYSTEMS / POLAIR HIGH PRESSURE

FOG/COOLING SYSTEM





All stainless steel pipes and nozzles are located to spray 1000-psi mist into inlet air stream for evaporative cooling (up to 10-degree lower temperature) lines are sloped for complete drainage during off cycles and winter months.



High pressure pump is controlled by temperature and humidity levels. Water is filtered and injected to prevent calcium build ups in lines and nozzles.

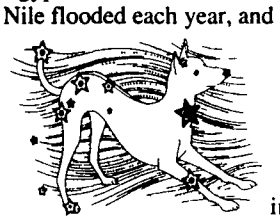
The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

JULY 2–8, 2001

FULL THUNDER MOON, JULY 5

EVERY DOG WILL HAVE HIS . . .

July 3 marks the beginning of the Dog Days of summer, which are named for the Dog Star, Sirius, and are associated with hot, steamy weather. The ancient Egyptians noticed that Sirius appeared just before the Nile flooded each year, and they used it as a "watchdog" to warn them of this event. The Romans believed that Sirius, the sky's brightest star, added heat to Earth. Many people say that during the Dog Days, flies increase in number, snakes go blind, dogs go mad, and rain is scarce.



If the Dog Days be clear, 'twill be fair all year.

TIP OF THE WEEK

COLD RHUBARB SOUP

1-1/2 pounds trimmed rhubarb
3/4 cup sugar
2 cups water
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
salt and pepper, to taste
8 ounces mascarpone (or sour cream)

Trim, wash, and pat rhubarb dry. Dice into ½-inch cubes. Add sugar to water, bring to a boil, then add rhubarb. Return to a boil, then simmer for about 10 minutes. Add vanilla, salt, and pepper. Taste for sweetness and add more sugar if desired. Cool, then refrigerate. When thoroughly chilled, garnish with an egg-size scoop of mascarpone or sour cream.

Makes 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If owls scream in foul weather, it will change to fair.

When dogs refuse meat, rain follows.

ATTENTION, GARDENERS!

The summer 2001 Gardener's Companion is now on sale You can buy it at supermarkets, bookstores, or garden centers. Or send $3 99 to The Old Farmer's Almanac, Dept. GCSU, P.O. Box 520, Dublin, NH 03444.

OPINION

Gorillas Vs. Man

Editor's Note: The following editorial was written by William Troxell, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association (PVGA), and appeared in the association's May 2001 newsletter.

I was recently handed a copy of an article from the Tribune Media Services, Inc. entitled "Eco-groups pushing organic food twist facts about modern farming." The article quotes the text on an EnviroKidz Organic Gorilla Munch cereal box. The cereal box tells children that people are "the only natural enemy gorillas have" and that "the most serious threat to free-living gorillas is the explosion of our human population." Agriculture and logging are implicated as the major threats to gorilla habitat.

The cereal box goes on to say, "EnviroKidz chooz (sic) organic food. Organic agriculture respects the land and the wild creatures who live on it." It ends by saying, "So, if you want the kind of planet where biodiversity is protected and human beings tread more softly upon the Earth, then chooz certified organic cereals from EnviroKidz. Wouldn't it be nice if all the food we ate was certified organic?" (Emphasis in original).

The article goes on to refute organic claims that organically produced foods taste better, are more nutritional, and better for the environment. The article cites blind taste tests that show people cannot tell the difference in taste between organically and conventionally grown food unless they know which is which. It also cites researchers who reluctantly admit they really cannot find significant nutritional differences between organically and conventionally produced foods.

As for claims that there are 110,000 cases of acute pesticide poisoning each year, the article cites the National Poison Control as reporting that these cases are instances where people, usually children, have eaten pesticides directly — oftentimes ones found in the home like rat poison. They are not cases of poisoning that occurred because of pesticide residues on food. It contends that pesticide residues actually on food have not been found to pose a health threat.

The article finally refutes the claim that producing all the world's food organically would provide more habitat for gorillas. It cites the Center for Global Food Issues that estimates that 10 million square miles of wildlands would have to be cleared for farmland if all food was grown organically.

Unfortunately, debates about organic versus conventional agricultural practices often become more ideological than reasonable, more rhetorical than factual, more emotional than scientific. Oftentimes I suspect the real truth lies somewhere between the two sides of the debate.

It was reported at a recent PVGA board of directors' meeting that an organic speaker at the convention made a statement to the effect that they did not apply pesticides because they did not want to poison their workers — the implication being that any grower who applies pesticides is willingly poisoning his workers. I doubt that sentiment is shared by all organic growers and I am sure that no grower has any intention of poisoning his workers.

While most PVGA members use conventional growing practices, our editorial policy for the newsletter is to be respectful of both sides of this question, since we also have PVGA members who utilize organic or sustainable growing practices.

While I personally question the feasibility of all food being grown organically (I have no valid estimates of how much more land it takes although I expect it would indeed take more land and more farm workers), I also believe we must pay attention to the environmental impact of conventional methods. Few people would now argue than banning DDT was a mistake. Moreover, the routine presence of certain pesticides (I believe atrazine is one of the major ones) in wells in major agricultural regions should be of concern. Can any farmer reasonably argue that increasing the organic matter content of a soil is not a benefit to the health of the soil and crops?

Good farmers for hundreds of years have recognized that good stewardship of their land requires them to put back into their ground what they take out. We need to recognize that the Creator has made our earth with an intricate system of organisms that benefit each other as well as hold each other in balance. While any type of agriculture disrupts the native ecosystem, we will do well to preserve what we can. However, it would be foolish to turn our backs on the technological ability that humans have been endowed with by abandoning the use of all pesticides and conventional farming methods that have provided us with such an abundant supply of food.

I hope PVGA can continue to serve growers of both persuasions and foster a degree of mutual respect. While I strongly believe in being good stewards of our environment, I also believe that if it comes to a choice between the gorillas and people, the Creator intended for people to take precedence.

To Renovate Strawberry Fields

Conventional strawberry fields can be productive for several years if one renovates them properly. Renovation should begin as soon as possible after harvest is finished.

The first step is to apply 2-4-D (Formula 40) for broadleaf control if necessary. Wait four to seven days for the weeds to absorb the herbicide. Then mow off the strawberries as close to the ground as possible without damaging the crowns.

Next narrow the rows to 6 to 12 inches wide with a rototiller or cultivator. Allow one inch of soil to cover the crowns. Fertilize with 40-50 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre and apply phosphorus and potash according to soil test requirements.

One should also apply herbicides for summer weed control as suggested in Penn State's Commercial Berry Production Pest Management Guide. This guide is available from your County Extension Office for $10 and has a wealth of information for the commercial berry producer.

Sinbar or Devrinol are two preemergent herbicides commonly used for summer weed control. Irrigate to incorporate the fertilizer and herbicide. Late in August the strawberries will form buds for next year's fruit crop. Fertilize again at this time with 20 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre.

To Pull Over When Using A Cell Phone While Driving

The cell phone has become a very useful tool on the farm as it has for urban folks. Most people understand that drinking alcohol before driving is a very foolish and dangerous action since it seriously increases your risk of an accident.

Many people however are not as aware that using a cell phone while driving also greatly increases your chance for a serious collision. That has been documented by several studies, says John Shutske, Farm Safety and Health Specialist with the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

"The potential for a serious collision is four times greater when driving and using a cell phone," says Shutske. "That makes your risk nearly as high as driving with a blood alcohol level above the legal limit."

Farmers and others driving on rural roads are in just as much danger as urban drivers, Shutske points out. "Cell phones are becoming incredibly popular in nearly all areas, including rural America," he says.

"Several farmers have told me they simply could not get by without a wireless phone. It has become a routine part of their business for things such as ordering supplies, checking prices, coordinating work schedules, and keeping in touch with family during busy crunch seasons."

Avoid using a wireless phone any time you're driving, says Shutske. Most cell phone calls last five minutes or less. You're better off stopping in a safe location before you place your call.

If you feel you have to make a call while driving, Shutske recommends the following strategies to lessen the danger:

Program commonly called numbers into your phone. Having to dial seven or ten numbers can be extremely distracting and can lead to a crash. Most phones now allow you to "speed dial" by pressing only one or two keys.

Don't make calls that require a lot of thought, concentration, or emotion while you're driving. Much of the risk in talking on a cell phone while driving comes from simply being preoccupied with the thought process involved in talking on the phone.

Don't try to write down important information while driving and talking. That's an almost certain recipe for disaster, especially on a narrow rural road.

Because of the safety and liability concerns associated with using a cell phone while driving, most phone manufacturers and wireless service providers now include safety information with their phones. Take a few minutes to review that information and think about how it applies to your driving situation.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHO NEEDS JUDGMENT?

Background Scripture:
Amos 1 through 2.
Devotional Reading:
Hebrews 10:20-30.

Someone once told me that he liked everything about Christianity except judgment. "I would think," he said, "that if you are a Christian, you don't need it."

They may not say it so blatantly, but many must share his point of view. Mention "judgment" and they immediately think of their neighbor, their boss, or their enemies.

The Prophet Amos was aware of that, so he begins with the condemnation of Israel's neighbors. "For three transgressions of Damascus, and for four, I will not revoke the punishment" (1:3). Note that this phrase means that Damascus has done enough and more than enough to merit God's judgment.

In the case of Damascus, "more than enough" is a reference to Syria's crimes against Gilead. Damascus will pay, as will Syria's rulers Hazeal and Benhadad. (The writer doesn't tell us if the Israelites shouted "Hooray!" or stifled their glee at this good bad news.)

The prophet goes on to pronounce the judgment of God upon Gaza, Tyre, Edom, the Ammonites, and Moab. The sins of Israel's enemies have been more than enough to warrant God's judgment. I can imagine the anticipation of those who listened to the prophecy — would he also pronounce judgment upon their brother nation, Judah?

They were not disappointed, for Amos begins again: "Thus says the Lord: 'For three transgressions of Judah, and for four, I will not revoke the punishment'" (2:4).

They, too, have done more than enough to deserve God's judgment: they have rejected the law of God, not kept his statutes, and been led astray by their own lies.

"So, I will send a fire upon Judah, and it shall devour the strongholds of Jerusalem" (2:5).

Just Desserts?

Now, if Amos had quit at that point, it would be a very happy message the prophet was delivering. But if prophecy was for Israel's enemies, neighbors and kin, it was also for Israel. And, if you notice, see that the prophecy against Israel was three times as long in print as the others. I'm certain that there were certain of his hearers who protested, "But we haven't done anything to deserve this!"

Amos, however, says they also have done more than enough to attract God's judgment. That "more than enough" can be distilled into three complaints. The first of these is their treatment of the poor and defenseless. They "sell the righteous for silver and the needy for a pair of shoes — they that trample the head of the poor into the dust of the earth and turn aside the way of the afflicted" (2:6,7a). Is it by chance that Amos lists their treatment of the poor first? I think not, because throughout the Bible, treatment of the poor seems to be at the top of every list. And it is just as relevant today, for the growing hostility to the poor in our country and elsewhere is surely more than enough to incur the judgment of God.

The second charge is that of sexual and ritual debauchery. I say "sexual and ritual debauchery" because Amos is speaking of a special context for the sexual sins: temple prostitution as a integral part of the worship of the Canaanite religion. To emphasize the depravity, Amos says a man and his father use the same prostitute.

Temple prostitution alone would have been more than enough to justify God's judgment, but this father and son have gone beyond that. Have they no shame? Is this not a judgment on us, too?

The last charge is related to the first. It was law that a garment taken as pledge for a loan or a debt must be returned to the debtor before sundown. But some Israelites were obviously keeping these garments as collateral. I'm sure this judgment angered the Israelites. After all, business is business! I'm in this business for profit, not benevolence.

Israel was condemned because people thought little of cheating and abusing others in the name of "good business." Don't we all?

Who needs judgment? One guess should be sufficient.

Crownvetch Industry Is As Perennial As Plant Itself

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co Correspondent

PINE GROVE MILLS (Centre Co) — Dr Fred Grau Sr discovered a pretty lavender flowered cover plant along a shale pit near Virginville, Berks County, in 1935

Little did he know that it would become one of the most sought-after ground covers for the highway department in the '60s and a sole source of business income for his son, one of only three or four major crownvetch producers in the country

By discovering crownvetch and developing the production and marketing of the crop, Fred became the founder of the crownvetch industry

"He didn't know what it was," said Fred Grau Jr "He was an extension agronomist in turf at Penn State in 1935 He brought some back to Penn State and identified it He immediately saw the erosion control use for it

"In the late '40s and early '50s, Penn State picked up on the idea of using it My father, Penn State, the Department of Agriculture, and the Department of Highways together conducted three years of research on crownvetch in the late '40s. Then they released it as Penngift Crown-

Fred Grau Jr. examines a 20-year-old stand of crownvetch near State College. Crownvetch grows to about two-feet high and is an excellent ground cover.

Seeleys' Milky Way Farm Reaps Benefits Of Grazing

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford Co Correspondent

TROY (Bradford Co) — For the Seeley family of Milky Way Farm in Troy the call of springtime is getting stronger and stronger every day

It not only signals the start of a new growing season, but a shift in focus for their entire operation.

We will rotate cows by mid April even though there is no grass said Kim Seeley who has seen his farming focus change dramatically over the years "The reason we do that is to get the animals out of the barn I think it's important to start grazing early just for our mentality The cows are excited too They get spring fever just like we do

Seeley s grandparents purchased the farm in 1928 In 1962 Kim's parents, Lewis and Marie, expanded the operation by building a restaurant and jugging operation. Their goal at that time was to earn enough money to put their four children through college, which they did Kim and his wife Ann, along with their two sons — Shon, 18 and Dane 8 — are an integral part of the operation

For many years the Seeleys ran a conventional dairy along with their jugging operation In fact, they hold the claim to having the oldest free stall barn in Bradford County After a barn fire the Seeleys decided to move all the animals to a central location with the milking animals in total confinement

'We built a brand new barn in 1976 because of a barn fire For eight years we were in total confine

"We enjoy the staff at Mid-Atlantic. They're good, honest, and straightforward people."

– Ray Smith

Q: Please explain your business.

A: We are a custom cleaning business, specializing in complete close-outs of hog lagoons in Eastern North Carolina.

Q: Which of Mid-Atlantic's services to you use most often?

A: We buy our equipment from them, as well as our parts. We presently operate two 6,300 gallon Houle Spreaders with self-loading capability, one 6,000 gallon and one 3,850 gallon spreader. In addition, we own several Houle lagoon pumps

Q: What would you consider to be benefits of doing business with Mid Atlantic?

A: We enjoy the staff at Mid-Atlantic. They are good, honest and straightforward people. They have always been upfront with us, and often advise us as to what equipment and procedures will work for us, and what won't work. They believe in providing honest advice - not just making a sale. I highly recommend their parts department as well. They are very knowledgeable and are always available by phone when you need them, with answers to all of your questions.

Mid-Atlantic AgriSystems is #1 in parts and service for liquid waste handling on your farm.

- Trained, experienced sales and service staff
- Fully-stocked parts and service department
- New and used equipment sales
- Long and short-term rental equipment

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
June 27, 2001
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast - 2.6233-2.7635. Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta - 2.5632-2.7635 mostly 2.6433-2.7034.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast, Class II, includes monthly formula prices: 1.0500-1.1500; Northeast, Class III, spot prices: .8000-.9600.

The base price for Class I milk for July 2001 is $15.34 per cwt., up $0.35 from June 2001. Class I differentials specific to each order are added to the base price to determine the Class I price. The Class II skim milk price for July is $8.58, down two cents from June.

Earlier this week, the Attorneys General for all six New England states announced that they had reached an antitrust settlement with the fluid milk processor who controls approximately 70% of New England's bottle milk business. According to some contacts and their "way of thinking," a few of the details of the settlement appear confusing or puzzling.

This week, hot weather continues to cover most of the region. The high temperatures and humidity are taking more of a toll on cows. Milk output is falling from the Northern areas to Florida. The rates of decline vary. Fat and protein tests on the incoming milk are dropping along seasonal patterns. Florida's output continues to drop, but milk volumes are still excessive of Class I needs and shipments out of state continue.

Bottled milk sales are seldom better than fair and reported as "down right poor" in some parts of the region. Manufacturing plants are operating on reduced schedules. The most noteable drops in scheduling seem to be in the Southeast where most plants that are running are doing so only 3-4 days a week. Some handlers are preparing to take in "outside milk" starting next week. They may not need it right now, but most contracts of this nature start July 1.

The condensed skim market is a little firmer, but prices are unchanged. Offerings are not as difficult to clear as they were a few weeks ago. Spot demand is still light as most deliveries are to meet contracts. Drying schedules are generally lighter due to the better demand and lighter volumes of surplus milk coming into butter/powder plants.

The fluid cream market is firm. Demand is good, best early in the week. Spot prices are higher as both the weekly CME butter average and multiples moved higher. Most suppliers report an improved demand, but a few did have loads to clear late in the week. Other, however, were looking for additional loads for Thursday delivery. Some non-Grade A cream was moving to Midwestern churning facilities. Cream cheese output is improving and a few extra or spot loads of cream were purchased. Ice cream production is seasonally heavy. The hot weather is giving consumption a boost, particularly soft serve. Sales of frozen novelties are also very good. Churning activity is slower as some butter makers are selling their cream.

Dairy Researcher Selected As Outstanding Ag Sciences Alumnus

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Darwin Braund of State College, is one of five recipients of 2001 Outstanding Alumni Awards from Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. The award highlights distinguished graduates of the college and creates opportunities for interaction between alumni, students and faculty.

Braund is volunteer curator of Penn State's Pasto Agricultural Museum, which preserves machinery and other artifacts of farming as an industry and a lifestyle. He is a former agricultural adviser with the Polish-American Extension Project in Warsaw, Poland. He retired as professor emeritus of animal science at North Carolina State University in 1998 and spent 22 years as director of dairy and livestock research and development for Agway Inc. in Syracuse, N.Y. Braund also was assistant extension professor of animal sciences and project leader for dairy extension at the University of Kentucky.

He is author or coauthor of 46 articles and abstracts in scientific journals, including a chapter in the book, "Large Dairy Herd Management," and many articles in the popular press. He is author of the book, "Tomorrow Finally Came! Experiences as an Agricultural Adviser in Post-Communist Poland," and of the monograph, "Darwin's Diary: The Poland Experiences, June 11-December 8, 1995."

Braund was selected as a Distinguished Alumnus of Penn State's department of dairy and animal sciences in 1983 and received the Philip Philip Mitchell Alumni Service Award from Penn State in 1983. He was chosen as a Distinguished Alumnus of Delta Theta Sigma fraternity in 1990 and a Penn State President's Club member in 2000.

He is a life member of the American Dairy Science Association. He also belongs to the American Society of Animal Science, the American Registry of Professional Animal Scientists, the Council for Agricultural Science and Technology and several professional fraternities, alumni organizations and civic groups.

Born in Towanda, Braund earned a bachelor's degree in dairy science from Penn State in 1956, a master's degree in dairy nutrition and management from the University of Wisconsin in 1961, and a doctoral degree in dairy nutrition from Michigan State University in 1968.

New Dairy Hoof Health Video And Guide Available

PARSIPPANY, N.J. — The economic consequences of hoof disease in dairy cattle are significant. Treatment costs, below average breeding performance and higher cull rates, make this a problem that now costs dairy producers more than clinical mastitis.

A new video and scoring guide from Roche Vitamins explains the causes, costs and management of lameness in dairy cattle. The video and accompanying scoring guide explain how to use the simplified lameness scoring system developed at Michigan State University. This system helps detect lameness well before it becomes acute, allowing for early corrective measures which save on treatment cost and help boost overall performance.

For a free copy of the video "Hoof Health and Dairy Herd Profitability" (RCD 9930), and scoring guide, contact your Roche Vitamins representative or write to Roche Vitamins, 45 Waterview Boulevard, Parsippany, NJ 07054 or call 1-800-526-0189, Ext. 8292.

National Junior Swine Spectacular July 4-7

LAFAYETTE, Ind. — The fourth annual National Junior Summer Spectacular is anticipated to be one of the largest junior purebred swine events ever. NJSA members from California to Georgia will be gathering in Louisville, Ky., July 4-7, for this event.

Youth, ages 21 and under, can participate in a wide variety of contests pertaining to the swine industry. These contests include a purebred gilt show for Duroc, Hampshire, Landrace and Yorkshire swine; a showmanship contest; a skillathon; a judging contest; a photography contest; and a speech contest.

Awards will be presented to the youth that exhibit the highest placing bred and owned gilt. As well, youth can earn points in the gilt show, showmanship contest, judging contest and skillathon to go toward the sweepstakes contest that recognizes the youth who compile the most points in these four contests. In addition, youth will be able to participate in the annual NJSA meeting to elect new directors to the NJSA Board of Directors.

Warren Beeler, Caneyville, Ky., and Brian Hines, Coldwater, Mich., will serve as the judges for this event. All gilts must be pre-entered to be eligible for this event. The gilts must be farrowed on or after Dec. 15, 2000, and be transferred or registered in the junior member's name, farm name or family name by June 1.

Exhibitors must be a member of the NJSA to compete in the activities. For membership applications or additional information about the National Junior Summer Spectacular, contact the National Swine Registry, c/o Jennifer Shike, P.O. Box 2417, West Lafayette, IN 47996-2417, access the Internet at www.nationalswine.com, or call (765) 463-3594.

When the weather gets "hot," cooling cows with water is an effective way of keeping them more comfortable. Evaporative cooling uses heat in the air to vaporize moisture, increasing the humidity, but lowering the dry bulb temperature.

The most common forms of cooling used in dairy shelters are spray cooling, misting, and evaporative pads. While these systems are different in design, evaporation is used to cool the cows directly or cool the air surrounding them. Evaporative cooling increases the humidity of the air, so a good air exchange is necessary for the system to be effective.

Spray cooling systems soak cows with water intermittently then use circulation fans to help evaporate the moisture from the skin. The sensation is similar to wetting your hand, then placing it in a breeze. Wetting your hand cools it, but the evaporation of moisture from the skin is more effective. One study found the skin temperature of a heat stressed cows was reduced 7 degrees Fahrenheit (F) while their respiration rate was reduced 18 breaths per minute almost immediately after water was applied and evaporated.

Most spray cooling systems use a wet/dry cycle that soaks the cows in 1 to 3 minutes, then uses circulation fans to "dry" her for 10 to 15 minutes. The fans can operate continuously, but some systems shut them off during the wetting cycle. Spray cooling systems are installed in the holding area and/or feeding area. The spray nozzles should produce a coarse droplet that penetrates the hair coat to wet the skin.

Commonly used nozzles deliver approximately 0.5 gallons per minute (gpm) in a radius of 3 to 4 feet. Operating pressures are usually less than 40 psi. The length of the branch line and number of nozzles determine the pipe size. Pipe sizes from ¾ inch to 2 inches are common. A line that is too small limits nozzle delivery rate and reduces system effectiveness.

Misting systems are designed to cool the air surrounding the cows. These systems operate at relatively high pressures (greater than 300 psi) and emit very fine droplets of water into the air.

Some systems use misting nozzles mounted on the exhaust side of circulation fans. Heat in the air vaporizes the water, lowering the dry bulb temperature. Misting works best in arid climates where the relative humidity is low, but can also work in Pennsylvania during the hottest periods of the day. In some cases the dry bulb temperature can be lowered 10 to 12 degrees F. Since the mist will evaporate completely in the air, this system can be installed over the resting area as well (if the system is designed and managed properly).

More efficient cooling is achieved with a smaller droplet size that vaporizes completely. Systems that use a lower pressure typically emit larger droplets that won't completely vaporize. The result is wet surfaces and more humid conditions. Water that doesn't vaporize can also create a "blanket" of moisture on the cow's hair coat, making it more difficult for them to get rid of heat.

Evaporative pads are becoming more popular in tie stall (and freestall) shelters with tunnel ventilation. Fresh inlet air is drawn through a wetted fibrous pad. The temperature of the incoming air vaporizes moisture as it passes through the pad, lowering the dry bulb temperature. Tiestall barns in this area have reported lowering the temperature up to 12 degrees F during the hottest period of the day. Most designs circulate water through the system using a water distribution pipe at the top of the pad, a collection gutter at the bottom, and a sump. Other designs use a grid of spray nozzles to wet the pad. Along with proper design and installation, the pads must be cleaned and managed properly to realize their maximum benefit.

Public Feedback Encouraged On Changing EPA Regulations

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — As the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) considers major changes in farming and water quality regulations, researchers in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences are providing a free guide that will help citizens understand the issues and implications.

"Shaping New EPA CAFO Rules: A Guide to the Proposals and Comment Process" is a fact sheet assembled by Charles Abdalla, associate professor of agricultural economics, and Alyssa Dodd, extension associate in agricultural economics and rural sociology.

"The guide highlights the important parts of the EPA-proposed regulations on large-scale animal agriculture or concentrated animal feeding operations (CAFO)," Abdalla said. "Farmers and other citizens have until July 30 to comment. Proposed last December, the regulations are extensive and complex — even for people who work in this area."

"This is the first major change in the regulations since the mid-1970s," he said. "Farmers and others involved with agriculture have the opportunity to influence the regulations and shape national policy. The guide helps people to understand the various components of the regulations — particularly those that are important to Pennsylvania — and to learn how they can make effective comments before the deadline. It's designed to help people grasp the big picture."

The fact sheet explains how to tell if a farming operation is a CAFO, highlights the changes proposed in the regulations, and gives specific suggestions on how anyone can make effective comments to the EPA.

"Audiences that will find the fact sheet useful include people involved in animal agriculture — such as farmers, agribusinesses, feed suppliers, processors and related businesses — anyone interested in water quality and the environment, and public decision makers and elected officials. Township officials, for instance, need to know how the coming federal requirements will affect them," Abdalla said.

Copies of the guide are available from Dr. Abdalla at (814) 865-2562. The fact sheet also will be posted on the Web at http://agenvpolicy.aers.psu.edu/cafo/.

New Programs Provide Additional Conservation Assistance To Farmers And Ranchers

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman recently announced that $30 million is available through two new programs providing additional conservation assistance to the nation's landowners.

"Farmers and ranchers can receive financial assistance to voluntarily address threats to soil, water, and related natural resources," said Veneman. "These programs also help with water management and erosion control by incorporating conservation into their farming operations."

The two programs — Agricultural Management Assistance (AMA) and Soil and Water Conservation Assistance (SWCA) — are part of a continuing effort to provide agricultural producers with conservation assistance.

Through AMA, producers can construct or improve water management structures or irrigation structures; plant trees for windbreaks or to improve water quality; and mitigate risk through production diversification or resource conservation practices, including soil erosion control, integrated pest management, or transition to organic farming.

AMA is available in 15 states where participation in the Federal Crop Insurance Program is historically low. They are: Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Utah, Vermont, West Virginia, and Wyoming.

SWCA will help landowners comply with federal and state environmental laws and make beneficial, cost-effective changes to cropping systems, grazing management, nutrient management, and irrigation.

SWCA is available nationwide in areas that are not part of designated priority areas for Environmental Quality Incentives Program or Wetlands Reserve Program, or national priority areas for the Conservation Reserve Program.

USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service has leadership for SWCA and the conservation provisions of AMA. To be eligible, applicants must own or control the land and agree to implement specific eligible conservation practices. The federal share will be 75 percent of the cost of an eligible practice.

Under AMA, the Agricultural Marketing Service is responsible for an organic certification program and the Risk Management Agency is responsible for mitigation of financial risk through an insurance cost-share program.

Additional information on SWCA, AMA, and other conservation programs is available at: http://www.nhq.nrcs.usda.gov/PROGRAMS//COD/codindex.htm.

Certified Organic Vegetable Farm To Host Field Day

MILLHEIM (Centre Co.) — Mike and Terra Brownback, owners of Spiral Path Farm (Loysville, Perry Co.), will host a Farm Field Day, Tuesday, July 10, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Participants will get a first-hand look at this successful certified organic vegetable operation in the height of the season. Sponsors, Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA) and Pennsylvania Certified Organic (PCO), bring you this opportunity to tour Spiral Path Farm and hear how the Brownbacks have build production systems that work for them.

The Brownbacks are first generation farmers who farmed conventionally from 1978 to 1990. They operated a farrow to finish hog operation as well as grew field row crops. With a keen desire to bring their operation into a more ecologically balanced system, they began conversion to organic and sustainable growing techniques in 1991.

Their operation now focuses on raising over 30 varieties of vegetables organically on more than 100 acres. They operate an extremely successful wholesale produce operation, as well as a certified organic hay business. A cornerstone of Spiral Path Farm is the tri-county Community Supported Agriculture Farm (CSA), which serves 175 families.

All are invited to attend this exciting and informative event. The focus of the morning will be on successional plantings. Learn how the season is extended with greenhouses, seeding and transplanting equipment and through crop rotations. Following lunch, you will have an opportunity to learn about post-harvest handling and record keeping systems at Spiral Path.

It will be a full day of useful tips and ideas you can take home to your own farm operation. If you would like to attend, please call Kate Francis at PASA at (814) 349-9856, ext. 2 to RSVP, for more information and for full driving directions. Lunch will be available for purchase.

June 1 Cattle On Feed 2% Higher Than Year Ago

WASHINGTON, D.C..—Cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market in the United States for feedlots with capacity of 1,000 or more head totaled 11.24 million head on June 1, 2001, according to the National Agricultural Service (NASS). The inventory was 2 percent above June 1, 2000 and 13 percent above June 1, 1999.

Placements in feedlots during May totaled 2.37 million, 3 percent above 2000 and 16 percent above 1999. Net placements were 2.27 million.

During May, placements of cattle and calves weighing less than 600 pounds were 494,000, 600-699 pounds were 509,000, 700-799 pounds were 799,000, and 800 pounds and greater were 565,000.

Marketings of fed cattle during May totaled 2.20 million, 1 percent above 2000 and 10 percent above 1999.

Historic 7 States Up 2%

Cattle on feed June 1, 2001, in the historic 7 States for feedlots with capacity of 1,000 or more head totaled 9.66 million, up 2 percent from the previous year and 13 percent above June 1, 1999.

Placements in feedlots during May totaled 2.06 million, 3 percent above 2000 and 19 percent above 1999.

Marketings during May totaled 1.88 million, 1 percent above 2000 and up 11 percent from 1999.

Other disappearance during May was 88,000 head, 4 percent above 2000 and 21 percent above 1999.

Gypsy Moth Caterpillar Resembles Other Caterpillar Pests

WOOSTER, Ohio — As the gypsy moth caterpillar feeds and matures over the next several weeks, the invasive insect shares Mother Nature's bounty with other caterpillar pests that look similar and feed on the same host trees, potentially confusing homeowners as to what exactly may be attacking their shade trees.

Dan Herms, an Ohio State University entomologist, said the gypsy moth caterpillar looks similar to and shares host trees with the eastern tent caterpillar (Malacosoma americanum), forest tent caterpillar (Malacosoma disstria) and the fall webworm (Hyphantria cunea), but the insects' life cycles differ.

"Eastern tent caterpillar is one of the most common caterpillar pests in Ohio, and gypsy moth is quickly joining its ranks," said Herms, who is based at OSU's Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center in Wooster. "Eastern tent caterpillars mature about two to three weeks before gypsy moth. So by the time gypsy moth caterpillars reach maturity in mid-to late-June, the eastern tent will have already completed its development."

The eastern tent caterpillar, easily recognized by the tent-like silk nests it builds at branch forks during spring, feeds primarily on cherries and crabapples, although older caterpillars can be found occasionally feeding on other trees, such as birch, maple, oak, and ash, especially when populations are high. A mature caterpillar is characterized by fine hairs, robin egg blue markings on its side and a distinct white stripe along its back. By comparison, a mature gypsy moth caterpillar is also hairy, but is dark with five pairs of blue dots and six pairs of red dots along its back.

Herms said the eastern tent caterpillar is native to Ohio and has many natural enemies, such as predaceous and parasitic insects, birds, small mammals, and diseases caused by viruses, bacteria, and fungi, which help to control outbreaks. "Even during heavy outbreaks, natural enemies help to control the insect, so they don't do the damage to trees that the gypsy moth can do," he said.

The forest tent caterpillar, which reaches high numbers occasionally in Ohio, also matures about two to three weeks earlier than the gypsy moth caterpillar. The forest tent caterpillar, which is closely related to and resembles the eastern tent caterpillar, is characterized by fine hairs, blue markings on its side and back and white "keyhole" markings on its back. It feeds on sweetgum, oak, birch, aspen, maple, elm and basswood, among others. Despite its name, the forest tent caterpillar does not produce a silk nest.

Herms said that although the forest tent caterpillar can be found in Ohio, it is more prevalent in northern Great Lake states like Michigan and into Canada.

The fall webworm, a caterpillar that feeds on over 100 species of deciduous trees, is active after the gypsy moth caterpillar pupates, becoming most obvious in August and September. The fall webworm spins silk nests in host trees and is characterized by silky hairs and pale green or yellow color with a black stripe on its back and yellow stripes on its sides.

Herms said the fall webworm also has natural enemies that help to keep outbreaks in check. "Plus, fall webworms develop so late in the season that defoliation has little impact on the health of trees," he said.

Eastern tent and forest tent caterpillars near the end of their larval stage in late May, while fall webworms shows up in July and peak in September. Gypsy moth caterpillars, which have been hatching from egg masses from late-April until the first week of May, will reach maturity in June and pupate into their adult moth forms in July.

Gelbvieh Unveils Grid Merit EPD

In an attempt to assist its membership and commercial cattle producers with sire selection decisions regarding carcass merit, the American Gelbvieh Association (AGA) will unveil its Grid Merit EPD with the 2001 Summer National Cattle Evaluation.

Grid Merit consolidates the EPDs for carcass weight, ribeye area, marbling and fat thickness down to one numbera dollar figure. This dollar figure is derived using economic selection index theory. Models were developed using performance and economic data from the Gelbvieh Alliance with Monfort/ConAgra to predict the percent progeny falling into yield and quality grades and the percent outs.

These models were used to calculate the relative economic value (the dollars associated with a one unit increase in the trait of interest while holding all other traits constant) for each of the four carcass traits.

As with other EPDs, the Grid Merit EPD may be used to estimate how future progeny of one animal will compare to progeny of another animal within the same breed. In this particular case, the performance measured is the dollar value associated with marketing progeny on a value-based grid.

The EPD is not designed to predict the grid value of one or two progeny of any given sire. The Grid Merit EPD should be used to compare bulls based on estimated progeny performance when progeny are marketed on a value-based grid.

For example, a bull with a Grid Merit EPD of $12 is expected to sire calves that will average $12 higher when marketed on a value-based grid than calves sired by a bull with an EPD of $0.

The Grid Merit EPD should be used to predict carcass merit; however, carcass is just one component of a balanced selection program. It is never a smart management strategy to select sires based on a single trait.

The Grid Merit EPD represents the American Gelbvieh Association's first attempt to apply economic selection index theory to industry. It is a step to provide a means of summarizing the incredible amount of information available today. The American Gelbvieh Association is looking to the future with plans of providing customizable selection indexes for seedstock and commercial producers.

The American Gelbvieh Association's Grid Merit EPD will be released as a supplement to the Summer 2001 National Cattle Evaluation. The Carcass EPD Supplement will be available on-line at www.gelbvieh.org. Persons interested in a hard copy of the supplement should contact Patrick Doyle at the American Gelbvieh Association at 303-465-2333.

N.Y. Assembly Passes Bill For Horse And Livestock Boarders

ALBANY, N.Y. — The Assembly has passed legislation sponsored by Assembly Agriculture Committee Chair Bill Magee (D-Nelson) that would allow farmers that engage in the raising, breeding and boarding of livestock and horses to qualify for the Farm Structure and Building Real Property Tax Exemption.

"This is good news for our farmers — as they look to diversify and supplement their operations to include horse and livestock boarding, this bill provides them much needed property tax relief," Magee said. "You cannot underestimate the value of this to the agriculture industry."

The boarding and breeding of heifers and horses is a growing facet of agriculture that is assisting many, many farmers with remaining in farming and, at the same time, preserving that farmland. Currently, the buildings and structures that farmers are using for commercial livestock boarding are not eligible to receive the farm structure property tax exemption and this bill seeks to address that.

"This will be a real shot in the arm for these farmers who are really working hard to be good stewards of the land and to be good business people in a global agriculture industry that is quickly changing," Magee commented. "This is another step in the direction of helping our farmers continue to farm."

In addition, the Assembly has also passed other bills that would benefit the equine industry; assist farmers in providing better ways to process their manure; establish a council on sustainable agriculture to integrate rural and urban interests; assist farmers and consumers with purchasing "locally grown, locally known" products; and assisting milk vending companies in hopes that they become more aggressive in placing milk vending machines in schools.

"From tax breaks and business incentives to marketing assistance, the Assembly is dedicated to running the full gamut in terms of providing the tools that our farmers need to not only survive, but to thrive," Magee concluded.

This bill, having passed both houses, now goes to the Governor.

Farm Service Agency Accepting Crop Reports

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County Farm Service Agency is accepting 2001 crop acreage reports. The deadline for reporting free of charge is July 16 for all crops except small grains. The reporting dates for wheat, barley, and oats was June 15, however, reports can still be accepted by paying a late fee of $35 per farm with an additional nominal charge for acreage.

This is a voluntary sign up. With the federal government developing many new programs, however, a crop report may be a condition for receiving payments. Programs that now require an acreage report include loan deficiency payments, facility loans, and disaster payments. There is a good likelihood that non-contract farms will be eligible for loan deficiency payments once again, depending on the legislative action.

Producers interested in reporting must visit the county office, review aerial photographs, and indicate the location of their crops.

The Lancaster County office is located at The Farm and Home Center, 1383 Arcadia Road, Lancaster. Call ahead to have the aerial photos mailed to you to mark at home. This will significantly reduce time spent in the office.

NCGA Backs Bill To Simplify Fuel Standards And Boost Ethanol Use

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A bipartisan effort in the U.S. House of Representatives led by Rep. Roy Blunt (R-Mo.) and Bobby Rush (D-Ill.) with support of House Speaker Denny Hastert (R-Ill.) has introduced legislation to simplify the manufacture and distribution of gasoline. The Gasoline Stabilization Act of 2001 calls for uniform standards for gasoline and diesel fuel throughout the nation and could boost the use of ethanol by adding as much as 15 percent of the nation's gasoline supply to the reformulated gasoline (RFG) program.

"Refiners will be required to produce gasoline under a uniform nationwide formula that meets the requirements of the RFG program using a single oxygenate," explained John McClelland, director of energy and analysis at NCGA, "This would eliminate all so-called 'boutique fuels' that many areas of the country have been using instead of reformulated gasoline to reduce air pollution."

Some oil company executives have contended that the primary cause of gasoline price spikes have been the many fuels oil companies have to produce for the boutique markets. The legislation eliminates the ability of states to create special fuel requirements.

Blunt said the bill is about simple economics. "It's time to see some common sense at the pump. Communities across the nation use as many as 45 different blends of gasoline. When supply can't meet demand in an area that uses a boutique fuel, prices shoot up." Rush added that his motivation for co-sponsoring the bill "stems from the incredible price spikes that consumers in Chicago and the rest of the nation have endured over the past two years."

McClelland noted, "This is important legislation for all gasoline consumers because it will greatly simplify the refining and distribution system for gasoline while providing cleaner-burning ethanol blends to markets that need to improve their air quality.

"If boutique fuels are really the problem as the oil companies claim, then this bill fixes the problem," he concluded.

The bill, H.R. 2249, will be referred to the House Energy and Commerce Committee.

Maryland Grain Producers Schedule Ethanol Workshop

CENTREVILLE, Md. — The Maryland Grain Producers Association (MGPA) has scheduled an ethanol workshop as part of the third annual Commodity Classic on July 26.

Scheduled to begin at 5:30 p.m., speakers will include Al Voudrie of Voudrie Business Development, Inc. of Elk River, Minn., owner of the firm conducting an ethanol feasibility study. Discussions will include: opportunities for ethanol in Maryland; options for constructions, management, and ownership of an ethanol facility; funding options; and a general question/answer time.

"The board members of the Maryland Grain Producers Association felt this was an excellent time to hold this workshop," said Donnie Tennyson, president of the MGPA.

Results from the first place of the ethanol feasibility study are going to be released by Mr. Voudrie during the actual meeting portion of the Commodity Classic earlier in the day.

"After hearing the results from phase one of the ethanol study, members and guests should have a better understanding of the ethanol market. Though the study will not be completed until September, this is a perfect opportunity to discuss the possibility of expanding the ethanol market in Maryland," Tennyson said.

Registration for the third annual Commodity Classic begins at 11 a.m. The business meeting will begin at 1 p.m. followed by speakers and concluding with the famed crab feast, pork and chicken barbecue. Entry prior to 2:30 p.m. is $10. After 2:30 p.m., the entry fee is $20.

Those wishing to come only to the ethanol workshop may do so by entering the 4-H Park located on Rt. 18 in Centreville after 5:20 p.m. at no charge.

For ticket information regarding the third annual Commodity Classic, contact Lynne Hoot (MGPA) at (410) 956-5771.

Hoof Trimmers Association Names New Executive Director

MISSOULA, Mont. — The Hoof Trimmers Association, Inc.'s executive board is pleased to announce the selection of Gail Oss as executive director beginning June 1.

Oss has experience in agriculture research, sales and marketing, and livestock issues. She conducted research for the agriculture departments at Colorado State University and the University of Hawaii, and most recently was a sales representative with Pfizer Animal Health in Montana and Idaho.

As executive director, Oss will be responsible for the day-to-day operations of the association, including managing the association's marketing and promotional efforts in the dairy industry, and serving as liaison the researchers, veterinary organizations, industry representatives, and the media.

The Hoof Trimmers Association, Inc., a non-profit organization representing 400 members in 13 countries, strives to network hoof trimmers, veterinarians, nutritionists, dairy producers, consultants, and researchers around the globe to promote quality hoof trimming, provide educational opportunities on hoof care and improve hoof health.

cided to breed the cattle himself. "We started from scratch and bred up to what we have today, to a few purebreds," he said.

Three purebred bulls added to that effort, since the Walters' original stock came from AI.

Much of their herd is registered but not necessarily purebred. The animals must be three-fourth Maine-Anjou to meet Farm Show specifidations. This year calf crop numbers hit 33 calves, with six on the way.

Breed History

According to Website information, the Maine-Anjou breed originated in the northwestern part of France, an area excellent for beef production, with both grassland and tillable land.

At the beginning of the 19th century, the cattle in this region were large, well-muscled animals with light red coats spotted with white and known as the Mancelle breed. In addition to their size and muscling, the Mancelle had a reputation for easy fattening.

In 1839 the breed was crossed with Durham cattle, and by 1850 Durham-Mancelle animals were winning championships at the French agricultural fairs. In 1909 the name was changed to the Society of Maine-Anjou Cattle breeders, taking the name from the Maine and Anjou river valleys.

Breeders of the cattle were mostly small farmers, so the Maine-Anjou evolved as a dual-purpose breed, with the cows used for milk production and the bull calves fed for market.

Farmers today, according to the Website, still milk Maine-Anjou cattle, with half the cows are milked and the other half raise two calves each.

The Maine-Anjou is one of the larger breeds developed in France, with mature bulls averaging 2,200 to 3,100 pounds and mature cows ranging from 1,500 to 1,900 pounds each.

Now In The U.S.

The first Maine-Anjou imported into North America came to Canada in 1969. These cattle were then introduced to the U.S. through artificial insemination.

The breed is not common to the area. "As far as purebred animals, there is no one in York County that I know of. Dauphin County is probably the closest," said Walter.

Maine-Anjou cattle are found more in the western Pennsylvania and Ohio area, according to Walter. "The Ohio Beef Expo is the hottest Maine-Anjou show in the country," he said.

Although they still sell club calves, "we're really aiming for the heifer and bull market," said Walter.

Walter's practiced eye breeds for animals with a "clean front end" — a feminine head and long neck resting on a smooth shoulder and complemented by a good top.

The cattle are "docile and really quiet to be around," said Walter, who also testifies to their hardiness. The main cow herd gets high-moisture haylage-wrapped bales over the winter, and "stay in good shape on that." In addition to being "easy feeding," the cattle also yield well, according to Walter, with big loin eyes.

Although the breed was originally red with white markings, the cattle can be any color to qualify for registration. Because of their common roots, the Shorthorn registry will accept Maine-Anjou animals into their registry.

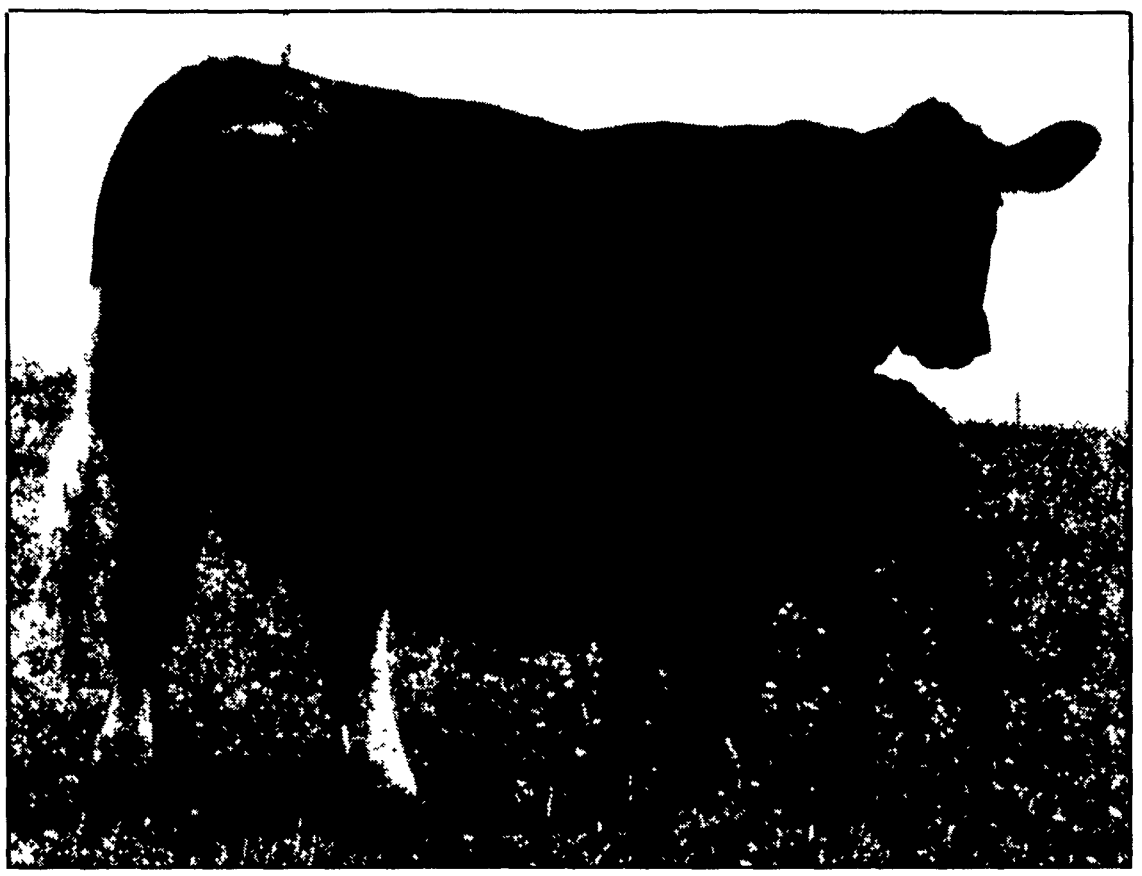
Donald and Marianne Walter, Airville, have the distinction of owning and showing the last three champion females and several champion or reserve champion bulls.



The breed, which originated in northwestern France, evolved as a dual-purpose breed. European farmers today still milk Maine-Anjou cattle, where half of the cows are milked and the other half raise two calves each.

Because of market demand and to catch the eye of show ring judges, Walter breeds for black cattle.

The Farm Show has conducted Maine-Anjou shows for the last three years. Except for the animals the Walters' granddaughter exhibits around York County, the Farm Show is the only place they show their cattle, a show they are breeding for, preparing for, and looking forward to competing at this coming January.

Maine-Anjou shows are relatively new at the Farm Show. They have been conducted in Harrisburg the last three years.

Even though the Donald and Marianne Walter — known as Walter Cattle Company in the show ring — are in the beef business, they were not always committed to cattle.

Donald was in the excavating business in Lancaster County for 25 years, but "always wanted to be a farmer," a sentiment developed perhaps in his growing-up years on a 20-acre farmette.

Also during his early years Walter was active in the rodeo circuit, travelling to the Cowtown Rodeo in southern New Jersey every Saturday evening to get his fill of his calf-roping hobby.

He has passed this passion on to his son, who now ropes, and also his grandchildren, who are busy practicing roping goats in youth rodeo competitions. "Once you get that rodeo in your blood you can't get it out," said Walter.

Adding to the family's agricultural knowledge was their children's involvement in a 4-H beef club. Walter finally fulfilled his farming dream at a reasonably-priced farm in York County, where he fed steers.

Next the family rented to another farm in York County where they milked cows for a year and a half in a rented barn. Marianne, a milk tester for 20 years, especially enjoyed this era.

They finally settled on a 74-acre farm in the same county. Renting an additional 225 acres provides the operation with corn, oats, and mostly hay, which is also sold to area farmers. Cattle, in the form of Simmentals, moved onto the farm in the mid 70s.

The family first bred for show calves, then began hosting annual sales after Thanksgiving, selling 50 head of their own calves and animals they had purchased.

Farmland Trust recognizes Pennsylvania as a national leader in this endeavor.

Additional budget allocations include:

- In the West Nile Virus fight, $1.9 million have been dedicated to the Department's Bureau of Animal Health and Diagnostic Services.
- To help eliminate Johne's disease, $200,000 has been targeted.
- Pennsylvania Dairy Quality Assurance Program received $40,000.
- Scrapie is also an amplified problem in Pennsylvania's sheep industry. $35,000 has been allotted to develop a scrapie protocol.
- The Beef Quality Assurance Program helps the beef industry to voluntarily improve the quality of Pennsylvania's beef. To assist this newest endeavor at the Department of Agriculture, $50,000 has been contributed.
- The Animal Health and Diagnostic Commission received an increase of $125,000.
- To work with the development and delivery of protocol in times of distress of the animal industries, the Department of Agriculture's Emergency Response Program's members take the lead. To continue this program's work, an additional $75,000 has been allotted.
- Seven hundred and seventeen thousand dollars is being used to expand testing for Plum Pox virus.
- The Plum Pox indemnification program includes $3.1 million. Eradication and indemnification helps fruit growers with orchards stricken by Plum Pox.
- Seventy-four thousand dollars has been allotted for agricultural research.
- One hundred and four thousand dollars has been dedicated to Pennsylvania's FFA Program.
- One hundred and ninety-six thousand dollars for the budget is alloted to programs promoting agriculture in Pennsylvania and beyond the state's boundaries. "Pennsylvania Produce Simply Delicious," for the vegetable and fruit growers is a good example. Others are the annual international agriculture celebration known as AGRO, trade missions, and commodities promotions.
- An increase of $200,000 for a total of $4.4 million will go to assist county and community fairs.
- The All-American Dairy Show received an increase of $38,000 for a total of $225,000.
- The Keystone International Livestock Exposition also received an increase of $38,000 for a total of $225,000.
- To continue the flow of food to those in need, nearly $2 million has been committed to the Seniors Farmers Market Nutrition Pilot Program and the WIC Farmers Market Nutrition Program. For the fight against hunger, an additional $950,000 will go to emergency programs like food banks.
- Over $180,000 will go towards the development of a food handler certification program in non-profit organizations..
- Funding will become available for several major construction projects, including a new $5.6 million livestock evaluation center, a new greenhouse valued at approximately $400,000, new construction at the Pennsylvania Farm Show complex, and the introduction of a new equine center component. The construction plan has dedicated approximately $66 million to the upgrade and exposition center construction project at the Farm Show complex. The equine arena and barn project at the Farm Show complex will receive $10 million.

Farm Service Agency Accepting Late-Filed LDP's

LEBANON and YORK (Lebanon Co. and York Co.) — County executive director of the Farm Service Agency (FSA), Jenifer Hershey and Wayne Kurtz, of York County, have announced that late-filed loan deficiency payments (LDP's) may be accepted in the Lebanon County FSA offices. Late-filed LDP's may be requested for 2000 crops only if producers:

- Requested LDP after April 12, on commodity already marketed and were denied LDP benefits.
- Did not request LDP for commodities harvested and marketed on or before April 12 for commodities with a March 31 final loan availability date or on or before May 31 for commodities with a May 31 final loan availability date.

Hershey indicated that not all farmers may have been timely notified by FSA that the beneficial interest requirement waiver would expire on April 12. This could have adversely affected producers requesting LDP's for commodities already marketed before their requests were received in the county office.

The final date to request late-filed LDP's is July 31.

For detailed applicant criteria or to schedule an appointment, contact the Lebanon County office at 2120 Cornwall Road, Suite #3, Lebanon, or visit FSA on the World Wide Web at http://www.fsa.usda.gov. The York County FSA Office is located at 120 Pleasant Acres Road in York. Phone (717) 755-2966, X-2.

Kaufmans Prove Small Dairies Can Survive

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

FRIEDENS (Somerset Co.) — Dairy farmers Allen and Gloria Kaufman maintain that with wise management a small time farming operation can survive in this day and age.

The one-income family refuses to believe the often-heard hype that bigger is better.

"We control what we do," said the dairyman whose intensive grazing operation supports a 65-head milking herd and 55 head of young cattle.

"What is unique about the farm is it is the only source of income," the conservationist added. Kaufman in 1998 received the Outstanding Conservation Farmer Award from the Somerset County Conservation District.

"What we want to do is stay small," Gloria said, emphasizing how the system of intensive grazing accomplishes this end by greatly reducing the costs of labor, feed and machinery maintenance.

"We would like to stay where we are working with our cows and our family rather than managing people," said the busy wife and mother. She feeds calves and helps with milking.

Their stewardship doesn't just concern livestock and 218 acres of land. They are just as conscientious about parenting their children and being involved in their lives. Jeff, 19, attends Mt. Aloysius College in Cresson. Justin, 15, was born with farming in his blood and Janna is 10 and loves to play soccer. In work or play there is a balance of responsibility and support for one another.

"We will stay where we are for the next four years until Justin is out of school," said the young man's dad.

"I like being around cows and being outside," Justin said. 'I am not a book person."

In the teen-ager, apparently there, is somewhat of an artist lurking, too, especially in the area of wood crafts. The finished product, usually resembles a cow or some other feature of Grazing Valley Farm.

Jeff is the opposite of his brother and is studying occupational therapy at college. In fact, this summer in that same department, he has part time employment, but his parents were elated when he made the independent decision to pass up full time work in order to assist his dad on the farm.

It's even nicer that Jeff's girlfriend, Mandy Kristoff from Mineral Point, doesn't mind helping with the milking chores. Both of them are sophomores at Mt. Aloysius College.

Janna is expected to pull a share of the load but has to adhere to a schedule of 30 minutes daily to practice piano lessons and another 20 minutes practicing the violin.

Allen and Gloria Kaufman of Friedens are gathered at the Grazing Valley Farm sign with their children, Jeff, Justin and Janna.

Carl Gindlesperger from Hollsopple, Gloria's father, is another helper who enjoys working in the fields, which gives him a chance to hang out with the grandkids.

In the 65-stall stanchion barn every cow knows the stall with her own name on it. Twice a day when her udder is full of milk each bovine lady sidles in to her personal cubicle and allows herself to get connected to the pipeline system.

Kaufman said that if a problem develops for the relief milker his job is made a lot easier when there is cow identification at the stall as well as on her eartag.

They praise the faithfulness relief milker of Tim Lehman, who unfailingly responds when they call. His dependability is a blessing, they said, because at brief intervals Kaufman and his wife can get away to watch their kids participate in sports and other activities. It compensates for not having family vacations.

"In the summer time I can get away a few hours to be with the family," Kaufman said.

During soccer and basketball seasons, milking times can fluctuate an hour in either direction but generally, the schedule is 6 a.m. and 5 p.m.

"Two-thirds of the herd freshens in the spring so I'll be producing milk on an intensive grazing system," Kaufman said. 'What we are trying to do on the intensive grazing system is produce 18,000 pounds of milk feeding 15 pounds of cracked corn, one pound of soybean meal and 10 pounds of corn silage with the remaining nutrition coming from grazing and mineral packages," he explained.

"We are trying to hold at that," he said. "We are not producing like the confinement herds, but then their feed costs are a lot higher. We are trying to produce the most amount of milk at the lowest cost."

With the exception of a few Guernsey cows that belong to Justin, primarily the dairy herd is comprised of Holsteins.

Some 15 calf hutches individually house the newborns and lessen the potential for transferal of disease. At about 2-3 months of age the calves are put with older livestock.

In the spring, the animals are rotated amongst the 15 paddocks on some 30 acres of grassland. Meanwhile, after haylage on another 30 acres is made with the first cutting, Kaufman creates 10 additional paddocks in that area using polywire fencing to enhance the system through summer and fall.

The kids have to help. On the four-wheeler, for instance, Justin might control the chunky spool of polywire and drive the vehicle while Jeff and his dad pound the lightweight poles in the ground to run the wire.

The paddocks have individual water, a 100-gallon water tub access to each paddock. There is never a shortage, Kaufman said.

The cows are inside the barn only as long as it takes to milk them. The advantage of being outside is that their hooves stay softer and there is better herd health, Kaufman said.

In the winter when the cows are housed in the barn, once a day they are still taken outside for exercise, weather permitting.

"The whole farm is laid out in contour farm strip cropping," Kaufman said.

Kaufman practices crop rotation. For the first two years on 25 acres he raises corn for silage. Then with oats and nitrogen-rich peas for a ground cover, he proceeds with grass the next several years, rotating with corn on about 12 new acres each year. "We do a cover crop because we don't need to spray for weeds," said the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau member.

The first time through 100 acres he makes haylage. For the second cutting, after deleting 30 acres for the 10 new paddocks, he makes the small square bales on some 70 acres. The third cutting is haylage.

The conservation measures at Grazing Valley Farm have included a heavy use protection area. Farm runoff is funneled through concrete curbing, catching solid waste from the cattle. From there it runs through a grass filled filter area before it can reach a small stream flowing into the Beaver Dam Creek.

Grassed waterways, subsurface tile drainage, cross fencing, stabilized stream crossing, roof runoff controls, a diversion, spring development, and stream bank fencing on the farm are other measures Kaufman has implemented with help and guidance from the Somerset Conservation District.

Alley stabilization was the big conservation project in 1998. In the near future he plans to do more of the same with a grant from the Stoneycreek Watershed.

He is also participating in a nutrient management plan, keeping track of crops taken off and manure put on.

"We are going to do more alleyways and stream bank fencing," Kaufman said.

Very near the house, with native brown trout in it, a gurgling stream runs through the property. Kaufman says even in the drought the water never slowed up.

The couple are leaders in the Dairydells 4-H Club where their kids are members and have dairy projects.

Justin and Janna attend the Johnstown Christian School where their dad is a member of the school board, their mom is an active volunteer, and Jeff, recently, coached a junior high basketball team.

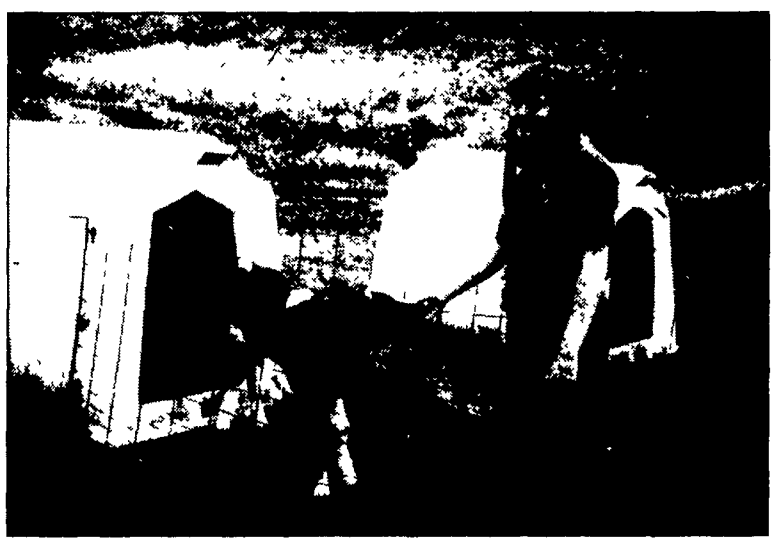
Gloria belongs to the Somerset County Dairy Promotion Committee. She and her husband do a dual service for the school and the local dairy industry by volunteering to sell ice cream and milkshakes at the school's arts and crafts festival.

They also give of their time to the church, and Gloria will direct Vacation Bible School at the Thomas Mennonite Church.

She is the bookkeeper and makes her entries in longhand, although, she is gaining computer literacy thanks to a related class at the cooperative extension office.

Although she has very little time for gardening, her dream is to have a small greenhouse. The site is already picked out.

On their recent 21st anniversary, the Kaufman sons did the evening and morning milking and treated their parents to dinner out and a getaway that allowed their dad the luxury of sleeping in for the first time in years.



Gloria Kaufman is a very involved farm wife who helps with feeding and milking the dairy herd. At one of the 15 calf hutches, she is with a 3-week old calf.

Allen Kaufman built this alleyway and stream bank crossing several years ago with help and guidance from the Somerset Conservation District. It is solid underneath.

Herbicide-Treated Mulches May Provide Good Weed Control

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Mulches pre-treated with herbicides may provide a new, better way to control weeds in nurseries.

Hannah Mathers, an Ohio State University Extension nursery and landscape specialist, along with graduate student Luke Case, is studying the effect of chemically treated mulches on ornamental plants.

The researchers are trying to determine whether a type of mulch, pre-treated with a specific herbicide, would be an effective alternative to applying chemicals directly onto the soil or plant.

Mathers said there are problems associated with herbicide use in container production, including improper calibration, herbicide run-off from plastic or gravel, and the need for multiple applications.

"As with other crops, off-site movement of pesticides through herbicide leaching, run-off and spray drift is a concern facing nursery growers," said Mathers. "In addition, many container nurseries make three to five herbicide applications annually, resulting in significant non-target herbicide loss."

Previous studies indicate that depending on the growth habit and container spacing, non-target loss (herbicide falling between pots) can be as high as 86 percent.

Mathers and Case are evaluating whether the use of mulches pre-treated with herbicides reduces off-site movement and increases pre-emergent efficacy and duration. They are also studying the effect chemically treated mulches have on overall plant phytotoxicity.

"We speculate the mulch binds the herbicide up and acts as a slow-release carrier, releasing the herbicide over the entire growing season," said Mathers. "There is no direct application of herbicides on the soil or the plant, and the mulch itself determines how much of the chemical is applied to the surface."

The project, funded by the Horticultural Research Institute, Ohio Research Endowment, and Scarff's Nursery in the Dayton/Springfield area, is a spinoff of research Mathers conducted in Oregon that showed good weed control and low phytotoxicity with pre-treated Douglas fir bark.

The current project, which began in late June, focuses on mulches typically found in Ohio, including pine, palletized recycled paper (PennMulch'), cypress, hardwood, rice hulls and cocoa beans.

Each type of mulch was treated with one of two types of herbicides, Surflan or Flumioxazin (not yet registered for ornamentals).

Mathers and Case will conduct three trials. One will track the performance of the herbicide-treated mulches over the normal life of herbicides, 40-45 days. Another trial will measure the effectiveness of the herbicide-treated mulches for the duration of the growing season, and a third will measure the effectiveness of pre-treated mulches into the next growing season.

Mathers hopes that if an effective herbicide-treated mulch is found, a company will be willing to market the product. "This could become something big. The product has potential beyond container plants. The ultimate market is the larger landscape industry. It's something the green industry is really interested in right now."

Agroterrorism Measure Sent to Governor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Legislature has approved a measure sponsored by state Sen. Noah Wenger (R-36) to combat the threat of agroterrorism, moving Senate Bill 816 to the governor's desk less than two months after its introduction.

"The Legislature's quick action on the bill indicates how seriously we are treating this potential threat to Pennsylvania's livestock," said Wenger, explaining that agroterrorism is the deliberate infection of farm animals with contagious diseases in order to harm the economy.

Senate Bill 816 was developed in response to the recent outbreak of foot and mouth disease and continued concern over mad cow disease in Europe. Wenger said the highly contagious foot and mouth disease, in particular, could be easily transmitted to local livestock by someone with malicious intent.

"With passage of this bill, we'll have strong penalties in place to discourage anyone from purposely infecting Pennsylvania's farm animals," Wenger said.

He explained that Senate Bill 816 would establish criminal and civil penalties for the deliberate spread of virulent pathogens such as those that cause foot and mouth disease and Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy (BSE), commonly known as mad cow disease. Along with facing jail sentences, violators would be required to pay farmers restitution for losses related to the destruction of livestock, soil testing and cleanup.

Wenger noted that Pennsylvania farms house $1.54 billion worth of cattle, hogs and sheep, and $634 million worth of poultry.

"Agriculture is Pennsylvania's number on industry," Wenger said. "We must take strong steps to protect it, and to discourage those who would deliberately damage our economy with an act of agroterrorism."

Bill To Extend Crop Insurance Subsidy Sent To Governor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The House and Senate have approved a measure that will provide farmers with continued access to state-subsidized crop insurance, according to state Sen. Noah Wenger (R-36), who sponsored the bill.

Wenger said Senate Bill 793 — now awaiting the governor's signature — will amend the 1999 Drought, Orchard and Nursery Indemnity and Flood Relief Act, which provided $60 million for emergency drought relief and $5.6 million in crop insurance assistance to Pennsylvania farmers.

Of that money, a total of approximately $3.5 million remains unspent. Wenger said the money will be placed in the state's General Fund on June 30 unless the governor signs the measure and extends the 1999 law.

"This funding is a tool that we can use to encourage more farmers to purchase private crop insurance — as opposed to relying upon expensive taxpayer-funded relief efforts when disaster strikes," Wenger said. "In the long run, it's a smart investment for the state to make."

Senate Bill 793 will allow all remaining crop insurance funds to remain in the program for use until the money is exhausted. The bill will also transfer unallocated drought relief funds to the crop insurance program.

In addition, the measure will extend the "sunset date" for the state's orchard and nursery indemnity program to June 30, 2002. Wenger explained that the program was designed to help farmers hurt by the recent outbreak of plum pox. Initially supported by $2 million in state funds, a remaining $500,000 is also set to lapse into the General Fund on June 30.

"The Agriculture Department needs to have this money at its disposal in the event that they have to address outbreaks in the future," Wenger said.

Maryland Youth Enters Cattle At National Junior Angus Show

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Cortney Hill-Dukehart, Sykesville, Md., will exhibit Angus cattle at the 2001 National Junior Angus Show at the National Western Stock Show Complex in Denver, Colo., July 9-14, reports Richard L. Spader, executive vice president of the American Angus Association.

Cortney, a junior member of the American Angus Association with headquarters in St. Joseph, Mo., is one of the 650 Angus breeders from 36 states who have entered a total of 1,335 head in the show.

Alex Dees, Yuma, Arizona, and Eldon Krebs, Gordon, Nebraska, will judge the breeding cattle. Randy Perry, Clovis, California, will judge the registered Angus steer show.

The National Junior Angus Show is the largest single-breed registered beef cattle show in the world. This year's event will host a beef cook-off, team sales competition, public speaking, photography, graphic design and poster contests in addition to the traditional cattle show.

The National Junior Angus Show is sponsored by the American Angus Association and the National Junior Angus Association (NJAA). The NJAA serves a membership of more than 10,500 junior Angus breeders in the U.S. and Canada.

Fifth Annual Pedal To Preserve A Success

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster Farmland Trust's Fifth Annual Pedal to Preserve June 23 at Donegal High School was a success.

Cyclists chose from three routes through some of western Lancaster County's most beautiful farmland: a six-mile "family ride," a 20-mile ride, or a new 52-mile ride.

The ride passed by more than a dozen farms that have been preserved by Lancaster Farmland Trust and the Agricultural Preserve Board. Water stops, snacks, and support vehicles were provided along the route. All riders received a free T-shirt and water bottle. Riders also raised extra funds and won prizes by getting pledges for miles traveled.

Lancaster Farmland Trust, now in its 13th year, is a private, nonprofit organization working to preserve the rich and productive farmland of Lancaster County, to support good stewardship of the land, and to encourage a thriving agricultural economy, recognizing that our farm heritage enriches the lives of all citizens.

Beef Information Showcased At National Dairy Shows

DENVER, Colo. — Dairy producers will have the opportunity to learn more about beef checkoff programs as Holstein, Jersey, and Guernsey breeders from across the nation gather at their respective conventions this month.

At beef checkoff exhibits at the Holstein USA, American Jersey Cattle Association, and the American Guernsey Association conventions producers will find information on dairy beef quality assurance, new beef and veal products, along with recipes and annual reports.

"Dairy producers supply almost 20 percent of the beef in this nation," says John Roberts, Vermont dairy producer and Cattlemen's Beef Board member. "These national shows are an excellent venue for us to talk with them about their checkoff funded programs."

The Holstein USA convention takes place June 28-30 in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. The Jersey and Guernsey meetings are June 21-23 in Green Bay, Wisc., and Minneapolis, Minn., respectively. State beef councils from Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota are assisting in the effort.

NCGA Testimony Details Producers' Concerns On Conservation Programs

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) recently called for the reauthorization of the next farm bill's conservation title during testimony before the House Subcommittee on Conservation, Credit, Rural Development and Research.

Bill Horan, an NCGA Corn Board member and a farmer from Rockwell City, Iowa, voiced commodity groups' support for "voluntary, incentive-based conservation programs that past farm bills have created."

Horan's testimony represents the views of a coalition of producers' groups composed of NCGA, the American Soybean Association, the National Association of Wheat Growers, the National Cotton Council and the National Barley Growers Association.

In his testimony, Horan told the committee:

- Conservation programs must be voluntary and incentive-based and support working land as opposed to the inefficient land-idling programs of the past.
- Farmers have made good progress by way of the environment in the previous farm bills and now is the time for a new generation of conservation policy.
- There is an urgent need for additional funding for voluntary, incentive-based conservation spending in the next farm bill.

Horan concluded: "We share the conservation goals outlined in this statement and the belief that the conservation title should work in conjunction with a fully funded commodity title...USDA technical assistance, local watershed activities and cost-share programs are a proven approach to addressing environmental challenges. We support continuing this conservation commitment to help undertake conservation practices on productive farmland through the reauthorization of the conservation title of the next Farm Bill."

Beef Cattle To Do List

ITHACA, N.Y. — Mike Baker, Cornell beef extension specialist, offers the following list of activities as a guide to managing the beef herd through June and July.

- Continue early lactation rations. Cows should be gaining weight to breed back on time.
- Breed heifers one heat period before the cows. This provides extra time for heifers to recover to calve with the cowherd the following year.
- Start fly control program. Pour-on, spray, fly tags, backrubbers and face flips are possibilities. Do not use feed through insecticides. These feed additives kill beneficial as well as detrimental insects. These beneficial insects are important for natural control of insect pests as well as critical for the break down of manure into nutrients vital for optimum grass growth.
- After first cutting or grazing, consider fertilizing with nitrogen to maximize aftermath growth.
- Continue to monitor body condition of first and second calf heifers. If they drop below 4.5, they should receive supplemental nutrition.
- The breeding season should last no more than 60 days. Make plans for keeping bull separate before and after the 60 day breeding season.

For more information on beef production, contact your local Cooperative Extension office or call (607) 255-5923.

Workshop Gives Educators Agriculture Experience

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

ROBESONIA and READING (Berks Co.) — Approximately 16 teachers and extension educators will begin this coming school year with new, real-life information about agriculture they gleaned during a weeklong course coordinated by the Berks County extension agency.

Many of the teachers, who taught subjects from science to consumer science to special education, were from the Berks County area. The workshop, "Today's Food and Fiber Industry," featured visits to farms and businesses related to agriculture.

The on-farm tour provided an excellent opportunity to not only see farming operations firsthand but also discuss environmental and production issues with farm and business owners and operators.

Monday's agenda included visits to two dairy farms and two food processing plants. Beef was featured on Tuesday, with a visit to a cow/calf farm in Strausstown and finishing farm operation in Shartlesville in addition to a tour through a processing plant, distribution center, and store in the Reading area.

Teachers and extension agents visited a wide variety of farming operations during the workshop. Here they examine the New Zealand style parlor at Forrest Stricker's operation.

A Hamburg duck farm followed by a visit to an orchard and auction in Leesport rounded out the day on Wednesday.

Thursday the educators visited an egg layer farm in Myerstown followed by an egg processing plant in Ephrata, then a tour through an equipment company, greenhouse, and brewery in Adamstown.

On Friday the group went to Blandon to tour a mushroom growing and processing plants and a swine farm in Fleetwood before wrapping up the week with a tour through a vegetable farm.

Dairy Spotlight

The tour allowed the educators to see variety in producer's approach to dairying.

At a dairy farm owned by Mark and Nancy Wolfskill, along with David Wolfskill, workshop participants observed the operation's new milk production technology.

The cows are milked with a newer technique — from behind he animal. Swinging dividers make up the stalls for the animals which are restrained in the front by gates which swing upward. A trough catches manure.

Twelve computers above each cow can bring up the information about each cow housed on the computer in the nearby office. Short-term and long-term production averages, the number of days the animal is pregnant, or her days in milk are readily available as the computer reads the identifying code from a transponder on the animal's leg.

When the animals exit they also go through a transponder reader. An operator can punch in a code which swings a gate at the proper time to funnel the animals that need to be bred into a separate holding area.

The transponder also records the animal's number of steps per hour. A spike in activity, along with records of the animal's cycle, can be a heat detection tool.

Wolfskill also demonstrated the spraying system he developed with his plumber that operates on a timer to spray the floor, usually between groups of cows.

The parallel parlor is safer and saves the milker's knees and back, said Nancy Wolfskill, who helps with the twice-a-day, 4 o'clock milkings.

The Wolfskills cool the milk from the over 100-degree temperature, when it is straight out of the cow, to 37 degrees with water — three gallons of water rush past the pipes to one gallon of milk. The cows then drink the water which has warmed 10 degrees. According to Wolfskill the animals prefer warm water and will drink larger quantities of warm, rather than cold, water.

Teacher's attendance at the event was a positive step, since many students do not know where food comes from, according to Wolfskill. "It's important that we start to get the message across to younger generations," said David.

A Pasture Dairy

Forrest Stricker's organic grazing dairy, also in Robesonia, was the next stop for the tour. Stricker, his brother, sons, and employees operate 187 acres on the original farm plus 190 acres of adjoining land to milk 100-110 Holsteins and Jerseys.

The fields, divided into one-acre paddocks, are intensively rotationally grazed as the animals are moved approximately every 12 hours.

A recent addition to the farm, a New Zealand parlor, is a low-cost, open and comfortable facility, said Stricker, who also milks the cows from behind. The parlor includes 16 milkers, which the operator swings from one side to the other as the cows finish milking. With the system one person can milk the herd in an hour.

The milk is processed in New York but sold locally.

Holsteins and Jerseys peacefully coexist and work side by side at Forrest Stricker's pasture dairy operation. Stricker has crossbred the animals to utilize the smaller body size and heat hardiness of the Jerseys along with the high milk production of the Holsteins.

He hopes to expand to a milking herd of 160 cows, which he estimates will take one person an hour and a half to milk.

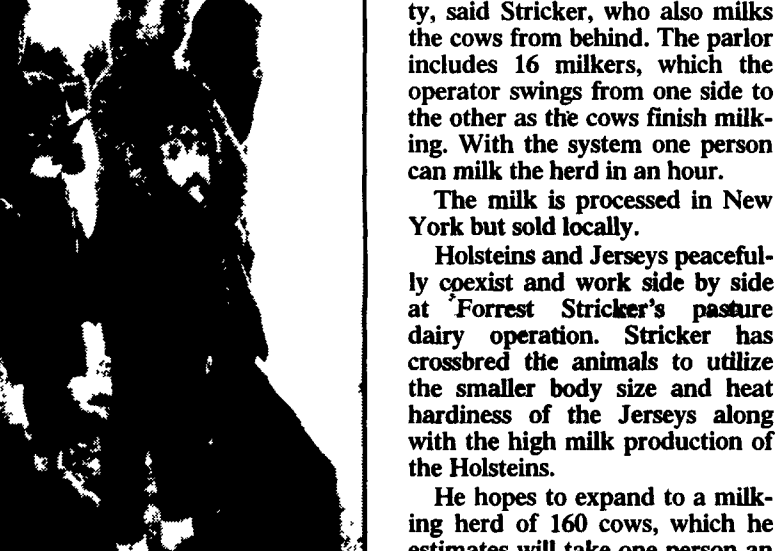
He began the switch to organic, which was completed in 1999, to take advantage of the premiums offered in the niche market.

Milk Processing

Corporate headquarters of Clover Farms Dairy food processing plant was another tour stop on Monday.

Five silos hold 260,000 gallons of milk for the plant. The milk can be held for 48 hours in the silos before it must be bottled or made into cheese.

When the milk arrives at the plant a sample is taken from each container and tested for antibiotics. A positive test result can be traced back to the individual producer.



Cows on Forrest Stricker's grazing operation are getting their necessary nutrition on sudan grass and brassicas.

The pasteurizer heats the milk to 172 degrees for three minutes. It is separated while it is hot according to the type of milk (skim, two percent, etc.) desired for packages.

The heavy cream goes to an ice cream plant in Lancaster or to restaurants in cities. The milk is chilled and put into the silos.

One million pounds is processed every day, beginning at 7 or 8 p.m., before the equipment is resanitized and readied for the next round of processing.

One hundred and six families ship to the processor, which is a kosher plant. Clover Farms also processes juices and makes iced tea.

Quality control methods include, among others, filling cartons with dye to check for leaks and laboratory taste tests each day. Shelf life is also tested in the laboratory.

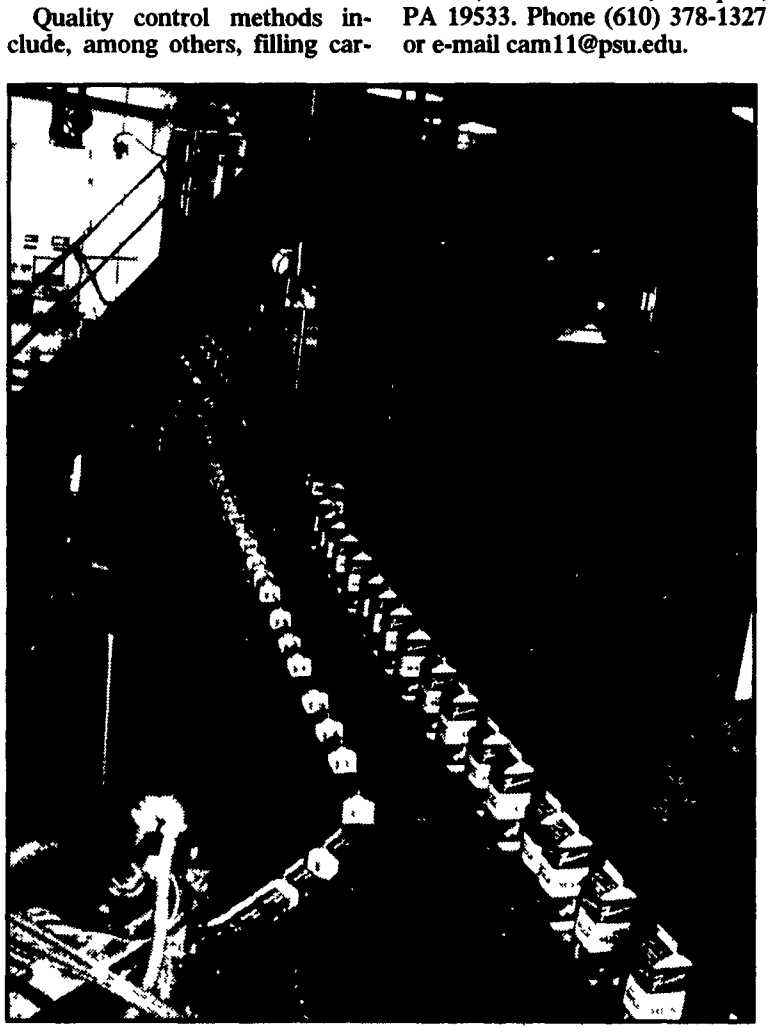
Seminar Goals

Workshop organizers believe information the teachers gathered during the day will work its way into next year's curriculum. One teacher "noticed that farming is more of a way of life than an occupation," yet realized that this chosen way of life must be balanced with profitability of the farm.

Previously, said workshop organizer Clyde Myers, Berks County extension agent, teachers were educated in shorter Ag In the Classroom seminars which the extension service conducted six times a year.

For more information on either organizing or attending a possible future course, which counts for three credits, contact Clyde Myers, Penn State Cooperative Extension, Berks County Ag Center, P.O. Box 520, Leesport, PA 19533. Phone (610) 378-1327 or e-mail cam11@psu.edu.

The Wolfskill family's new parallel parlor allows them to milk the cows from behind. Additionally the computers above each cow allow easy, extensive information access for each animal.



Workshop participants saw the start-to-finish process as they left the dairy farms to take a tour at Clover Farms Dairy Processing Plant, Reading, which processes one million pounds of milk a day.

FORAGING AROUND

The newsletter of the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council (PFGC), includes several farm features with a focus on pasture quality. The special summer section will be included with Lancaster Farming July 14 Another section, the fall PFGC issue, is scheduled Sept. 15.

Conservation Proposed As Centerpiece For U.S. Farm Policy

ANKENY, Iowa — Citing missing opportunities in current farm policy, the Soil and Water Conservation Society (SWCS) offered testimony recently before the U.S. House Agriculture Subcommittee on Conservation, Credit, Rural Development and Research urging Congress and the Bush Administration to enact a new farm bill that puts more emphasis on rewarding the nation's farmers and ranchers for their conservation efforts and less on what they do or do not produce in the way of agricultural commodities.

"The next farm bill must be about more than the price of corn, or wheat, or cotton, or rice, or any other agricultural commodity," said Craig Cox, executive vice-president of SWCS. "There is growing public skepticism about how well traditional commodity-based subsidies are functioning. We need to find a new way to keep people who work the land on the land."

Cox suggested that conservation must become a major priority in any new agricultural policy. Most Americans appreciate the abundant, safe, affordable supply of food, which they now have. But Americans are becoming just as concerned about having healthy soil, clean air and water, and improved fish and wildlife habitat. Cox added, "We need to forge a new way of thinking about agriculture and the environment. We need a bold new approach that brings together those who depend on the land for their living and those who are concerned about their environment."

The new policy, he said, should go beyond supporting only those producers who grow crops supported by federal programs. Support should be open to all farmers and ranchers, in all parts of the country, and reward them for their work as caretakers of much of the nation's land, water, and wildlife.

A new report, prepared to inspire new ideas for the 2002 farm bill, was created with participation from farmers, ranchers, and conservationists. SWCS held a series of workshops across the country to engage those interested in soil, water, and wildlife issues and used their knowledge and experience to craft ideas that will be useful to elected and federal officials. In its conclusion, SWCS calls on federal policymakers to spend at least $8 billion annually on conservation — $5 billion to strengthen existing conservation programs and $3 billion for a new stewardship-based farm and ranch program.

"At least $5 billion a year — double our current spending — is needed," Cox stressed, "to expand existing conservation programs, with most of the new money going to programs that provide technical and financial assistance to help farmers and ranchers do conservation on the land they use to produce food and fiber."

"About 85 cents of every conservation dollar is now spent to take land out of production for conservation," Cox said. "We need to spend more to help farmers and ranchers keep producing, but in an environmentally sound way."

Strengthening existing conservation programs, however, is not enough, Cox added. Farm policy needs to change too.

Traditional farm policies that subsidize a handful of commodities should be balanced with a new option based on land stewardship, an option that pays producers to invest their land, labor, and capital to produce a better environment.

"A new farm program, based on land stewardship, could help many of the farmers and ranchers who don't benefit from current commodity program subsidies," Cox said. He noted that in 1999 almost half of the subsidies went to eight percent of farms operating 32 percent of the land in farms and ranches.

A stewardship-based program could help "keep all the rest of those farmers and ranchers on the land and produce a better environment for all Americans at the same time," he said. "Farmers and ranchers and taxpayers would all gain if room were made in farm policy for a stewardship-based program."

Funding for conservation programs has been flat for the past 15 years, Cox said. At the same time, the environmental challenges facing agriculture have multiplied.

"Environmental performance is becoming a key determinant of the commercial viability of agriculture, Cox said. Producers feeding livestock and irrigating crops or pasture already are facing questions about the environmental consequences of their operations, he added.

Among the other recommendations in the SWCS report are proposals to create a Conservation Partner Fund that would allow states greater flexibility in the use of USDA programs and funds to meet state and local conservation needs; simplify program delivery to landowners; expand the scope of federal land retirement programs, particularly for conservation buffer practices; and continue the use of conservation compliance provisions for those producers who participate in federal commodity programs.

The W.K. Kellogg Foundation supported SWCS's agricultural conservation policy education project financially, with additional support from the Joyce Foundation, The Farm Foundation and USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service.

THE LEADER IN THE FIELD

From Poland To Pennsylvania, 4-H Expands Horizons

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — 4-H youth from all across Poland are experiencing similarities and differences in cultures as they explore parts of America, work on their own 4-H project, and serve in 4-H camps as part of an international exchange.

Fifteen youth and two chaperones are exploring Pennsylvania and visiting Washington, D.C., while another 4-H group from Poland is visiting Michigan.

Life, leadership, and decision-making skills — skills traditionally taught in 4-H courses, are also taught in Poland, however some differences do exist, said exchange organizer Connie Rutt, who has nine years of experience in organizing the international exchange.

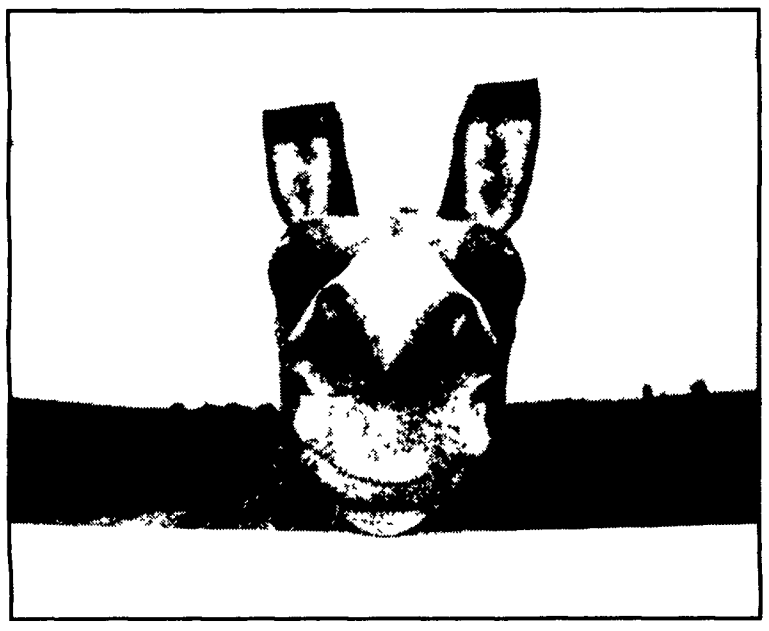
"All Polish 4-Hers are doing a national project about environmental protection," said Rutt. "All of the students will go home and write a paper about it."

Under the umbrella of environmental protection, students could chose their own studies of focus. Some students, for example, visited an incinerator or recycling facility while others studied plants or water quality during their time in the U.S.

Their time in Lancaster provided students with a time to live with a host family and experience a trolley ride, pretzel factory, and rolling countryside farms.

The 4-Hers three-week trip began in Warren County, where they participated in activities including working at a 4-H camp.

The group of Polish 4-Hers took time out of their three-week touring schedule to enjoy an American picnic with hamburgers, hot dogs, and s'mores over the fire at Ken and Connie Rutt's dairy farm. The students also enjoyed seeing fireflies, which Poland does not have.



The Rutt's resident donkey enjoyed the extra attention from the picnic-goers.

Maryland Fairs Launch Internet Entry Service

TIMONIUM, Md. — Open class livestock exhibitors at the Maryland State Fair and The Great Frederick Fair are now able to enter their exhibits on-line, and only one entry form will have to be completed to register for either fair.

This new and innovative service has come about after months of developing standardized open class livestock classes between the two fairs, thus creating a standardized open class livestock entry form that enables exhibitors to only have to complete one entry form instead of the multiple ones now required.

"What we're trying to do is making entry time less time consuming and much more convenient," said officials from both fairs.

As of now, Maryland State Fair and The Great Frederick Fair are the only two fairs in the state offering this service for the 2001 fair season. The Montgomery County Agricultural Fair and other fairs from Maryland are expected to come on-line with the same capability in 2002.

The Maryland Association of Agricultural Fairs and Shows Website at www.maafs.com, is the central location for exhibitors to complete and submit their entries. However, on-line users can also access the entry form capability from the individual fairs' Websites and marylandstatefair.com or www.thegreatfrederickfair.com. At the on-line entry level, exhibitors will virtually click and choose which fairs they want their entries submitted to. Entry payments on the secured site will be required and capable via credit card, or payment by check.

In addition to the open class livestock on-line capability, both The Maryland State Fair and The Great Frederick Fair will offer on-line entries for the Home Arts and Farm and Garden Departments. On-line exhibitors will be able to use the express line when they bring their entries to The Great Frederick Fair.

On-line entries for the Maryland State Fair will be accepted until Aug. 1 and Aug. 15 for The Great Frederick Fair. For more information, contact the Maryland State Fair at (410) 252-0200 or The Great Frederick Fair at (301) 663-5895.

'Garden Spot' Website Launched

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension in Wayne County recently launched an informational website for gardeners' and homeowners' called 'The Garden Spot.'

At the site you'll find seasonal gardening calendars, information on growing fruits, vegetables, lawns, ornamentals, annual and perennial flowers, and a listing of gardening-related events in and around Wayne County.

"We designed the website to address many of the gardening-related questions we receive from the public each year," according to extension agent Dave Messersmith. "For instance we recently received many questions about pruning ornamental trees and shrubs. Now people can go to our 'Garden Spot' website and download an excellent brochure about pruning ornamentals," says Messersmith.

The site can be found on the web at: http://wayne.extension.psu.edu/.

Requests Being Accepted For 2002 Gypsy Moth Spray Program

SUNBURY (Northumberland Co.) — There has been a rise in gypsy moth populations in some parts of Northumberland County with much of the county seeing increased numbers of the leaf-eating nuisance this past spring.

Northumberland County residents who have experienced problems with the gypsy moth caterpillars this spring can put in a request to have their property inspected for egg masses, and if they qualify, their request will be submitted to the Bureau of Forestry for the 2002 cooperative county/state gypsy moth suppression spray program.

Requests must be received by the Northumberland County Conservation District office by July 31, and district staff will inspect the properties to determine if they meet state qualifications for spraying. Inspections and evaluations will be conducted mid-August through late September.

Areas found to be eligible will be sprayed with Bt, a bacterium which infects only leaf eating caterpillars that is harmless to pets, birds, wildlife, plants and people. If you experienced a problem with gypsy moth caterpillars this spring, contact the Northumberland County Conservation District at (570) 286-7114, Ext. 4 by July 31 to receive the request form and to be placed on the request list for the 2002 cooperative gypsy moth spray program.

Milking Robot Gets The Job Done

well-trained robot. It does practically everything that a person using a conventional vacuum milker does to get the milk out of the cows and into the tank.

It also does a few things that a person cannot reasonably do.

Made in Holland and installed early this year for the first time in Pennsylvania, it is the very newest kind of milking machine.

After five months of testing the computer-controlled milker on their Newville dairy, Gordon and Amy Holl have decided they would "never go back to milking the way we used to."

One main feature of the setup is that the cows voluntarily enter the stall to be milked.

Amy Holl said that two factors draw the cows into the milking area: the pressure of milk on their udder, and the chance to eat pelleted sweet feed while being milked.

It took the herd about two weeks to adjust to the new system, with younger cows tending to catch on faster, she said. Now, most of the cows volunteer to be milked an average of three to four times per day.

One or two of the older cows had trouble making the switch and still need to be shooed into the milking stall periodically, Amy said.

Once a cow has entered the stall, the computer immediately goes to work reading radio signals from a "transponder" attached to the collar on the cow's neck. The transponder contains bits of data specific to that cow, including how much feed she is to receive while in the stall and the time of her last milking.

If the period of time since the cow's last milking is too short, then the milker is not activated and no feed is dispensed. The cow is gently and automatically pushed out of the stall.

Conversely, cows that shy away from the apparatus for too long between milkings are automatically put on an "attention list" that can easily be monitored from a computer screen in the office. The attention list gives the exact time that the cow was last milked, alerting the Holls to any possible need to encourage her to be milked.

When an eligible cow enters the milking stall, a measured amount of feed drops down a tube into a trough at the cow's head and the milking operation begins.

First, two rotating, soft-bristled rollers swing into place at the udder and wash the teats with a detergent solution and a rinse.

After the washing rollers withdraw, the four-cup milking unit takes position under the udder. A laser eye detects the location of each of the teats and the computer instructs each cup where to go until they are all attached.

If the cow shifts position during milking, a sonar detector signals to the milker to follow.

A flow detector determines when each quarter is finished milking, at which time the cups are automatically removed.

After the milking unit withdraws, a spray unit swings into place and coats the teats with a sanitary dip solution.

Finally, the head gate swings open and the cow leaves the stall to join the rest of the herd in the freestall barn or pasture.

The milking unit is programmed to be cleaned a total of seven times per day. Three of the cleanings take 15 minutes each, while the other four take three minutes.

Besides saving time and labor with routine milking chores, the robot adds a new dimension to thorough recordkeeping and early detection of mastitis.

Every time a cow is milked the computer records the "conductivity" of the milk from each quarter, indicating the salt content of the milk. Any conductivity reading that is higher than normal indicates the possibility of a mastitis infection. The conductivity reading, while measuring a different variable, has the same basic use as a somatic cell count (SCC), Gordon Holl explained.

The overall cleanliness of the milk has remained consistently good since the installation of the new milker, he said.

The computer also records the amount of milk produced by each cow at each milking.

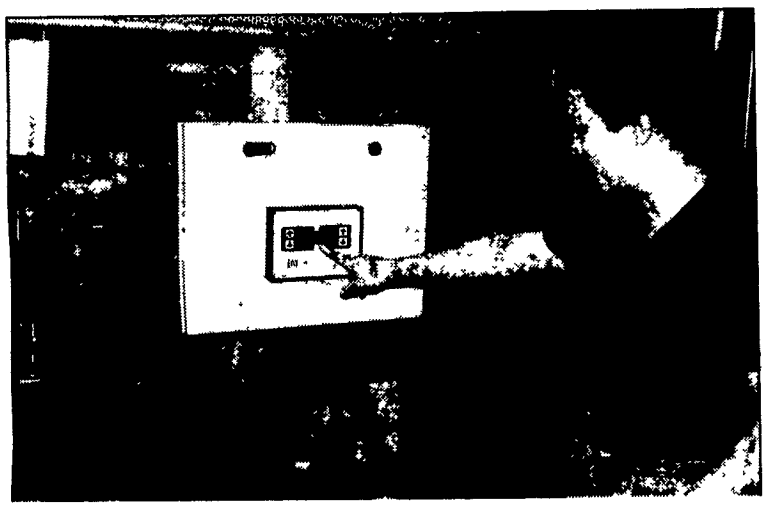
Although time savings may not be apparent in the first months of adjusting to the robotic milker, Amy Holl said that the machine allows the family to make better use of the time that they do spend in the barn.

"We have much more information (than before)," Amy said. "We are doing more in the same amount of time and can coordinate our day better."

The new setup has even made it easier to plan family activities such as having meals together, she said.

"There are so many things we didn't have the chance to do before."

Lely robotic milker technician Scott McCulloch shows the computer motherboard that runs the show.



Amy Holl points to a readout that gives information about the cow that is being milked.

Now milking about 35 Holsteins, the Holls plan to increase that number to about 65 — approximately the limit for their robotic milker to work at maximum efficiency.

The finishing touches are being put on a new freestall barn that houses the cows, feeding bunk for silage and grain, and replacement heifers as well as the new milker and bulk tank.

The Holl's Lely "Astronaut" milker is still in the testing stage before it can be granted general approval by the USDA and the Pennsylvania Department of Sanitation.

According to certified robotic milker technician Scott McCulloch, general approval for the milker won't come until 2002, but when it does, he expects to have more work than he can handle.

McCulloch, a Newville native who worked on the Holl's farm prior to becoming a milker technician, said that he went to Canada for a week to learn about robotic milkers already in operation there, as well as getting a "two week crash course" from two Lely technicians sent to the U.S. from Europe.

Amy Holl said that the only other place in the U.S. currently using robotic milkers is Wisconsin.

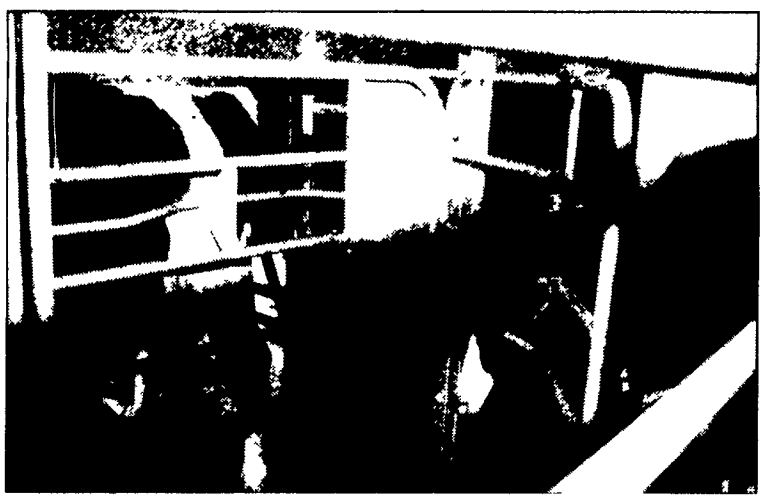
Meanwhile, more are scheduled to be installed on a farm in southern York county, she said.

At a $175,000 price, dairy farmers considering the new milking technology will certainly be taking a close look at all the factors involved.

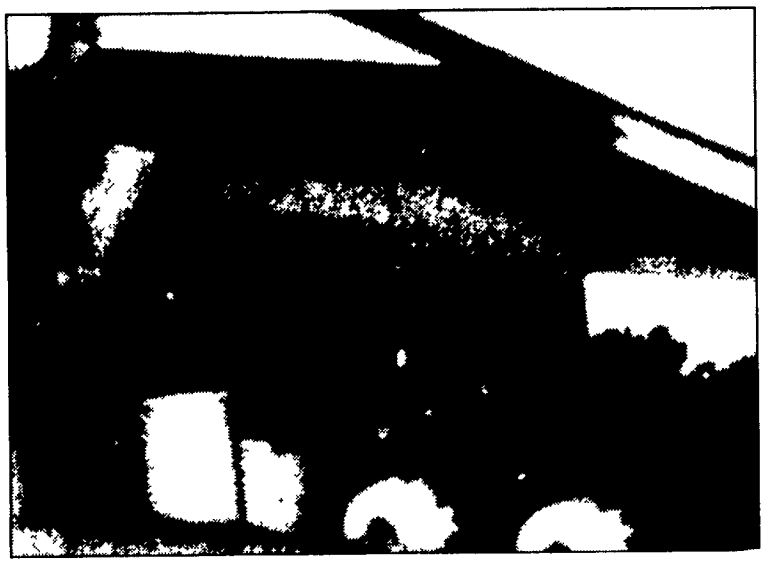
If they ask the Holls, they will get an affirmative answer about what a robot can do for their operation.

"We're very satisfied," Gordon said.

Soft-bristled rollers wash and rinse the teats before milking.



Two cows wait in line to enter the milking stall. The transponder can be seen on the collar of the cow on the right, under the number 48.



The milker has successfully attached to two of the teats while the other two cups continue to search. A laser eye detects the exact position of the teats.

Cattle On Feed 2% Higher

WASHINGTON, D.C..— Cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market in the United States for feedlots with capacity of 1,000 or more head totaled 11.24 million head on June 1, 2001, according to the National Agricultural Service (NASS). The inventory was 2 percent above June 1, 2000 and 13 percent above June 1, 1999.

Placements in feedlots during May totaled 2.37 million, 3 percent above 2000 and 16 percent above 1999. Net placements were 2.27 million.

During May, placements of cattle and calves weighing less than 600 pounds were 494,000, 600-699 pounds were 509,000, 700-799 pounds were 799,000, and 800 pounds and greater were 565,000.

Marketings of fed cattle during May totaled 2.20 million, 1 percent above 2000 and 10 percent above 1999.

Other disappearance totaled 101,000 during May, 12 percent below 2000 but 2 percent above 1999.

Historic 7 States Up 2%

Cattle on feed June 1, 2001, in the historic 7 States for feedlots with capacity of 1,000 or more head totaled 9.66 million, up 2 percent from the previous year and 13 percent above June 1, 1999.

Placements in feedlots during May totaled 2.06 million, 3 percent above 2000 and 19 percent above 1999.

Marketings during May totaled 1.88 million, 1 percent above 2000 and up 11 percent from 1999.

Other disappearance during May was 88,000 head, 4 percent above 2000 and 21 percent above 1999.

Sheep And Goat Farmers Should Plan For Easter 2002

Robert J. Melchior
Marketing Coordinator
Cornell University

ITHACA, N.Y. — Producing Easter hot house lambs and kids is a major part of the sheep and goat industry in the Northeast. Changing dates for this holiday and the division between Orthodox and Western observances can make for planning difficulties when determining when to breed.

Coming off a year when the dates for both Easter celebrations were the same (April 15), we now face the other extreme. Next year's Easter dates are March 31 for the Western observance and May 5 for the Orthodox observance.

The early date for the Western observance will require earlier breeding than last year with lambs dropping in mid January requiring ram introduction by mid August. Also tolerance for heavy lambs (50 pounds plus) at the earlier Easter sales is likely to be less resulting in poorer prices for those marketed at that time.

Orthodox Easter, on the other hand, is relatively late and while their preference for slightly heavier lambs allows for more growing time, the five week spread is so great as to require a separate breeding group to meet the needs for this holiday.

Lambs for this holiday will probably not have to be on the ground before mid February allowing for a September breeding period.

This discussion also provides an opportunity to review what these ethnic customers are looking for in their celebration feast.

Hot house lambs should be milk fed. This is usually reflected in a smooth lay of the wool coat along with a shine. This is called bloom.

Lambs with inadequate milk will have a rougher dull coat along with an expanded stomach area.

When skinned, milk fed lambs will show whiter fat deposits.

Prime lambs and kids will be smooth over the top and the backbone and well covered and smooth when the hand is pressed down on the back.

Not all breeds can consistently produce top quality hot house lambs. Large framed lambs tend to not develop thick muscle rapidly enough for this program although they frequently appear in these special Easter sales. These along with more poorly nourished lambs fall into lower quality categories and usually trade at a discount.

Top quality lambs have been in short supply. A review of three graded Easter lamb and goat sales in New York (2001) provided the following distribution: Lambs: blue — 26 percent; red — 54 percent; and green — 20 percent. Kids: blue — 47 percent; red — 50 percent; and green 3 percent.

Clearly, there is a great deal of improvement to be made in providing the quality that we should be offering into the market. The blue mark in this grading equates to prime and the red to choice while green should be relegated to a feeder category. Blue prices exceeded red by 20 to 30 cents per pound for both lambs and kids.

What does it take to produce a quality hot house lamb? It will take a ewe milking heavily, lambs with easy access to a bountiful creep and an uncrowded pen. All of these prescriptions are given in relative terms so that if you are producing lower quality lambs, you need to improve in one or more of these areas.

[The Northeast Sheep and Goat Marketing Program was established to improve marketing opportunities for producers in the Northeast. It is funded under a USDA grant obtained by Cornell University resulting from the "201" action initiated by the American Sheep Industry Association (ASI). Research Agency Sequences Genome Of Pathogen

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently announced that researchers now have important new information about the genetic makeup of Listeria, a bacterium that is known to cause serious food-borne illness. This new information will help in the research of ways to reduce the incidence of food contamination and illness from this bacterium.

The project is a collaboration between USDA's Agricultural Research Service and The Institute for Genomic Research (TIGR) in Rockville, Maryland. Similar to efforts to understand the structure of the human genome, the researchers began examining the complete genetic makeup of a Listeria monocytogenes serotype 4b strain in January. The researchers have now finished the initial phase, in which individual fragments of the genome have been examined. The next step is to assemble these fragments into a complete genomic map of the bacterium.

A serotype 4b strain of Listeria monocytogenes was selected for the project because most foodborne listeriosis outbreaks, and 50 percent of sporadic cases, are caused by strains of this serotype.

Sequencing the Listeria genome will help researchers better understand how this bacterium persists in animals, in and on foods processing plants, and affects people.

USDA continues to make efforts to prevent contamination by Listeria, and other harmful pathogens, in ready-to-eat meat and poultry products. Recently, USDA proposed food safety measures applicable to all ready-to-eat and all partially heat-treated meat and poultry products, as well as environmental testing requirements intended to reduce the incidence of Listeria monocytogenes in processed meat and poultry products. The comment period has been extended until July 18.

Listeria is widespread in the environment and is associated with some ready-to-eat food products such as hot dogs, lunch meats, smoked fish, and certain types of soft cheeses.

Guess Who Won The Dairy Recipe Drawing

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Prizes will be mailed this week to 30 people who participated in Lancaster Farming's annual Dairy Recipe Drawing.

Although only a few of the hundreds of people who entered the contest receive a prize, everyone is a winner. You're a winner because you know the nutritional value and taste benefits of including dairy products in every meal. You're a winner because you sent in your favorite recipe for others to enjoy. And you're a winner because now you have hundreds of new recipes to try.

Thanks to all who made this contest udderly successful. Here is a listing of the winners:

Donna Martin, Ephrata; Lisa Hassler, Bethel; Ellen Martin, Hagerstown, Md.; Michele Good; Beavertown; Rosella Oberholtzer, Mifflinburg; Lori Bowen, Wytheville, Va.; Tina Keiter, McAlsterville; Glenda Weaver, Manheim; Johnetta Pruitt, Boyce, Va.; Mrs. William Snyder, Bloomingdale, N.J.; Susan Hess, Marietta; Mindy Merlina, Duncannon; Elaine Martin, Ephrata; Vera Martin, Bowers; Pearl Hoover, Manheim; Marianne Valentine, Clearville; Norma Swanger, Lebanon; Alicia Knab, Hollidaysburg; Anita Whipple, Towanda; Anna Mae Conley, Mount Joy; Aggie Norman, Liberty; Norma VanHorn, Middleburg; Darla Weaver, Quarryville; Darlene Heisey, Mt. Pleasant Mills; Mrs. Richard Brubaker, Myerstown; Mary Courtright, Lake Ariel; Linda Martin, Mifflinburg; Esther Mishler, Hollsopple; Mrs. Leroy Burkholder, Ephrata; and Lena Burkholder, Mifflinburg.

No, these children did not win a prize in Lancaster Farming's annual Dairy Recipe Drawing, but that won't dampen their enthusiasm for drinking milk and enjoying dairy products. From left are Taylor Kuhns, 7; Jaylesha Hess, 4; Chase Kuhns, 11; Johnnie Hess, 2; and Kirsten Kuhns, 9. Parents of the Hess children are John and Jaylene Hess, Gettysburg, and parents of the Kuhns children are Wade and Marsha Kuhns, Reedsville.

Ancient Karakul Breed Thrives In Lebanon County

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

NEWMANSTOWN (Lebanon Co.) — Raised on a farm, Lynn McKay's love for animals never diminished after moving off the farm. When she and her husband Dwight purchased a secluded 11-acre plot near the Lancaster—Lebanon County line in 1993, Lynn relished the chance to raise a few animals.

Because she enjoyed spinning wool, she considered breeding rabbits, Angora goats, and llamas. For one reason or another, the love connection didn't click until she discovered Karakul sheep.

This rare, specialty breed produces a coarse, double-coated fiber (a fine down undercoat covered by a coat of guard hair) used to make Persian rugs in central Asian countries. The breeds most noticeable characteristic is its broad tail, which is actually where fat is stored resulting in a lean meat.

Although most people in this area know little about the breed, the McKays hope to change that. Lynn's husband is just as enthusiastic about the breed as she is. They have 19 registered head and have made provisions to raise at least 35-40 breeding ewes on their farmette named Caledonia in honor of their Scottish heritage.

There is some evidence that the Karakul may be the oldest breed of domesticated sheep. The McKays believe the Karakul breed is very similar to sheep Noah took into the ark.

For many centuries, the Karakul breed has been an excellent

Raising the Karakuls is a family affair for Dwight and Lynn McKay with son Paul Rhineer, left. The ancient breed of fat-tailed sheep are raised for both meat and fiber used in Persian rugs. On the farm, the McKay's use perimeter fencing with easily moveable panels to enable grazing areas to be expanded or condensed.

Young Couple Combine Strengths To Farm

Of their operation, Mike Davis said, "We're just small farmers trying to make it." His advice to other young guys considering farming full time: "I say if anyone wants to farm, they should go for it." Mike's wife Angie (Werley) Davis grew up on a dairy farm and served as both Berks County and Pennsylvania dairy princess. Together the couple's backgrounds in both production and promotional agriculture guide them in establishing a successful dairy operation. Angie combines caring for their six-month-old daughter, Mikala, while working part time in dairy promotion.

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Growing up a few miles apart, Angie (Werley) and Mike Davis each took different paths to establish a strong dairy farming background and ended up together when they married about two years ago.

Now the two are combining their strengths to run a successful dairying operation.

Both had been members of the same 4-H dairy club, where Angie forged a strong friendship with Mike's sister Jen. Mike, who is five years older than Angie, considered her a pest during those 4-H years. When Angie turned 18 years old; however, Mike noticed that "little pest" had grown into an attractive peer he wanted to date.

Within the next few years, Angie began her reign as the Berks County Dairy Princess and went on to win the state dairy princess title. She also studied dairy and animal science at Penn State from where she was graduated.

In the meantime, Mike was getting an hands-on education by establishing a dairy farm in partnership with his brother, Jeff, and dad. The unique part about Mike's involvement in dairy farming is that he did not grow up on a dairy farm.

His parents, Ray and Francis, had a small farmette where their children raised 4-H animals. About the time the brothers graduated from high school, they both had a number of dairy animals from their 4-H projects and knew they wanted to go into full-time dairy farming.

Starting off farming without a family farm is difficult. But the parents wanted to help their sons realize their dreams. The parents purchased a small 35-acre farm. By renting additional acreage and slowly increasing their herd size the brothers now milk 60 Holsteins and grow corn silage, haylage, and high moisture corn used in the total mixed rations.

Younger sister Jen also has a part in the farming operation. She takes care for the calves on her parents' farmette about five miles apart. Jen is also an ad representative for a farm paper and a dairy extension assistant for Berks County.

"She's always been following after me," Mike said of Angie, who not only tagged after him during their childhood, but in other ways also. After the Davis family were named Berks County Farm Family of the Year, Angie's family (parents Phillip and Donna Werley) received the same honor the following year. Jen was named Berks County dairy princess in 1995, and Angie in 1966.

Sharing many of the same ag-related experiences results in having many of the same friends and a strong assessment of what needs to be done to have a successful dairy operation.

The farm has two houses on it. Mike and Angie live in the larger one and Jeff in the smaller one.

The registered herd is raised for show and two full sisters are used for flushing and two bulls as AI studs.

On the farm, Mike is in charge of milking, herd health, breeding, and vet work. Jeff is in charge of feeding and field work.

The sons' dad has retired from his full-time job and now helps full time on the farm. Their mother takes care of the farm billing.

Mike said that he looks forward to the two hour sessions of milking because it's a relaxing time. His wife jokingly said she will remind him of that the next time he complains.

In addition to full-time on the farm, Mike serves as a relief serviceman for Select Sires.

Angie, who grew up on a 130-head dairy farm, has 15 head that continues as part of her dad's herd because there isn't room to move her animals to the Davis farm. She and her husband hope to find larger facilities for the herd.

"But farm prices are so high—everything goes for development," Mike said. Farmers in the area are working to establish an ag security area.

Since both Angie and Jen served as dairy princesses, they know first-hand the importance of dairy promotion. "Promotion is a whole different aspect from production. Both are needed," Angie said.

Jen said, "Many girls don't like to make the commitment to become a dairy princess because they think they are too busy. But the benefits are well worth it — just the public speaking experience alone is worth it."

Angie said, "Being dairy princess introduced me to a lot of people, and really opened doors of opportunity for me. You don't realize the impact it (being dairy princess) has on your life until after the year is over."

Angie and Mike have a six-month-old daughter Mikala, whoes care leaves little time for Angie to help in the barn, but she continues to keep a hand in dairy promotion. She works part time out of her home for ADC-DC. She sets up summer promotions for Maryland and Delaware State Fairs and for Ag Progress. In addition, she does some work for Mid-East.

On the county level, Angie is chairman and Jen is publicity chairman for the Berks County Dairy Promotion Committee.

All members of the Davis family are also active in the local Grange and in the Holstein Association.

While many of his peers have gone into other careers, Mike thinks he has made the best choice despite the frustrations of long hours and low milk prices. He said, "I like working in the open and being my own boss. I'll never be a city guy."

Although his sister Jen has a full-time job elsewhere, she agrees with her brother's career choice and wishes she had more time to work on the farm.

"I always want to stay connected to farming," Jen said.

As farmers, they Davis family say they often look at things differently than the average person. Always amazing to them are the comments newscasters often make. Recently, after three weeks without rain, a newscaster was lamenting that people won't be able to mow their lawns due to a rainy weekend.

"Who cares about grass? It's the crops that need rain," Mike said. Fresh in his mind is the drought from several years ago. "We made it through that one, but we don't want to go through another one," Mike said.

The Davis family looks forward to spending a week at each year's state Farm Show. Mike said, "I'm the main fitter, the girls (Angie and Jen) are the washers."

Of their operation, Mike said, "We're just small farmers trying to make it. I say if anyone wants to farm, they should go for it."

Do You Suffer From Fibromyalgia?

When I was introduced to New Image I was 50 pounds over weight and suffered from fibromyalgia I was so depressed and in pain the majority of the time I was taking steroids and four other medications, one of which made me so 'groggy' I could hardly get out of bed and another gave me ulcers I began taking New Image secretly because I thought my family would make fun of me After a month, I discovered I had lost eight pounds and seven inches Wow! Then it dawned on me, I was feeling better, the depression and pain were gone In two months I was off all medications "I feel SUPERIFIC!" Now, two years later I have lost 43 pounds and 30 inches Thank you New Image for giving me a new life again Judy Swift - Mt Washington, KY

On Being a Farm Wife
(and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

Running errands around the region, I sometimes pass a particularly well-groomed expanse of low-lying lawn.

This narrow, but long, piece of property on which every blade of grass is neatly trimmed for long, swooping stretches runs through a small valley. Through the center of it, a small, natural-flowing stream meanders. Every foot of stream side bank, right down to the water's edge, is as flawlessly groomed as the lawn. Not a weed in sight. No invading cattails or hint of thistles or random rootings of multiflora rose.

Representing a lot of sweat and manhours for some dedicated lawn guardian. Still, each time I go by, something puzzles me. Where do the frogs live?

The meadow below our house, with several small ponds and its tiny brook running through, looks incredibly scruffy by comparison. Paths we use get an occasional drive-by mowing, so we can wander through without wondering what we might step in — or on. Heifers in the adjoining pasture keep everything up to, and slightly beyond, the fence, neatly nibbled down. Otherwise, it somewhat resembles a weed patch run amuck. But an amazing amount of interesting and pretty plant growth thrives, some purposefully planted, others put there by Mother Nature. Mowing would mess up the effect.

Most beautiful are the water lilies, now at peak bloom with wide, waxy flowers in pinks and white. Iris opened earlier, large clumps of a powder-blue-flowered Siberian type, a few whites, and one yellow which aggravatingly refuses to reproduce itself beyond the single cluster.

A wildflower mix tossed on a bank a couple of years ago has left some annual red and orange poppies which re-seed themselves. Clumps of cattails squat in the shallow edges of the ponds and the inevitable multiflora roses hang their briary stems over the surface, providing shade and impenetrable cover for both fish and fowl. Assorted grasses, spearmint tea, miscellaneous damp-loving wildflowers all happily bloom, unattended, in the meadow.

Intended specifically for attracting and providing for wildlife, the meadow abounds with critters we love to watch. Canada geese are the most noticeable at the moment, nearly two dozen of the big birds, including this year's hatch of seven, now grown, goslings.

Keeping company with them are four wild mallard ducks, a mother and three youngsters, all feathered in the subtle, somber brown shadings of the female of the species. A more colorfully-feathered male occasionally drops by, but none keeps regular company with this little family. While geese parents are both dedicated to "childcare," duckling raising appears to be solely a mom's responsibility in the mallard world.

A family of red-winged blackbirds lives nearby, the fledglings now perfecting their takeoff and landing techniques among the thick growth of plants on the stream banks. With unending maternal devotion, the mother bird keeps vigil from the top of the first tall tree in the fence row near the stream. When the cats follow us on a walk through the area, she flutters about the tree and shrieks nasty, anti-cat sentiments.

Herons are regular visitors, including the resident great blue heron, which is growing old gorging on our fish. A silent, solitary giant, the great blue heron can often be seen gliding in from farther away in the meadow. Unless you see it land and know exactly where to look, Big Blue is near impossible to spot as it waits, motionless for long minutes, blending in with the weeds and grasses water side. Sometimes, its reflection in the water is actually more noticeable than the bird itself.

Two night herons — perhaps a pair — have also returned to the pond, to hang out in the willows and elbow the space of the kingfisher for squatters' rights to the best fishing branch bending down out over the water.

Occasionally, a fox is spotted poking around the meadow and the muskrats continue to thrive among the grassy banks and plentiful food supply. And, walks around the ponds on a summer evening are punctuated with distinct splashy "plops," as the frogs leap from hiding in the grassy edges to watery safety.

We don't have to wonder where the frogs live here.

All over the place.

Turkey Lovers' Month Joins Line-Up Of June Celebrations

June is traditionally the month of brides, grads and dads, but turkey lovers across the country have gobbled up the entire month for a celebration of their own. November, when turkey is the star attraction at the Thanksgiving dinner table, may seem a more appropriate choice for National Turkey Lovers' Month, but the June celebration emphasizes the year-round popularity of this versatile, healthful and delicious meat.

Turkey offers much to celebrate every day of the year. Foremost is outstanding taste. The distinctive flavor of turkey can stand alone or duet beautifully with herbs, spicgs, sauces, rubs or marinades. It comes in a wide variety of cuts and products including whole birds, quick-cooking cutlets, ground turkey, sausage, tenderloins and deli meats. It is adaptable to cooking methods from stovetop and microwave to oven and grill and can substitute for higher-fat meats in spaghetti sauce, pizza, quiche, meatballs or burgers.

On the health front, turkey is a nutrient-dense, low-fat, high-protein food that has less than one-fourth of the maximum daily recommended intake of cholesterol and is naturally low in sodium. A 3-ounce serving of roasted, skinless turkey breast contains 26 grams of protein, 45 milligrams of sodium, 1 gram of fat and only 120 calories.

People have discovered that turkey fits easily into their busy lifestyles and they are eating more of it every year. Over the past 25 years, the amount eaten has more than doubled. In 1970, per capita consumption was 8.1 pounds; it has risen to nearly 18 pounds. People no longer save this savory bird especially for holiday fare. In 1970, 50 percent of all turkey consumed was eaten during the holidays; today only 32 percent of the total is eaten during the holiday season.

Since 1975, turkey production in the U.S. has increased from approximately 124 million birds to an estimated 276 million in 2000. Virginia accounts for about seven percent of the 2000 total and ranks fourth in the nation for the number of turkeys raised. Rockingham is the top turkey producing county in the nation.

Why Be Sick And Tired?

America has more sick people than most countries, because they eat too much cooked food which lost all the enzymes and up to 80% of the nutrition. Most food you buy contains harmful toxins because they use weed killers, insecticides and many harmful chemicals in growing it, and then more chemicals in processing to increase shelf life. But there is a solution to the problem.

Be Healthy And Energetic?

May doctors and people are now using a new and safer way to remove toxins and poisons from the body, clean out the arteries and develop a strong immune system so it can fight off diseases with amazing results, without any drugs. This program supplies the immune system with killer cells, memory and suppresser cells activity and training, which is like manpower and equipment to any army. It provides the immune system with all natural, organically grown fruit, grain and vegetables" which is like good food and ammunition to an army.

Over 40 million dollars were spent in research, and over 3000 sheets of scientific documented studies by doctors supports many positive clinical experiences, and backs up the patented process in providing proven products. The cost is considerable less than drugs, chelation, radiation, chemotherapy and operations. It does NOT interfere with medication. There are now viruses that can not be stopped with antibiotics, but these all natural products are producing excellent results with supervision from doctors.

Over 3000 Doctors Have Already Switched

They have switched from drugs to alternative medicine in order to help people recover from cancer, heart attacks, arthritis diabetes, lupus, fibromyalgia, allergies, fatigue and many other health problems without any side effects. We make no health claims. We work with doctors in giving the body all natural food grade products it needs to heal itself. There is also a Prevention Program to help you from getting sick. "An ounce of prevention costs far less, and is so much better than a pound of cure" (doctor and hospital bills). Which would you prefer, $149 a year to help prevent a heart attack, or a $50,000 by pass operation? The choice is yours. Let us try to help you prevent health problems.

Consuming Thoughts

When the weather is too hot to cook a meal, or you are too hurried to spend a lot of time in the kitchen, serve chef's salad. This happy blend of crisp and hearty foods, tossed with a tangy dressing, makes a refreshing and nutritious main dish for lunch or supper. And it's ready to eat in minutes.

Chef's salad gives you a chance to be creative and practical at the same time. Most chef's salads combine several raw vegetables, tossed or covered with a thin, tart dressing and topped with two or more protein foods. The vegetables can be crisp greens or others, like celery and tomatoes that give a pleasing contrast of color and texture.

Some cooked or canned vegetables may also be used. For the hearty topping you can use meat, fish, poultry, cheese, hard-cooked or deviled eggs. Many cooks plan a chef's salad to use up small amounts of leftover cooked vegetables and meat.

Check over the salad recipe and decide which ingredients you will use today. Wash salad greens and other raw vegetables as much ahead of time as possible. Drain thoroughly. Store in the refrigerator to chill and crisp.

Counting calories? The salad, with a low-calorie dressing, could appear often in your meal plans. Salad greens and most other vegetables used in chef's salads contain a great deal of water, which makes them low in calories.

Here are the calories in one cup of vegetables: lettuce — 10 calories, celery, mushrooms, peppers — each 20 calories, cauliflower — 25 calories, carrots 30 calories, asparagus and broccoli — each 45 calories.

If you use salad dressings, here are the calories furnished by one tablespoon of several regular salad dressings: Thousand Island — 60 calories; bleu cheese — 75 calories; Italian — 80 calories; French — 85 calories; and mayonnaise — 100 calories.

Read the labels on salad dressings. There are hundreds of products on the market, with a calorie range from zero calories per tablespoon to 180 calories per tablespoon.

To reduce calories, use less dressing (or none at all), or try one of the following:

- Lemon juice or vinegar with salt.
- Whipped low-fat cottage cheese or yogurt with salt, pepper and herbs.
- Dressings that contain no oil.
- Pepper and herbs or garlic.

Chef's Salad

1½ quarts salad greens, coarsely torn
1 cup sliced celery
1 cup cheese strips or cubes
2 hard-cooked eggs, in slices or wedges
1½ cups cooked ham, chicken or other meats or fish (cut in strips or cubes)
Tomato wedges

In large bowl, toss together salad greens and celery. If possible, use at least two different greens, such as head lettuce, leaf lettuce, endive, spinach, escarole or watercress. Add barely enough dressing to coat each piece.

Toss lightly. (Or serve the dressing separately, to be added by each person). Arrange meat, cheese, eggs and tomatoes attractively on top of greens.

Variations: Try thinly sliced green onions, cucumbers, radishes, green pepper slivers, shredded carrots, florets of broccoli or cauliflower, mushrooms or cooked peas or lima beans. Serves 4-6.

Green Tomatoes?

Two problems with tomatoes often face gardeners: too many drop off the vine when they're still green, and, later, too many ripen at the same time.

Need hints for solving these problems?

First things first. If the green tomatoes are close to full size, you can try ripening them yourself. All you have to do is put them in a paper bag and wait. If the tomato had gotten to a certain point in its ripening process while still on the vine, it will produce a gas (actually, a hormone) called ethylene. You can trap the gas inside a paper bag, surrounding the fruit with ethylene to finish the ripening process.

When ethylene penetrates the tissue of the tomato, it activates genes that make the tomato red and stimulate sugar production. It also triggers production of an enzyme called polygalacturonase, which breaks down cell walls and allows the fruit to soften.

Some experts recommend putting an apple, pear or banana in the bag, too. They also produce ethylene and can speed up the ripening process.

If you have an overabundance of ripe tomatoes, you can try freezing them for use in recipes that call for cooked or canned tomatoes. Freezing is a relatively easy process that, done properly, preserves more nutrients and produces a fresher flavor than canning tomatoes.

Just wash the freshly picked tomatoes thoroughly in cold water, rinsing them several times to remove any dirt or residue. Dip them in boiling water and cover for 30 seconds, using about 1 gallon of water per pound of tomatoes. (Start timing as soon as you drop the tomatoes in; don't worry if the water stops boiling momentarily.) The boiling water will stop the action of those natural ripening enzymes that can change the flavor, color, texture and level of nutrients in the tomatoes while they're being stored in the freezer. The boiling water also loosens skins.

After 30 seconds, remove the tomatoes and dip them in cool water. Peel them and cut off the center core, and, if you wish, cut into pieces. Place the tomatoes into freezer bags, squeezing the air out before sealing, or fill rigid plastic freezer containers, leaving only a half-inch space at the top for expansion.

For more information, see the Ohio State University Fact Sheet, Freezing Vegetables (HYG-5333-97), available at Ohio's county Extension offices or online at http://ohioline.osu.edu/hyg-fact/5000/5333.html.

CINNAMON ROLLS

3 cups scalding milk
1 cup butter
1 cup brown sugar
4 beaten eggs
2 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons yeast
1 cup warm water
10½ cups flour

To scalding milk, add butter, sugar, eggs and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Dissolve yeast in warm water, add to other mixture, and add flour. Let rise and work down. Let rise and roll out, sprinkling cinnamon and sugar on. Nuts or raisins may also be added. Let rise a bit. Bake at 325 degrees until lightly brown, approximately 20 minutes.

Frost with your favorite icing. Yummy.

DELICIOUS MOST UNUSUAL APPLE PIE

1 cup unsifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ cup sugar
Pinch of salt
½ cup of butter
1 egg, beaten
5 sliced apples
½ cup brown sugar, divided
½ teaspoon cinnamon
Whipped cream topping or ice cream

Mix together flour, baking powder, sugar and salt. Add butter and egg. Mix with fork (will be thick like paste). Put apples in square baking dish. Add a little brown sugar. Put big spoonfuls of mixture over apples. Sprinkle with brown sugar and cinnamon. Bake at 325 degrees for 40 minutes or until dough is brown. Serve with whipped cream topping or ice cream.

We live on a farm in Lancaster County. We have four girls, Ruth Ann, Lisa, Rosene, and Mary Jane. Their ages range from 10 months to 6 years.

This recipe comes in handy for us, since we have a lot of apple trees. I enjoy trying new recipes in Lancaster Farming.

DESSERT #1

2 eggs, separated
½ cup sugar
⅔ cup milk
1 package plain gelatin
½ cup cold water
1 cup whipping cream
1 teaspoon vanilla

Soak gelatin in cold water. Meanwhile beat egg yolks and add sugar and milk. Cook in heavy sauce pan until slightly thickened. Pour over gelatin mixture and stir until smooth. Cool until slightly thickened.

Beat egg whites until stiff, whip cream. Then mix everything together including vanilla. Pour into individual cups or 9x13-inch container. Chill until set. Then prepare layer two.

1¼ cup milk
3 eggs, separated
½ cup sugar
3 ounce strawberry Jell-O
¼ cup whipping cream

Beat egg yolks and add sugar. Stir in milk. Bring mixture to a boil. Remove from heat and stir in Jell-O. Chill until partially set. Beat egg whites and whip cream. Mix all together and pour over layer one.

It's especially pretty when garnished with fresh strawberries. We like this for a light summertime treat. We are dairy farmers that really enjoy our own products. Lancaster Farming is enjoyed at our house because there's something of interest for everyone. I really like trying new recipes, so I am looking forward to the June issues.

CARAMEL FRENCH TOAST (BAKED)

1 cup brown sugar
6 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons light corn syrup
15-18 slices of bread (fresh or stale)
6 eggs
2 cups milk
½ teaspoon vanilla

In a saucepan over low heat, combine brown sugar, butter and light corn syrup. Bring to a boil for one minute, then pour into a 9x13 pan. Layer bread in three layers over caramel mixture. Beat together eggs, milk and vanilla until combined. Pour over bread. Cover and refrigerate overnight. Bake at 325 degrees for 45 minutes. Serve on platter.

This baked French toast is really good and a great breakfast for overnight guests as you prepare it the evening before.

CREAM CHEESE POTATO SOUP

2 cups potatoes, diced
½ cup carrots, diced
½ cup celery, chopped
1 tablespoon butter
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Place vegetables in a kettle and cook until tender. Mix together and stir well, 2 cups milk, 8-ounces cream cheese, softened, and ¼ teaspoon garlic salt.

Drain vegetables before adding cream cheese mixture. Heat thoroughly.

We live on a dairy farm and enjoy the family life it provides. I enjoy this June dairy month section and always look for new, simple recipes to serve my growing family. We have four children, Nevin, 4½-years-old, Ruth Elaine, 3½-years-old, John Jay, 19-months-old, and Clair 4½-months old.

NUT TASSIES

8-ounces cream cheese
1 cup butter
2 cups flour

Mix dough together by hand. Press dough into mini cupcake pans by rolling into little balls in the palm of your hand first.

Filling:

1½ cup nuts, crushed
1½ cup brown sugar, light
2 eggs
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt

Mix all filling ingredients by hand. Fill each cup with ¼ teaspoon of filling, then bake.

Bake at 400 degrees in small mini cupcake holder pans for 12 minutes. Makes approximately 60.

My family includes my husband Kevin, and sons Scott, 18, and Kyle, 15. My husband does part-time farming on the side, besides working a full-time job. We raise cows, chickens, pigs, rabbits, plus making hay and corn to feed the animals.

Our youngest son, Kyle, is physically handicapped because of Cerebral Palsy. We have invited two classes from

DELICIOUS CUSTARD

½ cup cornstarch
1 teaspoon salt
⅔ cup sugar
4 cups milk
4 tablespoons butter
4 egg yolks, beaten
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 pint heavy whipping cream
⅓ cup sugar
1½ teaspoons vanilla

Slowly pour milk to cornstarch, salt, and sugar in heavy saucepan. Add 4 tablespoons butter. Cook until thick and large bubbles break on surface, stirring constantly. Pour hot custard into four beaten egg yolks. Beat just until well blended with rotary beater. Return to saucepan and cook two more minutes. Remove from heat. Add 2 teaspoons vanilla. Pour into glass bowl and cover tightly with plastic wrap placed directly on hot custard so it won't form a skin. Cool completely. Beat cream, sugar, and vanilla. Set aside. Whip cooled custard until creamy and smooth. Add whipped topping to custard and blend. Refrigerate and serve. This is very versatile and can be served with fresh fruits, cakes, or pies.

We are proud to have our three daughters, Heather, Crystal, and Candice help to represent the dairy industry in Lancaster County this year. These girls, along with their brother, Blake, represent the eighth generation on our farm, which includes 220 acres and 180 milking Holsteins, located outside Manheim.

This recipe is truly a family favorite shared by Lowell's mother, Virginia.

JUNE DAIRY MONTH

Featured Recipe

Now that you have all these wonderful recipes clipped from the month-long of contest entries, use them.

However, if you are like some people, those recipes will unfortunately suffer a different fate. At least, according to this poem sent in by Esther Mae Sensenig, Narvon.

She writes, "I really enjoy the June issues of Lancaster Farming and clip and save all the recipes, but too often it goes like this poem:

Gathering Recipes

Gather ye recipes while ye may,
Carefully, carefully tuck them away
Store them in boxes, paste them in books
Glamorous dishes of venturesome cooks.
Clip them out, snip them out, fill up the files
Tie them in bundles, and stack up the piles
Handle them carefully, treat them with care
For if you're like me, they'll lie buried there.
Forever and forever until you clean house
While you and your "meat and potatoes" spouse
Will dine on old standbys you whip up instead
From the old and the proven that you keep in your head!

Here is a recipe from Esther Mae, who writes that it is "Super delicious!"

She adds, "One of my friends shared this recipe with me and it's simple and delicious."

Esther Mae and her husband, Ivan, have two children: Clayton Steve, 2, and Anna Mary, 3 months.

COTTAGE CHEESE SALAD

½ cup milk
1 pound marshmallows
8-ounce package cream cheese
1 can crushed pineapples
½ cup chopped nuts
12 ounces cottage cheese
12 ounces whipped cream topping

Melt marshmallows in milk and add cream cheese. Cool, add remaining ingredients. Mix all together.

the high school he attends to come to our farm. Some of the children have never been around farm animals before. They are all very excited and cannot wait until they come to visit. It's great to see how a small farm can put big smiles on children that would not be able to see these animals otherwise.

FUNNY CAKE

Chocolate Part:
1 cup sugar
½ cup cocoa
¾ hot water
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix together and pour into bottom of unbaked pie shell.

Cake Part:
1 cup sugar
2 cups flour
2 eggs
2 teaspoon baking powder
1 cup milk
½ cup butter

Mix and pour into chocolate part. Bake at 350 degrees for 35-40 minutes. Makes 2.

This recipe has been handed down from my grandmother. It is so good. We eat it for breakfast or a snack. I live on a dairy farm in Knoxville. We own 144 acres. We grow only hay and milk 40 cows and I raise all the heifer calves. Designing homes is my favorite pastime. This year has been busy. Drink your milk.

DELICIOUS PUDDING

1 tablespoon vanilla
1 cup brown sugar
¾ cup water
4 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon salt

Heat ingredients, then add ½ teaspoon baking soda and boil for three minutes.

Blend:
6 cups milk
4 egg yolks
¾ cup flour
½ cup cornstarch, scant

Add to syrup mixture and stir until it boils. Remove from heat. Put in blender and blend until all the lumps are gone. Pour in a bowl and cover with plastic wrap and don't stir until cold.

Beat ½ cup heavy whipping cream until thick. Pour over delicious pudding and top with banana slices.

My husband Cleason and I live on a 65 acre farm and graze 100 dairy replacement heifers. We also have a welding repair shop, an apple orchard, and make cheese. I am a homemaker and enjoy cooking, baking and gardening.

PRALINE ICE CREAM CAKE

½ cup butter
1 pint (2 cups) softened vanilla ice cream
2 eggs
1½ cup flour
⅔ cup sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup graham cracker crumbs

Topping:
½ cup sour cream
1 cup caramel ice cream topping
½ cup chopped or halved pecans

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Melt butter in 3-quart saucepan. Remove from heat. Add ice cream, then eggs, flour, sugar, baking powder, salt and graham cracker crumbs. Mix until smooth. Pour into greased 13x9 pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes.

Combine sour cream and ice cream topping. Pour over warm cake. Top with pecans. May be served with ice cream or whipped cream topping.

My husband Merle and I live in Somerset County. Years ago, we got the Lancaster Farming and I always enjoyed the recipe section of the paper. We didn't get it for some years and really missed it. My husband, an auctioneer, enjoyed the auction section and uses it often to advertise his auctions.

Now my son, next door, gets it. So, we are glad to be able to read it again.

We live on the home farm, but our oldest son Mark and his wife Helen, do the farming. We have another son Dale and one daughter Diane and five grandchildren.

My husband does auctions and I enjoy gardening and canning. I also like entering my things in the fairs.

CHEESE BALL

1½ pound sharp cheese
¼ pound Swiss cheese
8-ounces cream cheese
½ pound bleu cheese
½ cup butter
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup apple juice

Grate all hard cheeses and crumble soft cheeses. Add butter and liquid and work together. Form into ball and sprinkle with paprika.

This recipe is simple and delicious. Being a mother of five and grandmother of nine, I love quick, easy, and good recipes. This is one of my favorites that I have used for many years. It always comes out great even if you don't have the exact amount of cheeses.

BEEF CARROT CASSEROLE

1 lb. ground beef
1 tablespoon butter
¼ cup minced onion
2 8-ounce cans tomato sauce
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 cup cream style cottage cheese
¼ cup parsley flakes
1 cup cooked sliced carrots
8-ounce noodles, cooked and drained
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

Brown beef and onion. Stir in tomato sauce, salt, and pepper. Simmer uncovered for five minutes.

Combine sour cream, cottage cheese, parsley, and carrots. Add to cooked noodles and mix well. Alternate layers of noodles mixture and meat mixture beginning and ending with noodles. Top with cheese.

Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. If frozen: bake uncovered at 400 degrees for 1 hour.

My husband and I farm together in Greencastle. We have 106 acres, plus we farm some other land also. We have four daughters, with only one at home.

The farm keeps us busy 365 days a year. We like to keep our milking herd around 45-50 cows. I really like one dish casseroles. They are ready when we come in from the barn and you don't have a lot of dishes to wash.

CHOCOLATE ICE CREAM CAKE

6 egg whites
1 cup sugar

Beat egg whites until foamy. Stir sugar in with mixer until thick. Set aside and clean the bowl.

6 egg yolks
1 cup sugar
⅓ cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup cocoa
1⅓ cup flour
1 teaspoon soda

Beat egg yolks for three minutes. Add sugar, and beat for two minutes more. Add remaining ingredients. Slowly fold into egg whites. Put in two 9x13 pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 15-20 minutes. Cool. Put ½ gallon vanilla ice cream on each cake. Pour ½ cup chocolate syrup over each cake, then sprinkle 1 cup crushed Oreo cookies on each cake. Spread 8-ounce whip cream topping over each cake. Decorate with maraschino cherries or 1 cup crushed peanuts.

This dessert is a favorite at our house. It isn't real hard to make, which is good as it doesn't last real long in our home. My husband and I don't live on a dairy farm, although we were both raised on dairy farms. We enjoy dairy products all the same. We are blessed with four children.

CREAMY PUDDING

4 cups milk (plus ½ cup)
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 eggs

Heat 4 cups milk. Beat eggs, add sugar and ½ cup milk. Add flour and cornstarch. Slowly add the mixture to heated milk. Stir constantly until bubbly. When cool, add 1 teaspoon vanilla and 1 cup heavy whipping cream (which has already been whipped).

My husband Reuben and I live on a dairy farm, along with our three boys, John Lee, Matthew, and Jay Benuel. We all enjoy farm life.

We especially enjoy Lancaster Farming, sections B and D. Keep up the good work. I also enjoy trying new recipes.

ORANGE BUTTERMILK SALAD

20-ounces crushed pineapple
1 large box of orange Jell-O
2 cups buttermilk
8-ounces frozen whipped cream topping
⅓ cup chopped nuts, (black or English walnuts)

Heat pineapple to boiling, add Jell-O. Stirring until Jell-O is dissolved. Let cool, add buttermilk. Once it starts to set, fold in frozen whipped cream topping and nuts.

Pour into a Jell-O mold that holds 1½ quarts or 6 cups. Enjoy!

For 38 years, we have lived on a 10 acre farm in Allensville. We have six children and seven grandchildren.

DRESSING FOR POTATO SALAD

6 eggs
1 quart buttermilk
2 cups sugar
1 tablespoon dry mustard
2 tablespoons cornstarch
4 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon salt
¾ cup vinegar

In a microwave, cook buttermilk, vinegar, and sugar. While that is heating, mix eggs, mustard, cornstarch, flour, and salt. Then pour egg mixture into the buttermilk mixture in the microwave, whisk a few times. Cook until thick. This can also be stored in the refrigerator for a few weeks. When making salad, you can add mayonnaise according to amount of potatoes used.

We grain farm 13,000 acres here in Montour County. Farming that many acres gets pretty hectic sometimes. So, I take meals to the field most days.

OLD FASHIONED RICE PUDDING

6 cups milk
¾ cup long grain rice (not minute)
1 cup heavy cream
¾ cup sugar
3 egg yolks, beaten
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
¼ teaspoon salt
cinnamon

Rinse medium saucepan with cold water (do not dry). Pour in milk, and bring to a boil. Stir in rice, return to boil. Reduce heat and simmer uncovered until rice is tender, about 55 minutes, stirring occasionally. Meanwhile, in small bowl, combine cream, sugar, egg yolks, vanilla and salt. When rice is tender, stir in cream mixture. Heat to a boil. Remove from heat, pour into 2-quart serving dish. Sprinkle with cinnamon. Cool.

I usually triple this recipe.

LEMON DESSERT

8-ounces cream cheese
1 cup boiling water
8-ounces whipped cream topping
1 small box lemon Jell-O
2 cups graham cracker crumbs
½ cup sugar
⅔ cup melted butter

Mix graham crumb mixture. Press into 13-inch cake pan. Bake at 350 degrees for about 8 to 10 minutes. Cool. Dissolve Jell-O in hot water. Cool until soft set. Beat soft set Jell-O with softened cream cheese. Fold in whipped cream topping. Put on top of crumb crust. Canned cherry or blueberry pie filling on top, or eat plain.

CHICKEN AND POTATO CASSEROLE

1 layer raw boneless, skinless chicken breast, cut into bite-sized pieces
1 layer raw sliced potatoes
1 can cream of chicken soup
½ cup milk

Stir cream of chicken soup and milk together. Add a layer of white American cheese and bread crumbs. Layer ingredients in a greased 9x13-inch pan in order given above. Bake at 350 degrees for 1½ hours. Preparation time: 15-20 minutes.

My husband Glen and I are dairy farming with our six children. I enjoy trying the recipes in Section B in Lancaster Farming and especially those using dairy products. This chicken casserole is very simple and delicious.

OATMEAL WHOOPIE PIES

2 cups brown sugar
¾ cup butter
2 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups flour
2 cups rolled oats
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 teaspoons baking soda
4 tablespoons boiling water

Cream together sugar, butter, and eggs. Add salt, flour, rolled oats, cinnamon, and baking powder. Add baking soda dissolved in 4 tablespoons boiling water last. Beat, and bake at 350 degrees for approximately 10 minutes.

Two batches makes about 4 dozen.

Frosting:
2 egg whites
2 teaspoon vanilla
4 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons milk
4 cups powdered sugar
1 cup shortening

Beat egg whites until stiff. Add remaining ingredients and mix. Spread between two cookies.

I usually like the B Section of the Lancaster Farming. I am working at Lighthouse three days and do some cleaning at Parochial Wellness Center.

VEGETABLE PIZZA

8-ounces cream cheese
½ cup mayonnaise or 8-ounce sour cream
4-ounce ranch dressing mix
Cheddar cheese powder (optional)

Make a pizza dough and put in 9x13 pizza pan. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 minutes. Mix and spread the above ingredients on cooled pizza dough.

Topping:
1 cup chopped cauliflower
1 cup chopped broccoli
½ cup shredded cheese

Looks very attractive topped with a cherry tomato on each piece when cut.

This is a great appetizer or makes a delicious snack.

ANSWER — N.E. Koons requested a recipe for a high and light angel food cake. Thanks to Tessie Kizis, Newsoms, Va., who e-mailed a recipe that she said is from a 1950's Betty Crocker cookbook. "Sure beats any boxed mix," she writes.

Angel Food Cake

Set out but do not grease 10-inch tube pan that is 4-inches deep.

1 cup sifted cake flour
⅞ cup granulated sugar

Sift flour and sugar together three times. Set aside.

1½ cups (12) egg whites
1½ teaspoons cream of tartar
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon almond extract
¾ cup granulated sugar

Measure the egg whites, cream of tartar, salt, and flavorings into a large bowl. Beat with wire whip on medium speed of mixer until foamy. Add the ¾ cup granulated sugar gradually, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating 10 seconds after each addition. Continue beating (using high speed on mixer) until meringue is very firm and holds stiff, straight peaks.

Gradually sift the flour-sugar mixture over the meringue, 3 tablespoons at a time, cut and fold in with spatula until the dry ingredients disappear each time. Push the batter into ungreased tube pan. Even up surface of batter. Gently cut through batter with a knife in widening circles to break up air bubbles. Bake 375 degree oven for 30-35 minutes or until no imprint remains when finger lightly touches top of cake. Invert and let hang until cold before removing from pan.

ANSWER — Thanks to Kari Martin, Lancaster County dairy ambassador from Ephrata, for sending in her favorite dessert for both summer and winter. Not only is it fun and easy to make but it also has a dairy product in it. Kari writes that the dessert is quickly gone at her house and her whole family loves it. She hopes you will too.

Double Chocolate Crumble Bars

½ cup butter
¾ cup sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup flour
2 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa
¼ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups tiny marshmallows
1 cup semi-sweet chocolate chips
1 cup peanut butter
1½ cups rice crispy cereal

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cream butter and sugar. Beat in eggs and vanilla. Add flour, cocoa, baking powder, and salt. Spread in greased 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Bake in 350 degree oven for 15-20 minutes or until bars test done. Sprinkle marshmallows evenly on top. Bake three more minutes. Cool. In saucepan combine chocolate chips and peanut butter. Cook and stir over low heat until chocolate is melted. Stir in cereal. Spread mixture on top of cooled bars. Chill and cut into bars. Refrigerate.

ANSWER — Here is a recipe from Bethany Eberly who sent in the recipe without an address. Bethany writes that this is her favorite recipe because it is easy to make. The Eberlys live on a beef farm, but use many dairy products. She comes from a family of six children (3 sisters and 2 brothers).

One Bowl Chocolate Cake

2 cups flour
2 cups sugar (scant)
½ cup baking cocoa
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup oil
1 cup buttermilk
2 eggs
1 cup hot water

Combine dry ingredients. Stir in oil, buttermilk, and eggs. Add water and stir until combined. Pour into greased 9x13-inch cake pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 35-38 minutes.

ANSWER — To cool off during the summer, Cumberland County dairy ambassador Jennifer Kramer suggests making these trendy non-alcoholic dairy beverages.

Pina Colada

1 cup milk
½ cup ginger ale
½ cup crushed pineapple
½ teaspoon coconut flavoring
5 ice cubes

Combine all ingredients in blender until frothy, about one minute. Serves 3.

Orange Blossom

1 cup milk
1 cup orange juice
1 teaspoon honey (optional)
4 scoops orange sherbert

Combine milk, orange juice, honey, and two scoops sherbert. Pour into four serving glasses and top with small scoop of sherbert. Serves 4.

ANSWER — Looking for something different to entertain children during summer picnics, parties, and celebrations? Try making ice cream in with this fun and easy method.

Ice Cream In A Can

1 cup milk
1 cup heavy cream
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Put ingredients in washed and dried one-pound coffee can. Mix slightly. Place lid on can and seal. Tape lid with duct tape to ensure no liquid can leak out or other liquids enter. Place the one-pound can inside a 3-pound can, washed and dried. Packe ice and rock salt around the one pound can using three parts ice to one part salt.

Sit down and roll the large can, which has also been duct taped closed, between two people on the ground — about 10 minutes (best when done outside).

After 10 minutes, check the pound can to see if the ice cream is frozen. Add more ice and salt to the outside can if the ice cream is not firm. Close can and roll another 10 minutes until ice cream is the desired texture. Remove ice cream from can and enjoy.

ANSWER — Here is a recipe from Hannah Esh, Myerstown.

Banana Split Dessert

First part:

3 cups graham cracker crumbs
¾ cup butter

Cut butter into crumbs and press into bottom of 9x13-inch cake pan.

Second part:

2 cups powdered sugar
2 eggs
1 cup butter
1½ teaspoons vanilla

Beat powdered sugar, butter, eggs, and vanilla at high speed for two minutes. Spread on cracker crumbs.

Third part:

2 cups well-drained crushed pineapples
7 bananas, sliced

Spread pineapple over beaten mixture. Cover with bananas.

Topping:

2 packages whipped cream topping
1 cup nuts or 20 maraschino cherries

Spread prepared whipped topping over top and cover with nuts or maraschino cherries. Refrigerate overnight. Fills a 9x13-inch cake pan.

ANSWER — Here is a refreshing dairy beverage recipe to make for a crowd. This one is from Berks County Dairy Princess Kristen Gross.

Frosty Apple Punch

1 gallon milk
3 quarts ice cream
1 teaspoon cinnamon
8-ounces apple juice concentrate
1 teaspoon nutmeg

Beat together all ingredients with hand mixer and serve.

Fathering Tips From The Internet

The 2000 census reveals that about half of all households have internet access. Most of these connections are used by the children in the home or to communicate with family and friends via e-mail. There is also a wealth of helpful information available including many useful sites on parenting. Fathers may not have time to attend a class on parenting skills, but could easily access a website for information. This article will review sites featuring research based on information on fatherhood and the importance of fathers in their children's lives.

The site www.talkingwithkids.org is part of a national initiative to increase communication between parents and children. The site offers a free bi-monthly newsletter by e-mail and a free quarterly tips listing. The site lists "10 Tips for Talking with Kids about Tough Issues" on how to initiate conversations on issues and what's appropriate to discuss with different-age children. It recommends sharing your values with your children and listening to your child's comments.

Final suggestion: Talk about it again. And again. The site had a place for parents to share their success stories a great opportunity for fathers to "brag" about their children. Subscribing to the newsletter, in addition to providing information, can serve as a reminder to continue to talk to your child.

This site also included links to other parenting information sites on each of the tough issues including: drugs, sex and violence. A resource listing of current books is included for each tough topic, example "How To Talk So Kids Will Listen And How To Listen So Kids Will Talk" by Adele Faber and Elaine Mazlish was listed under "Communication Skills."

A companion site to "talkingwithkids.org" was www.nick.com/your world for children. This site included a Parents Manual — Ten Steps To Get Your Parents Talking. This site has interactive things and provides opportunities for fathers and children to "web bourse" together.

One of my favorite sites for "fathering" information is www.fatherhold.org. It includes: fatherly advice, state and local information, special events, in the news, a chat room, resources and a bookstore. The bookstore site is organized into 21 different categories and each one contains a list of books with a brief description and price. There is another link that gives more information about each book and where you can order the books directly with a credit card. (Note of caution: It's easy to get your clicking finger into order mode. This site gives you an opportunity to review your shopping cart and delete items before placing your order.) The state and local section included comments from Governor Ridge: "I learned from my dad how to be a man of honor, a loving father and supportive husband. As parents, we are our children's most important role models." This quote concludes: "Our goal is to highlight the lifelong responsibilities that come with fatherhood and the unparalleled joys of being a dad."

Another section allowed fathers to ask questions and other fathers shared how they handled the situation. Question I reviewed, "What do you do when you are caring for your young daughters and they need to use public bathrooms?" This site also features a newsletter that includes several back issues you can read online.

NCFR Family Tips and Information is part of the National Council on Family Relationships. This site provides a drop-down menu to select a family tip related to the age of children. Go to the Journal section and select "press release" to read a variety of articles related to parenting, currently there are two "fathering" articles.

WebCrawler Kids and Family is organized into four sections: babies, parents, teens, and 50+. Each of these sections includes web articles and an opportunity to search three different ways — a web search, a people search, and a news search. A directory listing allows you to go directly to specific topics.

Welcome to the Single and Custodial Father's Network provides information for our population segment showing rapid growth — single fathers. The site provides a chat room for dad that generally meets in the evening. I found the recipe section fascinating and suggested recipes were organized by breakfast, lunch, dinner, and snacks. I looked at the snack section and found an intriguing recipe for strawberry pie. The directions instructed the children to wash their hands and then squash the berries with their hands. A note said the children really enjoyed this part. The site listed resources, included other links and had a weather section — so you would know how to dress the children.

http:/www.fathers.com/ includes: Fathering tips, what's new, research, dad's store, hall of fame — featuring fathers, fathering inspirations and dad's humor. I checked "what's new," fathering tips and dad's humor; the jokes were funny and did make you smile.

Netscape Search Category — Fathering provides ways to search for additional information including such topics as Dads Can, Father's Resource Center, Fathers First, Online Real Dads and Role of Fathers in Families.

I hope these sites will start you on the fathering trip through the internet.

Dairy Day at St. Francis Academy, Bally, featured a race between a team of teachers and a team of students. Each team was required to build two ice cream pizzas in saucer-type snow sleds. Each pizza was made of six gallons of Turkey Hill ice cream, four pounds of cookie crumbs, three pounds of pie filling, and six different toppings.

Pizza With Pizzazz

BALLY (Bucks Co.) — Students and teachers at St. Francis Academy in Bally participated recently in their annual Dairy Day challenge with the students claiming victory. This year's event combined culinary skills and athletic prowess as contestants raced to create their own unique ice cream pizza. It was pizza with pizzazz as students and teachers combined ice cream and special toppings in the first-ever Ice Cream Pizza Building Challenge/Race.

The contest was part of the school's annual Dairy Day celebration in honor of June Dairy Month and the end of the school year. The newly-crowned Berks County Dairy Princess, Kristen Gross, welcomed students and guests with a talk on good nutrition and the role dairy products play in a balanced diet. With the help of a puppet, she told the assembled: "Milk helps your bones and teeth. You need to drink at least four glasses of milk each day." She also noted: "Dairy Day is a great way to deliver a nutrition message about milk while the students and teachers have fun and discover new uses for ice cream."

Rev. Thomas Welsh, retired bishop of the Allentown Diocese, served as the day's emcee.

The day's feature was a race that pitted a team of students against a team of teachers. Each team built two 25-inch pizzas. The pizzas were built in saucer-type snow sleds. Each pizza was made of four pounds of Oreo cookie crumbs, 3¼ pounds of strawberry pie filling, and six gallons of Turkey Hill vanilla ice cream and an assortment of toppings. Upon completion of their masterpieces, the teams moved the sweet-laden sleds to the center of the auditorium where the judges passed their verdict and after Toni Hemerka, Bally Borough manager, whistled that the students had won the speed portion of the contest.

Event judges include Laura England of American Dairy Association; Barry Landes of Landes Bros., Robin Melcher of National Penn Bank, Denise Sobjak of Sobjak's Market, Mike Mutter of Eddinger's Hardware, and Dairy Princess Kristen Gross.

The ice cream pizzas where then distributed to everyone in attendance.

Observe Fireworks Safety For Enjoyable Fourth Of July

To help you celebrate safely this Fourth of July, the Consumer Product Safety Commission and the National Council on Fireworks Safety offer the following information:

The good news is that fireworks injury rates are at an all-time low. From 1994 to 1998 alone, the injury rate dropped over 44 percent. According to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC), there were an estimated 7,000 people treated for fireworks-related injuries in 1998. That's down from 10,900 in 1995. In 1994, the figure was 12,500.

Federal safety regulations, combined with an increased consumer awareness, are making the Fourth of July Holiday safer than ever. However, explosive devices like M-80s and M-100s continue to be a problem. Though banned since 1966, these illegal explosives still account for one-third of all Fourth of July injuries. This Fourth of July, legal fireworks that meet the safety regulations of the CPSC will be on sale in 40 of 50 states and the District of Columbia.

The best way to stay safe is to attend one of the many professional displays in the area. Even then there are some things to remember. Spectators should obey all ushers or monitors and respect the safety barriers set up to allow the trained operator room to safely do his job. Resist any temptation to get close to the actual firing site. In fact, the best view of the fireworks is from a quarter of a mile or more away.

Although it rarely happens, it is possible that a firework component might fall to the ground without exploding. The public should be cautioned not to touch these fireworks. If they happen to find any which have not exploded, they should immediately contact the local fire or police department.

Pets have very sensitive ears and the booms and bangs associated with a fireworks display can be quite uncomfortable — particularly to dogs. In fact, the noises can actually hurt their ears. Leave pets at home if you are going to a fireworks show.

Leave the lighting of all fireworks to the trained operator when you attend a public display. Sparklers, fountains, and other items that many states allow for use by private individuals are not appropriate to use when a large crowd is present. Leave your own fireworks at home — the display will provide plenty of excitement. Sit back, relax and enjoy the show.

If you feel you must have your own private display, keep safety as a priority and follow these guidelines: Always read and follow label directions. Have an adult present. Buy from reliable sellers. Use outdoors only. Always have water handy (a garden hose and a bucket). Never experiment or make your own fireworks. Light only one firework at a time. Never re-light a "dud" firework (wait 15 to 20 minutes and then soak it in a bucket of water). Never give fireworks to small children. If necessary, store fireworks in a cool, dry place. Dispose of fireworks properly by soaking them in water and then disposing of them in your trash can. Never throw or point fireworks at other people. Never carry fireworks in your pocket. Never shoot fireworks in metal or glass containers. The shooter should always wear eye protection and never have any part of the body over the firework. Stay away from illegal explosives.

Tips on choosing safe fireworks. It is extremely important to know the difference between a legal consumer firework and a dangerous explosive device. Items such as M-80s, M-100s and blockbusters are not fireworks, they are federally banned explosives. They can cause serious injury or even death. Stay away from anything that isn't clearly labeled with the name of the item, the manufacturer's name and instructions for proper use.

Here are some more tips to help ensure a safe Fourth of July: Fireworks are not toys. Fireworks complying with strict regulations enacted by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission in 1976 function primarily by burning to produce motion and visible or audible effects. They are burning at approximately the same temperature as a household match and can cause burn injuries and ignite clothing if used improperly.

Never give fireworks to young children. Close, adult supervision of all fireworks activities is mandatory. Even sparklers can be unsafe if used improperly.

Select and use only legal devices. If you choose to celebrate the Fourth of July with fireworks, check with your local police department to determine what fireworks can be legally discharged in your area. Homemade fireworks are deadly. Never attempt to make your own devices and do not purchase or use any kits that are advertised for making fireworks. Mixing and loading chemical powders is very dangerous and can kill or seriously injure you. Leave the making of fireworks to the experts.

Sgt. Michael Bible, Westminster, Md., with poster winners at Taneytown Elementary School. Left to right, Ariel Wickham, first place; Michael Tangires, second; and Kevin Ridinger, third.

Maryland School Program Features Poster Contest

WESTMINSTER, Md. — The Westminster Police Department has a county wide program with all 20 elementary schools in Carroll County, Md. to go into the fifth grade classrooms and teach the children/students about the "Just Say No To Drugs" program.

After the classroom work is finished, they have a poster contest at each school, where they pick a first, second, and third place winner.

Taneytown Elementary School was recognized for having 100 percent participation in the poster contest. The classes are taught by Sergeant Michael Bible. From the 20 elementary schools, they had 1,412 posters in which they picked 58 winners, plus a grand prize winner.

The Taneytown Elementary School winners were Ariel Wickham, first; Michelle Tangires, second; and Kevin Ridinger, third. The theme title for the poster contest was "Tragedy Is Only A Drug Away! Say No To Drugs!"

The county wide awards program took place May 31. The opening remarks were made by Chief Roger Joneckis, chief of police, and there were two special guest speakers — Dr. Thomasina DePinto Piercy, Mt. Airy School principal; Jason Dieter, Baltimore Blast, indoor soccer player.

The grand prize poster (all county winner) was Matthew Miller of Sandymount Elementary School. His poster will be made into a billboard and be posted for everyone to see that travels through Westminster, Md.

Who Gets Grandma's Locket?

Sounds like a dumb question, doesn't it? In the process of grieving for a loved one, determining who gets a small piece of jewelry certainly seems insignificant.

Wrong! Just ask the many families who have had serious disagreements over the disbursement of such property. Or ask the numerous people out there who haven't spoken to a brother or sister, or aunt or uncle because of an argument over such an item.

Surprisingly it is often not the valuable items that create conflict when settling estates. The transfer of non-titled property is an issue that impacts individuals regardless of their financial worth, heritage or cultural background. Valuables such as houses, land, and vehicles are titled property and can be sold and the proceeds divided equally among the heirs. Instead, it becomes less clear how to be equal when you are dividing such things as jewelry, photos, dishes, collections, guns, tools, etc. among family members.

Generally folks don't get around to worrying about these things until one of two things occurs. Either the family is emptying a house, usually to move an aging parent into a smaller home or perhaps a nursing facility, or the other common time for this issue to arise is after the death of a loved one. Neither time is exactly conducive to unemotional, rational thinking.

Suppose instead you opted to start thinking about the distribution of this non-titled property while you or the loved one are still alive and kicking. Novel thought, huh?! Not only can you decide who is to get the stuff but you can have the pleasure of telling them. This way there are no misunderstandings about the owner's wishes. You also have a great opportunity to pass down that family history - in this case, the story of where the locket came from and the circumstances surrounding it. And if you really want to have a good time you might even think about giving away some of those valuables while you are still alive. This way you can take pleasure in seeing your heirs make use of the stuff.

OK, so maybe you are in a situation where this distribution thing was not figured out before the time of death. The entire family is now facing the overwhelming task of emptying a house and peacefully distributing the items appropriately among the family and/or friends. What are some things to think about to make this easier? One of the hardest things for families to sort out is "what is fair?" Should all children receive equal "items?"

Perhaps one child has borne the brunt of the caregiving responsibilities over the years - should they be rewarded for their efforts? Should family members with financial need receive more? Should heirs receive equal numbers of items? How do you determine who gets the first choice of items? And how do you figure out what it equal when you are dealing with a variety of objects, many of which have more sentimental value than monetary. For example, is a set of china equal to an old gun? These are only a few of the factors you may encounter.

If these distribution decisions are made ahead of time, the owner can ask heirs which items they would like to receive. The best way to insure that his or her decisions will be honored is for that person to make a list of who is to get what and mention it in their will. Be specific in the list and make sure you date the document.

Some people make verbal promises like "When I die, I want you to have my wedding ring."

Unfortunately it is common for more than one family member to be promised the same item. Boy, does that stir up some conflicts!

Some people place masking tape or other labels on items to identify who should receive them. The problem is that the labels may fall off, be removed or become illegible. Also this method is not legally binding unless a valid list is also prepared.

What can family members do if this type of pre-planning was not done? They may wish to have a private auction and allow family members to bid on the items they want. They can use real money or give each member funny money so they have equal purchasing power. This can also be done as a silent auction if family members are uncomfortable bidding against their siblings.

Most families prefer to keep sentimental items within the family. There are many ways to determine who will receive what. The distribution may be done one item at a time or by creating "lots" or groups of approximately equal monetary value.

Who gets first choice can be determined by drawing numbers, straws or rolling dice. You may prefer to use birth order, gender preference, or generation preference to determine order of selection.

If the family chooses, the household items can be sold at public auction. This means some items of sentimental value may go to people outside of the family.

The proceeds of the auction will go toward the estate and may be subject to state taxes. Other methods of distribution include a garage or yard sale or selling the items to a liquidator. Either way the proceeds go toward the estate and may be taxed.

As you can see, there are many options in distributing family heirlooms. Whenever this can be discussed before the time of death it is certainly easier. If that is impossible, it is important for family members to hold some discussion on what they consider to be fair. Why not give it some thought today so you can avoid some of these pitfalls?

Ancient Karakul Breed Thrives In Lebanon County

source of milk, meat, and wool.

The breed is considered hardier than most sheep because Karakuls have endured through centuries of adverse conditions due to limited water, scant vegetation, and extreme weather temperatures. Karakuls are resistent to foot rot, internal parasites, and have long-lasting teeth. They are excellent foragers and can survive on marginal land or a season of scant food which might kill ordinary sheep.

Karakuls are less domesticated than some breeds. They will fight off herding dogs rather than allow them to herd.

But the breed are known for easy breeding and are good moms that produce mostly single births with an occasional twin.

"Pulling lambs isn't for us," McKay said of some breeds that need to be closely watched to aid assistance during difficult births.

Because the Karakuls breed out of season, it is possible to have three lamb crops every two years.

Karakuls are born with long tails. The upper half of the tail contains a sack that begins to fill up with fat as soon as the animal is born. This section of the tail has fleece on the outside and smooth skin on the underside. Some breeders leave the entire tail intact, while others dock the lower portion.

The breed is named after a village called Karakul in Central Asia and first introduced to the United States between 1908-1929. Pelt production was the goal, but few animals were obtained which resulted in cross breeding. Eventually the flocks were dispersed, and many of the original bloodlines were lost. Interbreeding caused wide variations in body type and fleece characteristics.

Notice the fat tail of the Karakul, which is similar to a camel hump. The tail storage serves as a fat reserve for nourishment in lean times, making the breed hardy and adaptable to adverse conditions. Because fat is always stored in the tail, Karakul meat is always lean and flavorful.

The McKays pointed out the differences in texture and luster among several sheep on their farm. "You can tell when they are born whether or not the lamb will have a good fleece," Lynn said.

Karakuls differ radically in conformation than many other breeds. Fat, a source of nourishment, is stored at the base of their tails, simlar in function to the camel's hump. The breed's head is long and narrow, slightly indented between the eyes and ten exhibiting a Roman type nose. The long ears are always pointing downward and slightly forward, and vary from a long U-shape to a small V-shape. Rams can be polled or horned; varying from short to large curved spirals. Ewes are generally hornless. Wattles are not unusual.

Although the McKays compete in shows, they aren't lax concerning biosecurity. Before returning a lamb to the flock, it is segregated for a few weeks.

"I'm a Renaissance person." Lynn said of the care entailed in raising sheep. She has learned by observing and reading. When required, Lynn medicates, shears, spins—"I do it all."

Lynn uses a sheep stand for shearing because she doesn't have the strength to manually hold the sheep.

"I was told that it takes 100 shears before one feels comfortable shearing, but I already feel comfortable and it hasn't been nearly 100 times," Lynn said.

Because Karakuls have what is called an open fleece, it cannot be spread out or it would fall apart rather like horsehair.

If the lambs are not sheared twice annually, they will sweat, which causes the wool to felt. Because the wool "felts" naturally, the wool is sought after by makers of hats, coats, and carpets. The long, staple wool, which grows from six to 12-inches in length, is in demand for fiber arts.

The McKays have several rams for breeding purposes. They want to purchase one more ram from a different line and then plan to have a closed flock and cross breed selectively with the lines they own.

Karakuls are bred for fiber, milk, and meat, but it was a spark of love that first ignited Lynn McKay's interest in the rare breed.

The cedar, gable roof barn is used primarily for lambing. Ewes and babies are sheltered for 24 hours after birthing to make sure everything is fine before being reintroduced to the grazing flock.

Karakuls come in several color variations and even multi-colors, but most are born black. When the baby wool is cut off, the wool usually appears to be a shade of gray. However fleece color varies greatly, and includes shades of black, silver, tan, gray, reddish brown, sur (dark fiber base with lighter tips), and occasionally white or pied (parti-colored).

The McCay's flock contains a reddish blond ewe of which they are quite proud. "No matter who it is bred with, the red is passed on," McKay said. "We're partial to reddish brown, but variety makes it interesting. You never know what you'll get,'

Karakul meat is desired by many ethnic groups. Greeks, Middle Easteners, and Pakistanians in particular are familiar with the breed and desire the meat.

"The meat is lean, excellent in texture and flavor," Lynn said. The McKays sell lambs for meat at approximately 10 months of age.

The McKays believe that beginners can be just as successful at raising sheep for profit as veteran breeders. "Everyone who has a Karakul is exuberant about the breed and will tell you anything you want to know," McKay said.

"At shows we compete against each other, but we alway share information freely."

McKays donated a lamb to the Program to Preserve Rare Breeds during the Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival. In this program, a youth is given a lamb to show. Participants must write an essay on the importance of preserving rare breeds and promise to show it at least two local fairs and at the breed show.

Two years ago at the Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival, the McKays placed first in the junior ram division for Karakuls. At the Maryland Show this year, the Karakuls were placed in competition with all natural colored breeds.

"Entries were down because breeders were concerned about the danger of being exposed to foot and mouth disease," McKay said of the reason several breeds were combined into one division.

Despite increased difficulty in judging several breeds together—judging characteristics vary from breed to breed—the McKays won first, second, and fourth in natural colored breeds and first and second in fleeces.

For information about Karakuls, write to American Karakul Sheep Registry, 11500 Highway 5, Booneville, MO 65233.

For more information about Caledonia, write to R.1, Box 797, Fawn Hollow Drive, Newmanstown, PA 17073 or call (717) 721-9439.

Here is a recipe for one of the favorite lamb dishes the McKays enjoy.

Corinthian Lamb

- 1 pound frozen spinach, cooked, drained
- 1 pound rigatoni, cooked, drained
- 1 pound mushroom caps, quartered
- 2 pounds lamb cubes, trimmed, cut thin
- ½ cup flour
- 1 tablespoon dried basil
- 2 tablespoons green onion, chopped
- 2¼-ounces black olives, sliced, drained
- 6-ounces Feta cheese, crumbled
- 1 bottle Greek vinaigrette dressing
- Olive oil for sauting and browning

Combine flour and basil in a large Ziploc bag. Add lamb cubes and toss until well covered with flour mixture.

Heat olive oil in large skillet. Brown half the lamb until tender. Remove the lamb to an ovenproof pan and place in a heated oven to keep warm. Brown the remaining half of lamb and place in the oven.

Deglaze the skillet with a little white wine or water. Heat one tablespoon olive oil in skillet. Add green onions and mushroom caps. Saute on medium heat until heated through, about 5 minutes.

Add cooked spinach and the sliced olives to the mushrooms. Continue to cook until the spinach is heated through.

Place rigatoni in a pan with 1 cup Greek vinaigrette dressing. Warm mixture over low heat, stir gently to prevent the pasta from sticking.

To assemble dish, turn out pasta on a large platter or pasta bowl. Top with mushroom/spinach mixture. Arrange lamb over mushroom mixture and top with crumbled Feta.

Entry Deadlines Md. State Fair

Each year, the Maryland State Fair provides the opportunity for people of all ages to enter livestock in a variety of conformation and fitting and showing competitions. The events will take place from Friday, Aug. 24 through Monday, Sept. 3 at the Maryland State Fairgrounds in Timonium.

The 4-H/FFA Livestock Competitions and Shows take place during the first half of the Fair from Friday, Aug. 24 through Monday, Aug. 27. To enter, 4-H/FFA members must obtain a Premium Catalog with regulation entry blanks from their 4-H/FFA leader or county extension office or on the 4-H Website . All 4-H/FFA entry blanks must be returned to the County or City 4-H Extension Educators by July 1.

To enter, Open Class participants must obtain a Livestock Premium Catalog with regulation entry blanks, rules of eligibility and entry times by visiting the Maryland State Fair Website at marylandstatefair.com. All Open Class livestock entries must be mailed to the Maryland State Fair and postmarked before Aug. 1.

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

RHUBARB CUSTARD BARS

2 cups all purpose flour
¼ cup sugar
1 cup cold butter

Filling:

2 cups sugar
7 tablespoons all purpose flour
1 cup whipping cream
3 eggs, beaten
5 cups finely chopped, fresh or frozen rhubarb, thawed and drained

Topping:

6-ounces cream cheese, softened
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup whipping cream, whipped

In a bowl, combine the flour and sugar. Cut in butter until the mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Press into a greased 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 minutes.

Meanwhile, for filling, combine sugar and flour in a bowl. Whisk in cream and eggs. Stir in the rhubarb. Pour over crust. Bake at 350 degrees for 40-45 minutes or until custard is set. Cool.

For topping, beat cream cheese, sugar and vanilla until smooth. Fold in whipped cream. Spread over top. Cover and chill. Cut into bars. Store in the refrigerator. Yield: 3 dozen.

PEANUT BUTTER PUDDING

4 cup milk
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons flour
1 egg
pinch of salt
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup creamy peanut butter

Mix first six ingredients together and cook over medium heat until thickened. Remove from heat and add vanilla and peanut butter. Pour into serving dish and top with whipped cream topping, chopped peanuts, shaved chocolate candy or whatever is desired.

I live on a dairy farm in the Finger Lakes area. I help with the milking whenever possible. I enjoy trying new recipes.

Crystal Zimmerman
Romulus, NY

PEANUT BUTTER CREAM PIE

8-ounces cream cheese
⅔ cup powdered sugar
½ cup peanut butter
8-ounces whipped cream topping

Beat together cream cheese, powdered sugar and peanut butter. Beat again and fold into whipped cream topping.

Crust:

1 package graham crackers
3 tablespoon butter melted

Crush graham crackers and mix with melted butter. Press graham crackers in pie dish, and fill with peanut butter cream.

Be creative: top with chopped peanut butter cups or swirl with chocolate if desired.

My husband Glen and I live on a 60 acre farm. We raise 12 acres of tobacco, feed, 115 steers, brake and train horses for other people. We have three girls and one boy which love the outdoors.

BUSTER BAR DESSERT

1 lb. Oreo cookies, crushed
½ gallon vanilla ice cream
¼ cup butter, melted

Keep some of crushed cookies for topping. Mix rest with butter and press into 9x13-inch pan. Freeze for 15 minutes. Pour ice cream over crumbs. Freeze until firm for about 3 hours.

Next layer:

1 cup powdered sugar
⅔ cup evaporated milk (5-ounce can)
1½ cup salted peanuts or almonds
1 cup chocolate chips
¼ cup butter

Bring sugar, milk, chocolate chips, and butter to boil. Boil 5-8 minutes. Stir in 1 teaspoon vanilla. Allow to cool to room temperature. Spoon chocolate sauce over ice cream. Sprinkle with nuts. Freeze until firm. Spread 8-ounces whipped cream topping on top. Sprinkle with rest of cookie crumbs. Freeze 3 hours before serving.

A rich, but delicious treat.

Fredericksburg

VANILLA PUDDING

3½ cups milk, scalded
⅓ cup cornstarch
½ cup milk
¼ cup sugar or brown sugar
2 eggs

Put some of hot milk with egg, cornstarch, and sugar mixture. Mix with the rest of the hot milk until it thickens. Remove from heat and add 1 tablespoon butter, and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Put in blender when still hot and you'll have very smooth pudding.

My husband Paul and I live on a dairy farm in Cumberland County. Farm 150 acres have 50 cows and raise all our heifers. We have five children so it's a nice place to raise a family and use some of the dairy product.

Wilma Zimmerman
Newville

CORN MEAL MUFFINS

½ cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg
2 cups cornmeal
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 cups buttermilk

Line muffin tins with paper cups. Heat oven to 400 degrees. You can mix by hand. Melt butter, add sugar and egg, then mix. In another bowl, mix cornmeal, flour, salt, and baking soda.

Add to butter mixture, flour mixture and buttermilk, alternately until mixed well (Don't add all at once. Mix alternately several times, about 3.) Put in muffin tins and bake at 400 degrees for 18-20 minutes.

This is an old corn pone recipe my mother made years ago. It was baked in a 9x13 cake pan and sliced like cake.

We prefer the muffins for breakfast — warm with butter and jam. Also good with a pot of chili. You can freeze leftover muffins and reheat in microwave for a just baked taste.

My husband Marvin and I live on a 90 acre farm in Somerset County. We raise beef cows and have chickens. We are retired now, and are enjoying the good life, planting a large garden, and enjoying the outdoors, and babysitting two grandchildren.

SOUR CREAM TWISTS

3¼ cup flour
1 cup butter
1 cup sour cream
2 eggs
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine these ingredients in a large bowl. In a small bowl, dissolve 1 package dry yeast in ¼ cup warm water (105-115 degrees). Add dissolved yeast to large bowl and beat smooth. Cover and chill 2 to 48 hours.

Divide dough in half. Keep second half chilled.

Roll out dough to 8x12-inch rectangle. Sprinkle with 3 tablespoons sugar. Fold in thirds like a letter. Re-roll and sprinkle with sugar, fold twice more. Roll a fourth time and sprinkle no sugar. Cut in strips ¾ inch by 4. Twist twice and put on greased baking sheet. Repeat with other piece of dough. Cover lightly and let rise 30 minutes. Bake at 375 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes. Serve with a tall glass of cold milk.

I am the wife of a farmer, who helps out when not teaching at a local high school. We have three daughters. One is a speech teacher, one is a social worker in New Jersey and one works in customer relations for a large company. The third daughter was Bradford County dairy princess and Pennsylvania State alternate dairy princess in 1997-1998. We met many fine people across the state that year. I enjoy baking, but cannot presently as a new kitchen is "in the works." It will be grand when it is done. I enjoy all the recipes in this paper.

CABBAGE CASSEROLE

½ cup of butter
1 medium head of cabbage, cored and thinly sliced or chopped
1 large onion finely chopped
1½ cups of milk
4 eggs
14 saltine crackers, finely crushed
salt and pepper

Melt butter in a large pot. Add cabbage and onion. Stir in milk, lower heat to medium and simmer for 5 minutes. Remove pot and cool slightly.

Stir eggs, lightly beaten. Add ½ cup of crushed crackers, salt and pepper. Pour into a casserole dish and add remaining crackers on top. Bake at 325 degrees for 30 minutes.

CREAMSICLE CAKE

1 box orange cake mix
1 cup boiling water
1 small box orange Jell-O

Bake orange cake mix as directed. While warm, poke holes in cake with fork. Mix in 1 cup boiling water with 1 small box orange Jell-O. Pour mixture over cake and chill.

Topping:

1 cup milk
1 small box instant vanilla pudding
3 tablespoons orange juice
½ pint whipping cream (whipped)

Mix first three ingredients, and add to whipped cream. Spread on chilled cake. Refrigerate until served.

Wow! It's hard to believe that my year as Dauphin County Dairy Princess is coming to a close. It's definitely been a year of learning for me and my entire court, but we've had a ton of fun doing it. I'd like to thank everyone who's made this year possible for me, especially the dairy farmers. If it wasn't for hard work and dedication of dairy farmers, and the dairy industry, I would not have had this marvelous opportunity.

BANANA BRAN MUFFINS

1 cup butter
1 cup brown sugar
6 mashed bananas
½ cup milk
2 teaspoons vanilla
4 eggs
3 cups flour
1 cup natural wheat bran
2 teaspoons baking soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt

Combine ingredients and pour into muffin pans. Bake at 375 degrees for 25 minutes or until it tests done.

SILVER DOLLAR PANCAKES

2 eggs
2 cups buttermilk
4 tablespoons oil
2 cups flour
2½ tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt

Beat eggs and add remaining ingredients in order listed and beat until smooth. Drop by tablespoon into hot pan. Serve with butter and syrup. Makes 10-12 4-inch pancakes.

MORE RICE PUDDING, PLEASE

6 cups milk
1 large can evaporated milk
2½ cups water
1 cup rice
4 large eggs
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Bring rice, water, milk, and evaporated milk to boil. Boil 40 minutes or until rice is tender and mixture is thick and creamy. Remove from heat; keep hot. In a large bowl, mix eggs, sugar, and vanilla until very frothy.

Add rice mixture slowly to egg mixture and fold in. Sprinkle with cinnamon and/or nutmeg if desired. Chill.

So good, we love it! Love your recipes, keep them coming.

SCALLOPED OYSTERS

4 cups coarsely crushed crackers
2 cups milk
10-ounce can oysters
1 scant tablespoon salt
1 egg
pepper to taste
⅓ cup butter

Line bottom of 1½ quart casserole dish with crackers, then oysters and crackers, making two layers of each. Add milk to the eggs and pour over the mixture when you are ready to put it in the oven. Arrange butter in slices on top and bake at 350 degrees for 45-60 minutes.

We like this casserole for special occasions, holidays, etc. We use a lot of milk as the children all like it. I always look forward to reading the dairy recipes in June for more ideas.

My husband, Mervin, and I have seven children: Matthew, 9; Lowell, 7; Lillian, 6; Mary Alice, 4; Lloyd, 3; Mervin Lee, 1; and Minerva, 2 months.

SOUR CREAM POTATOES

2 pounds cooked, shredded potatoes
½ cup onions
1 cup Velveeta cheese
1 quart sour cream
1 can cream of chicken soup

Mix together and put in a baking dish.

Topping:

Mix
½ cup melted butter
1 cup cornflakes or bread crumbs

Sprinkle on top with paprika. Can make a day ahead.

We enjoy reading Lancaster Farming. Thanks to all for sharing delicious recipes.

SWEDISH EGGS

12 slices bread
1 pound Velveeta cheese
12 eggs
4 cups milk
2 cups chopped ham
½ cup butter
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Place cubed bread, and then cubed cheese in a greased 9x13-inch pan. Melt butter and pour over bread and cheese. Put chopped ham on top. Beat remaining ingredients and pour over everything. Refrigerate overnight; bake at 350 degrees for 1½ hour, covered. Uncover the last 10 minutes.

This recipe can easily be halved and baked in a 9-inch square pan. Delicious!

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

We've gotten some rain and so I've transplanted some flower plants. Even though I had a lot of ground on the calendula's roots, they really wilted while the fragile, bare-rooted lady slippers look fine.

Maybe flowers are somewhat like people in that some move easily from place to place while other like to stay put. Some of our children have moved so many times. One has gone from Pennsylvania to Texas to Indiana and on to Maine. I've never gotten very far from the place where I was born except in traveling and that suits me fine.

We built our log house in a corner of one meadow and from here I look out over land sloping to the Conestoga River. And, there are dark, green woodlands on both sides of the meadow. Here the birds sing continually every morning as I pick peas in my garden.

The other day when I was hoeing in the garden, a small, black bumblebee type insect stung me three times. He followed me almost to the house. This made me leery of returning. But after a while, I started hoeing again in the opposite end of the garden. Here I saw that there are broccoli heads to cut off already.

The row of purple beans and peanuts were accidentally rototilled out and only a few came up here and there. I surely wish I knew someone who would like some horseradish roots as mine are spreading all over the place.

Our son has finally started to build a small house in the wood lot in Tioga County. They wanted to start in the spring, but the roads were closed with snow. They built a new road to the site as the former one was too steep. There is a small stream which is an attraction for the small children.

Last week my husband spent nine hours in the car driving up there and back again. It was a surprise to see him home as I expected him to stay in his camper overnight.

Grilled Meat's Cancer Risk Remains Unclear

Every summer, rumors swarm about cancer risks associated with barbecue-grilled food. Is grilling food safe?

As with any type of cancer-associated risk, the amount of potential carcinogens that you ingest affects the risk. People who eat a lot of grilled meat — and "a lot" isn't really defined, unfortunately — might want to take some precautions.

The problem, according to the American Institute for Cancer Research, comes in the form of compounds called heterocyclic amines (HCAs). Natural substances in red or white meat form HCAs when subjected to high heat, and HCAs have been linked with increased cancer risk in some animal studies. More HCAs form when the cooking time is longer and the cooking temperature is higher, whether the meat is grilled, broiled or pan-fried.

Other compounds, called polycyclicaromatic hydrocarbons (PAHs), are found in the charred parts of meat and in the smoke from juices and fat dripping on barbecue coals or stones. PAHs are mutagens, substances that can alter the genetic material of cells, and have been linked to cancer in animal tests. Like HCAs, however, a link between PAHs and human cancer hasn't been confirmed.

A recent study, reported in the Proceedings of the 92nd Annual Meeting of the American Association for Cancer Research, indicates some people may be at higher risk from substances formed in well-done red meat. Those people have specific genetic variations in which enzymes change the substances into cancer-causing agents. This could be why cause-and-effect is so hard to determine — many other factors can come into play to make the compounds more risky, or less.

To reduce your risk, you can:

— Clean the grill before using it, scraping away old charred food bits.

— Remove visible fat before putting the meat on the grill.

— Marinate meat before grilling. For some reason, it appears to reduce the number of potentially risky compounds.

— Microwave meat for 1.5 to two minutes before putting it on the grill. That way the meat needs less time on the grill, reducing charring and smoke exposure.

— Turn meat several times during cooking to minimize charring.

— Use an indirect grilling method instead of placing meat directly over coals. Raise the grill as far above the fire as possible. Consider using aluminum foil under meat.

— Cut away charred portions of the meat before eating.

— Include fruits and vegetables on the menu. Even when grilled, they don't form the same compounds as meat.

cake mix, mixed according to directions. It makes two 9x13-inch pans of high and fluffy yellow cake.

With busy summer days coming up, cake served with fruit is most often our dessert.

My husband and I rent my parents' farm. We have heifers, pigs, and chickens. My husband, Amos, also works at a farm supply store.

Our two sons, Wilson, age 5, and Marlin, age 1, enjoy the outdoors and so do we.

LASAGNA

1 small chopped onion
2 small sprigs parsley, snipped and chopped
1 pound ground beef
2 cups canned tomatoes
15-ounce can tomato sauce
⅛ teaspoon instant minced garlic
1 teaspoon oregano
1 teaspoon salt
½ pound lasagna noodles
¾ pound mozzarella cheese
6 ounces cheddar cheese
4 ounces grated Parmesan cheese

Brown ground beef. Add onion, parsley, tomatoes, tomato sauce, garlic, oregano, and salt. Cover and simmer one hour.

Cook noodles in four-quart saucepan according to package. Drain and cover bottom of 9x13-inch baking pan with sauce; add a layer of noodles. Sprinkle with ½ the mozzarella cheese, then more sauce; repeat layers. Top with cheddar, Parmesan cheese. Bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees. Let stand five minutes for easier cutting. Makes 12 servings.

My family really enjoys it when I serve this lasagna. We live on a 100-plus acre farm with 42 cows and heifers, chickens, and a horse. We also have a large garden and lots of flowers. I am a homemaker. My husband, Kenneth, and I have two boys 9 and 8 years old and three girls 6, 3, and 16 months old, so I'm a busy mom. I help in the barn or wherever I'm needed besides doing "Mother's work." I always enjoy the B section in Lancaster Farming

FROZEN PISTACHIO DELIGHT

1½ cups graham cracker crumbs
6 tablespoons melted butter
1¼ cups milk
7½ ounces pistachio instant pudding
½ gallon vanilla ice cream
8 ounces frozen whipped topping
2 tablespoons grated semi-sweet chocolate morsels

Melt butter, mix with crumbs and press in 9x13-inch pan. Mix pudding with milk. Fold pudding into softened ice cream and spread over crust. This can be done with an electric mixer. Cover with frozen whipped topping and top with grated chocolate chips. Freeze. Remove from freezer a few minutes before serving.

Deidre Weliswitz, Flemington, N.J., holds pet goat "Speedy." She grows and sells hay with her father and brother.

My husband Earl and I live on a 50-acre farm and feed around 400 veal calves. We have eight children: Darren, 13; Amy, 11; Darla, 10; Mary Ann, 8; Jerome, 6; Troy, 4; and twins Jesse and Joel, 2.

We enjoy this dessert on warm summer days and use a lot of dairy products. I'm looking forward to reading and trying new recipes in the June dairy month.

MOM'S BUTTERMILK COOKIES

½ cup softened butter (no substitutes)
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2½ cups all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup buttermilk

In a mixing bowl, cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in egg and vanilla. Combine flour, baking soda, and salt; add to the creamed mixture alternately with buttermilk and mix well. Drop by rounded tablespoon two inches apart onto greased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 10-12 minutes.

This is a recipe I got out of a magazine and make a lot. I often triple the recipe and often use my own buttermilk. My husband Glenn and I live on a dairy farm with our four boys Darryl, 14; Brian, almost 11; Anthony, 7; and Clyde, 3. We use a lot of milk products. I enjoy gardening, hand sewing and cooking.

8 ounces cream cheese
1 ounce instant vanilla pudding
2 cups cool whip
½ teaspoon baking cocoa

Put cake in 9x13-inch cake pan. In a small bowl mix ¼ cup cappuccino and ½ cup milk. Pour over cake. Mix cream cheese, pudding, ¼ cup cappuccino and 1½ cups milk. Fold in cool whip. Spoon over cake and sprinkle with cocoa.

LASAGNA DINNER

2 pounds ground beef
1½ teaspoon garlic powder
80 ounces tomato sauce
2 teaspoons basil leaves
1 teaspoon oregano leaves
1½ cups chopped onion
2 tablespoons parsley flakes
2 teaspoons sugar
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
16 ounces lasagna noodles

Cheese mixture:
2 eggs
16 ounces cottage cheese
15 ounces ricotta cheese
½ cup Parmesan cheese

Brown beef, drain. Add remaining ingredients, stir. Bring to a boil and simmer about 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. Prepare cheese mixture and cook lasagna noodles while meat sauce is simmering.

In a separate bowl grate:
2 pounds mozzarella cheese

In bottom of pans spread one cup meat sauce, one layer of noodles, 1¼ cups sauce, one layer of noodles, ¼ cheese mixture, ¼ mozzarella. Repeat once topping with mozzarella and sprinkling with Parmesan. Bake at 350 degrees for 50 minutes, until bubbly.

(Makes 2 9x13x2-inch pans)

Greetings from Emmitsburg, Frederick County, Maryland. My husband, David, just loves my lasagna and wants to know why people are so skimpy with the cheese.

Blessed with a beautiful spring, we are looking forward to a great year grazing. Our dairy herd consists of Jerseys and Holsteins.

We homeschool our two sons, Ben, 14, and Jacob, 11½. They are very busy on the farm and in 4-H. Besides the dairy cows we have a goat, a sheep, some rabbits, an orphaned Limousin calf, a Percheron stallion, and Border Collie dogs.

I like to make two pans of lasagna (less dishwashing) and keep one to bake another day.

CHOCOLATE POUND CAKE

2½ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup butter
1¾ cups sugar
3 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla
3 squares melted chocolate
1 cup milk

Sift flour with baking powder, soda and salt, set aside. In a large bowl on medium speed, beat butter and sugar until light and fluffy.

Add eggs and vanilla. Beat at low speed, adding chocolate until melted. Beat in flour mixture alternately with milk. Beat until well blended. Put in greased tube pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 60-65 minutes. Cool in pan five minutes, then turn out on rack.

Mark and Lisa Hassler's family work on their own 132 acre beef and crop farm in Bethel.

I farm in central New Jersey with my dad and brother.

We grow all hay on our farm and we sell hay all over, so I get to meet many people with a variety of animals and see many farms close and far away. I also raise a large variety of poultry and a lot of goats. There is always something to do on our farm. Longer daylight means longer hours.

Enjoy your summer and God bless you all!

LEMON THYME CAKE

2 cups unbleached flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
sprinkle salt
6 tablespoons softened butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 tablespoon grated lemon zest
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
2 tablespoons chopped lemon thyme
⅔ cup milk

Glaze

½ cup icing sugar
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Grease and flour loaf pan. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. In another bowl, cream butter and beat in the sugar until fluffy. Add eggs and beat well. Stir in lemon zest, two tablespoons lemon juice, lemon thyme and milk. Slowly whisk in the flour mixture and mix well. Pour into loaf pan. Bake one hour or until knife inserted comes out clean.

My husband Mark, and I have 132 acres that we farm. We have been married for 15 years and have five children: Samantha, 14; Tommy, 12; Katie, 10, Tommy, 8; and last but not least Matthew, 15 months. We had dairy cattle for most of our married life but are currently doing beef and crops. One of my favorite flavors is lemon! When I came upon this recipe I couldn't get enough with all the added lemon flavors. I hope you enjoy this as much as we do.

DIP TO DIE FOR

2 minced spring onions
1 cup mayonnaise
8 ounces cream cheese
12-ounces grated Swiss cheese bacon bits
Ritz crackers

Mix together and sprinkle bacon bits on top. Serve with Ritz crackers. Serves 12.

This recipe is an appetizer that I serve at home parties that I host. People really enjoy the creamy texture, yet surprising cheese flavor.

My husband and I live on a working dairy farm. We have 100 dairy animals, but milk 50 of them. We have four children: Katy, 10; Lyndsay, 7; Aimee, 4; and Kyle, 2.

JELL-O CHEESECAKE

5-ounce package lemon Jell-O
16 ounces cream cheese
2 cups boiled water
2 cans evaporated milk

Crust:

1 whole stack pack of graham crackers, crushed
¼ cup butter
2 tablespoons sugar

Mix and form crust in 9x13-inch glass pan. Save two tablespoons mixture to sprinkle on top.

Beat cream cheese, then add milk slowly. Add Jello which was dissolved in boiled water. Mix until smooth. Pour into pan lined with graham crust mixture. Sprinkle two tablespoons of crumbs on top. Refrigerate until firm. Excellent summer treat!

My husband Jim and I live in Thomasville. We have a 10-acre farmette, have horses, and make our own hay. I enjoy reading the recipes in Lancaster Farming and trying different ones all the time.

QUESTION — Tim Bowigeois is an intern at the New Jersey Museum of Agriculture and is conducting research on the use of steam power for agriculture in New Jersey during the 1800s and early 1900s. His research is focused on the how, when, where, to what extent, and possibly who used steam tractors or engines in agriculture and other related fields such as lumber harvesting. Does anyone know of steam engine and tractor manufacturers or dealers that were based in New Jersey during that era. Any assistance would be greatly appreciation. Contact Tim at Rutgers, State University of New Jersey, 18384 CPO Way, New Brunswick, NJ 08901-8633 or phone (856) 447-5259.

QUESTION — Louise Oberholtzer, Shippensburg, wants the music to the songs, "Home On the Range" and "Country Roads."

QUESTION — The Yoder family is restoring an old spring wagon, with the name W&H Rowland — Philadelphia stamped on the springs. Does anyone know when this company was in business?

QUESTION — Mrs. Luke Hoover, Mifflinburg, wants to know where to buy flower bulb baskets, used to grow and store bulbs, at a low price.

QUESTION — Stephanie Luckenbaugh, Abbottstown, is looking for a recipe or instructions on making dandelion shampoo.

QUESTION — Diana Hansen, Turnersville, N.J., would like instructions for making with braided rugs from rags or the craft for painted floor mats.

QUESTION — Earl Brinton, Severn, Md., has a problem with crows nesting in his area. This resulted in no baby robins last year. What can be done to discourage crows from settling in residential neighborhoods?

ANSWER — Susan High wanted information about Milton Hershey. William Bard writes that he has some interesting facts and artifacts she might like. Write to him at 10 Pleasant Dr., Lancaster, PA 17602.

ANSWER — Several readers sent in different versions of the words to the song, "Casey Jones," which is about a train engineer who died while trying to stop a train. Because poems and songs require so much space, we will no longer print them. However, we do want to assist those who are looking for that information. From now on, if you want the words to songs and poems, send your name and address with your request. That way the person who knows the words can contact you directly. Whenever possible, we prefer not to include addresses and phone numbers because answers should be sent to this paper so that other readers interested in the information can read it. But in the case of long answers or in negotiating prices, it is sometimes necessary to print addresses or phone numbers.

ANSWER — Gary Hearn, 10411 Windingridge Circle, Richmond, VA 23233, wanted parts for a 1963 Studebaker E-38 1½ ton truck. Thanks to Tom Hill, Boyertown, for e-mailing that Dennis Weinstieger, Boyertown, has a lot of studebaker parts in stock. If he doesn't have the parts required, he can probably tell you where to find them. Call Dennis at (610) 367-9578.

ANSWER — Terry Raschel, 3797 Sells Mill Rd., Taneytown, Md., 21787, needs a used livestock scale. Thanks to Dick Herring for e-mailing that Raschel should call (717) 656-7353.

ANSWER — A reader wanted to know the do's and don'ts of growing celery. Thanks to Peggy Thompson, Huntingdon, for e-mailing the following instructions: Celery thrives where growing seasons are long, moist, and cool, but most varieties will not tolerate frost.

Choose a site that gets at least six hours of sun a day and has moist, rich soil with a pH of 6.0 to 6.5. See how to get your soil tested. Ensure moisture retention by enriching soil with plenty of compost or well-cured manure.

Sprinkle planting area with wood ashes to increase its potassium content.

Buy started celery plants at nursery. Otherwise, start seeds indoors about eight weeks before the last expected frost.

Harden off seedlings; then transplant to garden when temperatures are 50 degrees. Don't be tempted to rush the season. Plants exposed to temperatures in the 40s for 10-15 days are likely to bolt (go to seed prematurely).

Set plants slightly deeper than they were growing in their flats, spacing them 6-10 inches apart, and water with a diluted solution of fish emulsion and seaweed extract.

Mulch to retain moisture and deter weeds, and install floating row covers to fend off insect pests.

Keep soil damp, and feed once a month with manure tea.

Harvest celery as soon as it's large enough to use. Either cut off individual stems as they develop color or pull the entire plant and cut off the roots.

If your climate can't provide daytime temperatures between 65-75 degrees during the day and 60-65 degrees at night, forget growing celery. Instead devote the space to less finicky vegetables and buy celery at the best produce market you can find.

ANSWER — Matthew Maleski, Weatherly, requested information on Irish Dexters. Thanks to Peggy Thompson, Huntingdon, for sending information. Here is some information, for more details, check out the website http:/www.brp.com.au/dexter.info.shtml. Dexters are small cattle (distinct from miniatures) that are thought to have originated in Ireland. Dexters produce both meat and milk. The meat is small in size with a delightful, unique taste. Dexters are prolific milkers and can easily rear two calves at a time. During the 1930s breed numbers started to decline and reached the endangered species list. However, numbers are increasing, and believed to be almost on par with Jerseys.

Dexters are said to have a very good temperament and are highly intelligent. Easy calving without assistance if matched with a Dexter bull. They can breed as early as seven months (but not recommended) and continue to breed to 14-15 years of age.

ANSWER — Both Robert DeLong, Walden, N.Y., and Kathryn Robson, Lebanon, wanted to know where to purchase egg boxes. Thanks to a reader for writing that all sizes are available from Egg Cartons.com, div. of Kings Supply, 24 Holt Rd., P.O. Box 302, Manchaug, MA 01526-0302. Call 1-888-852-5340.

ANSWER — Janice Jones writes that she has both songbooks, "Country and Western Gospel Humnal" and "Living Praise," requested by a reader. Write to Jones at 88 Old York Rd., Bordentown, N.J. 08505.

ANSWERS — Steve Laucks, Red Lion, requested the name of a person or business that specializes in restoration of a stone spring house in which the water flows beneath the concrete floor instead of through the trough. The interior wood is rotting and decaying. He received several calls.

Lycoming County Dairy Princess Pageant

NISBET (Lycoming Co.) — On June 9, Donnica Greider and Jessica Steppe competed for the dairy princess title at the Nisbet Volunteer Fire Company, social hall. Donnica Greider was crowned Lycoming County Dairy Princess.

Donnica is the 17-year-old daughter of Jeff and Donna Greider, Linden. In the fall, she will be entering the 12th grade at Jersey Shore Senior High School. She is the first child out of four, with two sisters and one brother. Donnica is the reporter for the school yearbook and was in the Bottle Run 4-H club for nine years. Donnica has also served as dairy maid for many years. She also spends a great deal of time working on her family farm, Greider Holsteins.

Donnica performed a skit relating to children in preschool or kindergarten. She played the role of a cow, and explained for the audience how much a cow eats and why, and what is needed for a cow to produce milk.

Alternate Jessica Steppe is the 16-year-old daughter of James and Deborah Steppe, Williamsport. In the fall, she will be entering the 11th grade at Jersey Shore Senior High School. She is the seventh child out of nine, with four sisters and four brothers. She is also the statistician for the boys track team and is active in her local church. Jessica also spends a great deal of time on her family farm, Pleasant Hills Hay and Dairy Farm.

Jessica performed a skit ranging for children in classes 1-3. She acted as a teacher explaining the great need to drink milk, she also informed the class about lactose intolerance, osteoporosis, and the Real Seal.

As the dairy maids were introduced and crowned, they each gave a small speech about themselves. They are Vanessa Greider, 15, daughter of Jeff and Donna Greider, Linden; Kellyn Lovell, 13, daughter of F. Scott and Rhonda Lovell, Linden; Laura Shutts, 13, and Sarah Shutts, 15, daughters of David and Becky Shutts, Williamsport; Regina Steppe, 14, daughter of James and Deborah Steppe, Williamsport; Rebecca Ulmer, 14, daughter of Daniel and Susan Ulmer, Jersey Shore; and Sara Ulrich, 14, daughter of Charles and Suzette Ulrich, Allenwood.

Dairy Misses Ashley Derr, 9, daughter of Earnest and Wanda Derr, Linden, and Nichole Greider, 11, daughter of Jeff and Donna Greider, Linden.

After both Donnica and Jessica performed their skits, they each answered an impromptu question. The crowning followed remarks of the year by Wanda Derr. Also Melinda Wolfe: Pennsylvania's Dairy Princess presented a speech. She also crowned Dominica and Jessica. Immediately following the crowning, an ice cream social was held for all attendees.

Committee members who planned the event included Beth Ann Cooley; Wanda Derr; Rhonda Folgeman; Donna Greider; and Becky Steppe. The judges were Rebecca Burke, Ann Gehret, and Lynn Laver. Here is a recipe in recognition of June Dairy Month from Alternate Dairy Princess Jessica Steppe.

Make Your Own Butter

1 cup of whipping cream, room temperature
1 small jar with a secure lid
1 bowl
1 wooden spoon

Pour the whipping cream into the jar. Put the lid on tight and shake it unil you see the butter clump in it and there is a bluish-white liquid on top. Pour the butter and liquid into the bowl and drain off the liquid. Wash the butter with cold water. Press the butter against the side of the bowl with the wooden spoon and rinse it with cold water until the water is clear. Keep pressing the butter until the extra water is removed. Put the butter on bread or crackers.

'Fer Nice' 1800's Lehnware Prized By Folk Art Collectors

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

LANDIS VALLEY (Lancaster Co.) — Hard work necessitated many practical items for use in 1800's homes, but "just fer nice" pieces were also greatly prized.

In response to this demand, Joseph Lehn (1798-1892) painted many pieces of miniature woodenware to add a bright spot to home decor. His work continues to be sought by folk art collectors. Recently Landis Valley conducted workshops about Lehn and his work that is referred to as Lehnware.

Dr. Donald Herr, a veterinarian who collects Pennsylvania German decorative arts, is well acquainted with Lehnware. He wrote a book about it and has a rare collection. During the workshop, Herr said that Lehn was a farmer turned woodworker in the village of Clay, Lancaster County.

The most extensive display of Lehnware is at the Heritage Center Museum, 13 W. King Street, Lancaster. The exhibit includes 100 pieces from museums and private collections, many never exhibited previously.

Included in the exhibit are five rare seed chests considered by folk art collectors to be the culmination of artistry.

Lehn's brightly-colored work often incorporated repetitions of strawberry, pomegranates, and floral motifs. An undulating border similar to the pussy willow was used extensively.

Tulip poplar was used most frequently to make the cups and saffron boxes. The majority of chests were made from pine. White oak was used for making barrels and buckets.

Lehn's daybook shows his signature and the source material he used. This helps to separate his work from those who copied his designs.

Most of the cups and saffron boxes featured a base or edge of the foot as dark blue, followed by a green stripe, red stem, green stripe, salmon bowl, and red border. The lids were green, then salmon, and finials always painted a dark blue.

Herr said that salmon seem to be his favorite color and used often as the dominate color. The background colors of yellow, blue, and blue-green are found less frequently.

Popular too was a fine yellow or cream line on the front, top, and sides of chests, seed chests, sewing boxes, buckets, harvest buckets, sugar stands, candle boxes, and other objects.

The woodenware was small. Typically cups ranged in sizes from 1½-5-inches, buckets from 6-12 inches.

Although Lehn's work is found prolifically on wooden goblets, cups, saucers, saffron boxes, and chests, other pieces exist. These include candle boxes, footstools, a thread holder, wooden egg, game board, a play cart of this grandchildren, melodeons, violins, penny banks, toys, and a birdhouse.

Lehn's daybook listed little chests at 75 cents and larger chests at $1.25. Compare that with today's auction where the pieces have been known to bring between $150-$3,000. A wooden bucket brought a high bid of $22,000.

According to early records found at Trinity Lutheran Church, Lancaster, Lehn's father died when he was only two years old. His mother married a widower with four children. Lehn eventually married the eldest, his step sister Elisabeth Erb. They built a brick home on land Elisabeth inherited.

Lehn and his wife had four children, one of his son's obviously inherited some of his father's artistic talents, for Henry incorporated some of his father's designs into preparing fraktur birth certificates.

Census records listed Lehn as a farmer in 1850 and 1860. In 1870, census records list him as a cooper (one who makes or repairs wooden tubs). Written documentation by Mennonite Bishop Jacob N. Brubaker describes Lehn as daily employed in making boxes, buckets, etc., which he finishes "so very tastefully, that but few can equal."

Several contemporary makers of Lehn's era duplicated his work. Some of these artists are Peter Stauffer, J. H. Sechrist, William Carl Heilig, Jacob Brubaker, and John Bucher. Although their work is often very similar, Herr and other folk art experts are able to discern differences among the artists.

For example, John B. Bucher learned to turn from Lehn but preferred to shellac his work rather than paint it. Other artists often initialed their pieces.

Herr said, "The discovery of these signed pieces by other craftspeople makes it clear that many made the decorative styles and designs and used the repetition of paint colors that have become known as typical Lehnware."

Herr said that he tends to be conservative when discerning information that isn't clearly recorded. For example, he isn't certain that all the wooden turnings were done by Lehn himself or if he only painted the woodenware. However, Lehn was known to have been a chairmaker. Lehn was also reported to have a finger that he could not bend. A photograph of Lehn clearly shows a extended finger.

Lehnware continues to be copied by craftsmen today. The name refers to the general style made famous by Lehn and not necessarily his craftmanship.

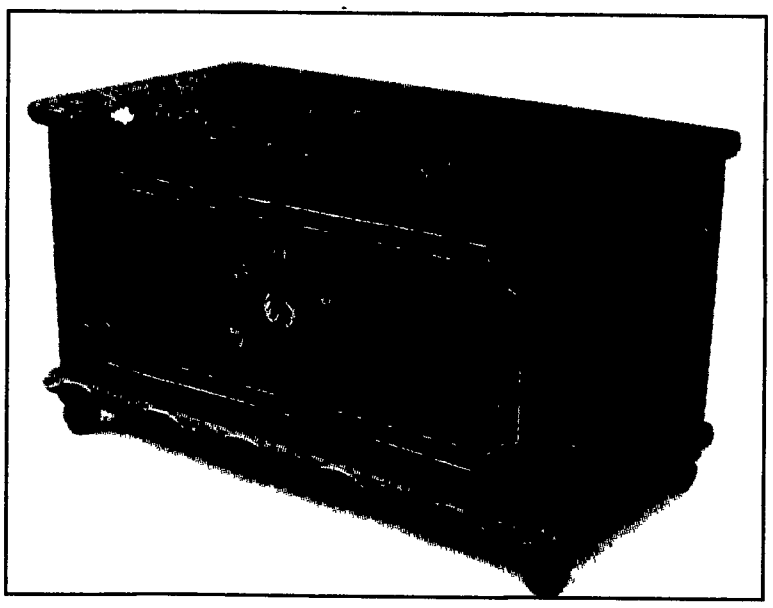
Herr's book, "Joseph Lehn and Lehnware," is a 12-page monograph containing 11 examples illustrated in color and 18 black and white photos. It is available for $5 plus $1.25 for shipping and six percent sales tax for Pennsylvania residents. Send check to The Heritage Center Museum, 13 W. King St., Lancaster, PA 17603. The monograph can also be picked up during visiting hours to the museum, which is open Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Admission is free. For more details, call (717) 299-6440.

Saffron box, at left, was painted by Joseph Lehn when he was 92-years-old.

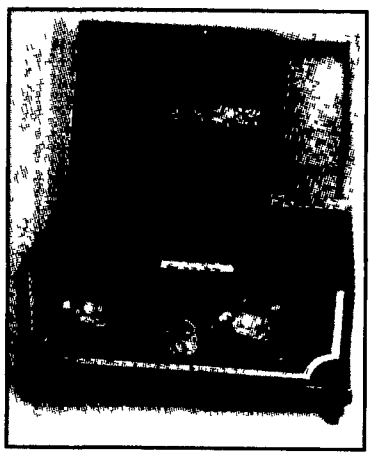
Joseph Lehn, 1798-1892, started out farming but became prolific in painting decorative woodenware. His distinctive work and those of artists who copied his style is referred to as lehnware.

Joseph Lehn's work features gaily painted pieces using a repetition of paint colors and forms. These pieces are on display at Landis Valley Museum.

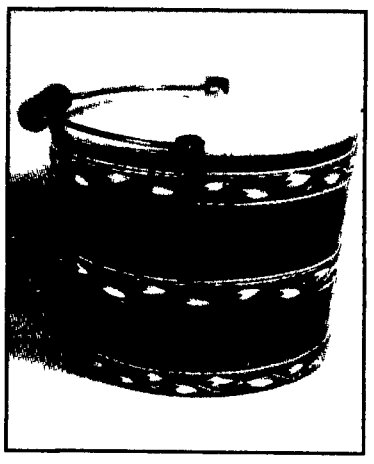
Dr. Donald Herr, right, discusses his monograph book, "Joseph Lehn and Lehnware," with collector Dick Detweiler. The 12-page monograph contains 11 examples illustrated in color and 18 black and white photos. It is available for $5 plus $1.25 for shipping and six percent sales tax for Pennsylvania residents. Send check to The Heritage Center Museum, 13 W. King St., Lancaster, PA 17603. The monograph can also be picked up during visiting hours to the museum.



Miniature chest made by Joseph Lehn is sought after by folk art collectors today. Penciled inside the lid of this one are the words: Made by Joseph Lehn for Mary Brubaker Rickert. She lived next door to Lehn. The chest is part of the Rickert's granddaughter Herma Losensky's collection. Similar Lehn chests have been auctioned between $150-$3,000.



This sewing chest is attributed to Joseph Lehn, who sometimes incorporated decal designs with hand-painted decoration.



Typical of Lehnware, this bucket is only seven inches high. Most pieces were made "just fer nice" and not for use. Most buckets featured iron bands and a wandering vine motif. Recently a Lehn bucket sold at auction for $22,000.

Wilton's Heritage Project Takes Shape

WILTON, CONN. - On January 17, the historic Sloan-Raymond-Fitch house traveled down Route 7 in Wilton.

Separated from its 18th century stone foundation and huge central chimney, it was pulled by a powerful truck as it balanced on a steel undercarriage and rolled on 14 airplane wheels.

Because of the upcoming widening of U.S. Route 7, and because the federally approved Environmental Impact Assessment (EIS) contained a Memorandum of Agreement protecting historic resources, the Connecticut Department of Transportation had to assume responsibility for relocating this classical central chimney house. Not only was it on the National Register of Historic Places, it was also Wilton's Heritage Museum. Noting this, the Department of the Interior required DOT to relocate and restore this building in a manner that would allow it to remain on the National Register.

This story actually began nearly seven years ago when DOT engineers fist asked, "Mrs. Gould, do you have a place to move your museum?"

As a result, the decision was made to acquire the Blackmar House, 2,000 feet further south on Route 7 as a future home for Fitch House. The relocation would bring together two significant 18th century dwellings. Five years passed with not much happening on Route 7.

During that time the Historical Society structurally restored the Betts-Sturgess-Blackmar house and began the interior work in its period rooms. Two years ago the Society rescued a local 19th century barn and blacksmith shop about to be demolished and rebuilt them on the Betts-Sturgess-Blackmar site. These buildings are not only architecturally striking, but serve an important function as collections storage and work space during the construction period.

In early 2000 DOT began discussions with the owners of the properties to be acquired for the widening project. The offer made to the Historical Society did not recognize the historic value of the building until the matter of the Memorandum of Agreement was brought to their attention. Almost a year ago a final compromise was agreed to, with the state covering the majority of the costs of relocating and restoring the building. With that agreement, work was started on inventorying and packing for storage 7,000 items in the museum's collections.

By early October the collections were moved onto off-site storage and the office and gift shop were relocated to 224 Danbury Road, into the "new" museum, the Betts-Sturgess-Blackmar house. The crew of carpenters began to ready Fitch House for its historic move. The oldest portion of the house, the rear ell, was dismantled and the roof was taken down. Tons of stones used to build the original huge chimney base and cellar foundation walls were dismantled and the venerable old post and beam house (weighing more than 200 tons) rested on huge steel beams and wood cribbing.

Meanwhile, back at the receiving site, footings had been poured

English Porcelain
Adapted Oriental Patterns

How often have you picked up a porcelain bowl at an antique show assuming it was probably Japanese in the Imari pattern? It was probably a surprise when you turned the bowl over and it had an English maker's mark such as Worcester or Royal Crown Derby. Or, even Meissen or Delft marks. The popularity of Oriental patterns from Japanese Imari to Chinese chinoiserie (a European interpretation of the Chinese taste) motifs has continued since it was first introduced to Europe in the 18th century.

In fact, by the mid-18th century, so much had been made that it went out of fashion until the late 19th century.

Proof of its continuing popularity are the auction prices for even early 20th century dinner services. When a 34 piece set of Royal Crown Derby Imari pattern porcelain, c. 1909, came to a recent Skinner Auction, it sold over its estimate of $1,000-$1,600 for $2,645. However, a single bowl, mid-18th century, made by Derby, Worcester or others in the Imari style and colors could sell for as much as $2,000.

Sprode is one of the most prominent English makers, specializing in the Japanese pattern. It also used many Sevres decorations. It is known for heavy gilding, as well as vivid colors and intricate designs. Another is Worcester whose interpretation of the Imari style came from the Japanese Satsuma.

It all began when the Dutch East India Company began exporting Japanese porcelain when the Chinese Civil War nearly ended China's ceramic manufacture. Imari porcelain was shipped by the company first to Holland. The bright color combinations of cobalt blue, iron red and gold became instantly popular. Their shapes, fashionable in Europe at the time made them even more popular. Typical motifs were of textiles, chrysanthemums and landscapes often enclosed in panels.

Clues: Some pattern names and terms can help identify the maker and date English Imari pattern porcelain.

English Imari patterns can have strange names such as "Jabberwocky." It was a Worcester pattern done in Imari colors with a mythical creature amid fruits and flowers. It came from the Lewis Carroll book, "Through The Looking Glass," 19th century. Another Worcester pattern, "Japanese Fan" featured four fan shaped designs alternating with four gold diaper designs.

Japonaiserie: A French word for European decoration with a fantasy design.

Brocade pattern: Red, blue and gold designs that imitated the look of brocade. This pattern was used in England by Worcester and Chelsea. Meissen porcelain in Germany also used it.

Mandarin decoration: A decoration using figure-subjects that something alternated with flowers in panels. Adapted from Chinese export porcelain designs by English porcelain companies such as Swansea.

Marks can be confusing. For example, Edm'e Samson er Cie of Paris made copies of Chinese export porcelain, Continental and English. Sometimes the Chinese export is marked with an "S" other times with pseudo Oriental characters. It could be mistaken for 18th century English Chinoiserie designs. Chinese export and Japanese Imari are unmarked. Some 18th century Worcester porcelain in the Kylin pattern (Chinese influence) is unmarked.

Pseudo-Chinese seal-marks were used on some Oriental motif porcelain made by Bow, Caughly and Worcester.

To learn more, one of the many informative books is "A Collector's History British Porcelain by John and Margaret Cushion. Published by Antique Collector's Club, 5 Church St., Woodbridge, Suffolk, England.

Wilton's Heritage Project

and the "new" structure connecting the two 18th century structures had begun to rise on new foundation walls. The primary central structure is a reconstructed 19 century barn that was south of Wilton High School. It will serve as an exhibition gallery, with the loft providing for the presentation of the Society's large collection of dolls, toys, and dollhouses and a lower level that will provide a properly outfitted area for textiles and costume storage, conservation, and exhibition.

Four months after "moving day" the complex building/ rebuilding project is beginning to take shape. The original stones have been reassembled into the massive base of the multiple fireplaces centering the house, with the four recessed niches looking as they did before. In fact, the foundation wall and the stone steps going outdoors look just like they did in the 18th century.

The one-room massive post and beam frame of the oldest portion — presumably the one-room house built by Alexander Sloan in 1732 — has been reassembled. One portion of the 18th century lath uncovered in the de-construction has been reassembled and will be left visible.

The striking framework of the barn is up and will remain visible on the interior when it is closed in. Recently, a 25-foot-tall (eight-inch diameter) maple tree from New Jersey was planted to replace a 150-year-old maple tree lost during excavation last fall.

This project offers striking (and frustrating) conflicts between the desire to re-create the 18th entury while running up against the requirements of 21st century building and fire-safety codes - some expected, some unexpected.

Fire codes required fire walls (14 inches thick) between the three historic buildings now joined together. Three code-compliant, fire-separated staircases, and 18 fire doors are required.

The state's new seismic code required more than four tons of steel to be used in the 30 by 40 foot post and beam barn; an interesting juxtaposition of huge pre-industrialization 19th century timbers with huge red steel industrial channel beams. But, in case of an earthquake, the Historical Society may be the safest building in town!

Handicap accessibility is also part of the project. Because of the existing grade change, there is now a four foot drop from the Betts house to the Raymond house, requiring a wheelchair lift. In addition, entry ramps and a handicap restroom will be provided.

Before the end of May it is hoped that backfilling will be done and scaffolding will be erected to rebuild the roof on the Raymond-Fitch house. Following that, interior restoration will begin.

The interior of the house built by Clapp Raymond more than 200 years ago did not fare as well as had been hoped during the move. In addition to the structural restoration that must be done, substantial cosmetic work will be required. Much of the original hair-plaster was dislodged from the lath, bowed and split. However, the original paneling and woodwork is in good shape.

After re-plastering, the walls will be whitewashed using the 18th century "recipe." The woodwork not restored in the 1980s will regain the original colors that were identified in a paint analysis done by SPNEA more than 10 years ago. The wallpaper in the Federal period dining room did not survive and will be replaced by a handmade paper reproduced by Adelphi Paper Hangings from a James & Bolles paper made in Hartford in the 1820s.

Wilton's Heritage Project

While work proceeds on building and rebuilding, long-planned furnishings plans will be implemented in the Betts-Sturgess-Blackmar house. A group of weavers are organizing a textile-making room that will illustrate both linen and wool production in the early home. It will have a full complement of equipment, including a large 18th century loom.

During the summer a Federal period parlor will be furnished primarily with objects from the Dana Blackmar collection. The floor will be covered with an ingrain carpet reproduced from an original fragment by a craftsman who participates in the Historical Society Craftsmanship Show. A period Sheraton sofa will be re covered with a horsehair fabric. Dimity curtains will be hand sewn by Society volunteers.

The original kitchen of the 1739 house will be sparsely and authentically furnished, including an 18th Century bed. Early hearth iron, pewter, treen, a work table, hutch table, an assortment of chairs, and a blanket chest will complete the room.

Originally, the project timeline forecast taking the collections out of storage in September and the Raymond-Fitch rooms being re-furnished during October. However, the project is probably running two months late now, so the completion date is delayed.

It is still anticipated that the annual Christmas exhibit will take place in the new gallery.

The Wilton Historical Society has recently initiated its first capital fundraising campaign in order to pay for this very ambitious project. The Society would welcome any contributions. Please call for a brochure that describes the project and its needs.

We invite those interested in knowing more about the exciting work going on here to stop for a visit when going through Wilton.

What makes the TORO TWISTER So Special?

Special Active In-Frame Suspension

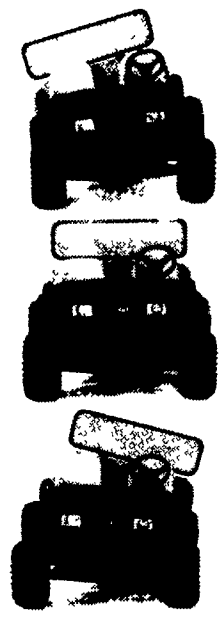
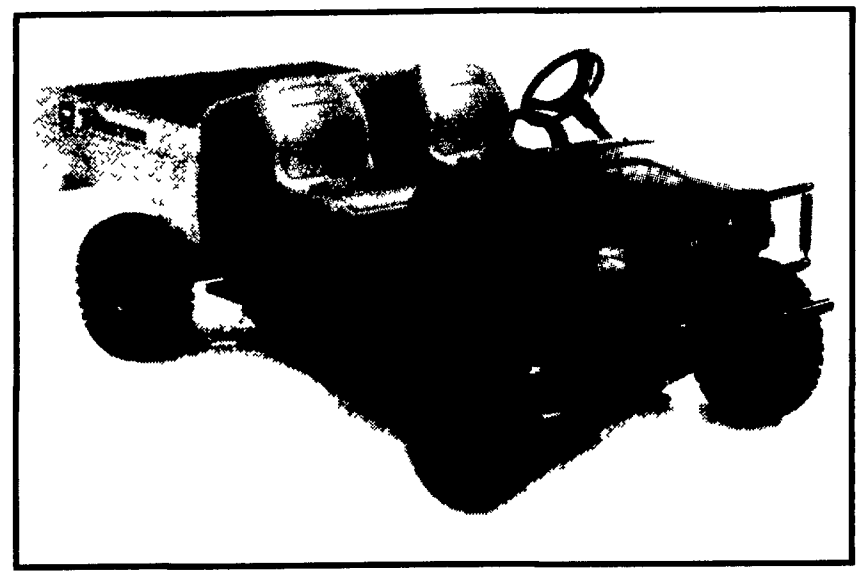
The Twister has a unique Active In-Frame Suspension that greatly improves traction and gives you a smooth ride, even over rough terrain.

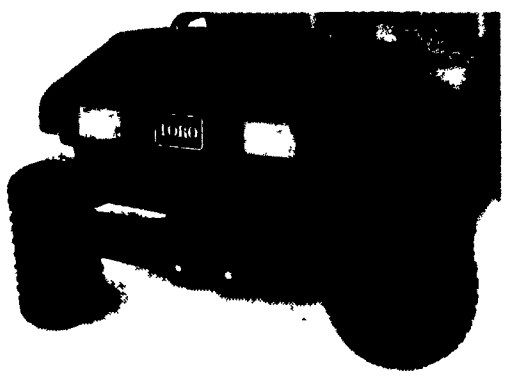
The Twister suspension provides better traction and a superior ride compared to the rigid-frame competition. Unlike a rigid-frame vehicle, the Torsional Pivot Joint (1) connects the front frame to the rear frame (2). It creates a flexible frame that keeps all four wheels in contact with the ground as it travels over rough terrain (3). This flexibility also gives the front cab a smoother ride.





A new all-purpose vehicle... with a twist

Special Tight Turning Radius



When you get into a narrow spot, a tight turning radius makes all the difference.

The Twister's 70 degree Sector and Pinion steering provides a very tight 9 foot turning radius, the best in its category.

Special Durable 14.75 cu. ft. Cargo Bed

- A tough, durable double-walled polyethylene cargo bed that's built to last.

It keeps its shape and stays dent and corrosion resistant, with no liner needed. A hefty 1000 lbs. Cargo bed capacity and a total load capacity of 1400 lbs. make Twister tops in its class. Quick release latches and a balanced load box design make dumping a breeze. Optional electric lift is available

Special Projects and Jobs are easier with over 20 options available for you

Electric Bed Lift - makes it easier to dump heavy loads

Electric Wench and Brush Guard Bumper

Stake Sides - to haul bigger loads and volume capacities

Operator Shield - to protect the riders from loads

Hitch Kit -for towing your boat or whatever you haul along.

And NOW, for a limited time, only on the Toro Twister...

Special 6.9% a.p.r. Financing*

MidAtlantic Farm Credit Hires Marketing Specialist In Maryland

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Sandy Wieber, senior vice president of marketing for MidAtlantic Farm Credit, has announced the hiring of Holly Richard as a marketing specialist. She will work in the association's Mid-Maryland region, which includes Baltimore, Carroll, Cecil, Frederick, Harford, Howard, Montgomery, and Washington counties.

Richard will assist with all aspects of advertising, tradeshow coordination, budget planning and various other marketing tasks in her new position. She will also be involved with the company's annual stockholders' meetings, internal newsletter, and promotional projects involving Farm Credit's Country Mortgages segment.

Richard comes to MidAtlantic from a non-profit organization that worked for a government agency where she worked as a member relations coordinator. She grew up on an eastern shore farm and graduated from Marymount University in Arlington, Va. She holds a Bachelor of Arts in Communications.

Holly Richard

Wieber states, "Holly's background in marketing, advertising and public relations will be an added asset to the marketing department of MidAtlantic. We are excited to have her join our team."

MidAtlantic Farm Credit is the largest ag lender on the east coast. It has 18 offices to serve its customers throughout the eastern shore of Maryland and Virginia, Delaware, eastern Pennsylvania and mid-Maryland.

Land Pride Introduces 6' Straw Crimper

SALINA, Kan. — Land Pride continues its strong position in the landscape and seeding market with the introduction of a six-foot Straw Crimper.

After distributing a layer of hay or straw over newly worked or seeded areas, the Land Pride Straw Crimper is then used to force straw into the ground in 6½-inch rows. The hairpinned straw holds a tight grip on the soil and keeps erosion to a minimum during high winds and water runoff.

The CR25 Series Crimper is made to handle rough roadside conditions with a heavy-duty tubular frame constructed of 2½"x2½"x3/16" material. The flat, notched discs are heat treated for durability, and feature a blunt tapered edge to hairpin the straw and not cut it. The disc hubs are greaseable, and formed from cast iron for years of dependability. Storage stands are located on all four corners for stability and ease of hook-up to the tractor. Water tanks are optional to safely and easily add up to 600 pounds of weight to the crimper.

New DMI nutri-till'r® 5310 Offers Numerous Improvements In Strip-till

RACINE, Wis. — Strip-till for corn and other row crops is one of the fastest growing trends in agriculture. "DMI has been the leader in Strip-till agronomic research and technology for more than 10 years and has recently introduced the new nutri-till'r 5310 Strip-till System available this fall," says Tim Nix, DMI marketing manager for Fertilizer Equipment.

The DMI nutri-till'r 5310 has a number of important new features designed to improve the quality of Strip-till results in several key areas:

1. Seed Bed Conditions: Because the Strip-till berm becomes the seed bed at planting time, soil management in the strip is critical. The exclusive DMI berm-condition'r™ baskets size clods and firm up the strips for a uniform seed bed and optimum planter performance. "Its unique concave-shaped bars help shape and pre-settle the strip, and notched side plates enhance performance which expands the operating window," says Nix. A special feature of the baskets is the ability to lock them into a raised position if required by field conditions.

2. Strip Height and Shape: The strip must contain all of the soil that is displaced by the Strip-till knife, or there will be a depression in the strip that may lead to erosion or poor planter performance. Says Nix, "Exclusive DMI berm build'r™ double discs are specially positioned to catch all of the soil from the Strip-till knife; they are mounted independent of the shank, so they stay in contact with the ground at all times."

3. Soil Tilth: Development of young, fast growing roots is dependent upon the proper amounts of water and air in the soil. "While other shanks and parallel linkage assemblies often float out and result in less than desirable performance, the DMI exclusive High Clearance Shank (HCS™) is the right tool for consistent row tillage in Strip-till," according to Nix. The HCS provides increased holding power of 1,150 pounds, yet has good trip clearance for rocks or buried objects.

4. Residue Management: Residue should not be mixed into the strip, but a proper amount of residue should be left on the strip to protect the loose soil from the effects of wind and rain. The heavy-duty 24-inch DMI coulter cuts residue to provide even flow around the shank, then the berm build'r discs and berm condition'r baskets distribute some of the residue on top of the strip.

DMI equipment is well-known for durability, and the nutri-till'r 5310 is no exception. The durable frame has diagonal bracing for added strength and has been proven over millions of acres on the DMI line of anhydrous ammonia applicators. A newly-designed row marker provides exceptional durability and features a spring-reset breakaway mechanism that protects the marker. Durable-type F1 (F) 12-ply tires provide longer life.

Numerous studies have demonstrated the advantages of Root Zone Banding fertilizer, especially in conjunction with Strip-till. The nutri-till'r 5310 is available with optional fertilizer kits for applying anhydrous ammonia, liquid, and/or granular fertilizers. An optional rear hitch, for use when applying fertilizer in a single pass, offers the convenience of constant height plus a wide hook-up pattern.

Bramble Production Guide Available

ITHACA, N.Y. — Bramble fruits-raspberries and blackberries-are highly nutritious and popular in such consumer products as yogurt, juice blends, jams, and wines.

However, bramble fruits are difficult to grow and quite perishable.

In response to rising interest in raspberries and blackberries as commercial crops, "Bramble Production Guide," NRAES-35 (published May 1998), a comprehensive 188-page loose-leaf guide, is available from the Natural Resource Agriculture, and Engineering Service (NRAES).

The guide contains more than 100 color photos showing bramble varieties, diseases, insects, and growing techniques. Fifteen chapters cover all aspects of bramble production from site selection through post-harvest handling. The guide includes a key to problem identification and diagnosis, a glossary, a list of supplementary materials, and an extensive list of references and is packaged with an attractive full-color cover in a three-ring binder.

"Bramble Production Guide" was planned and written by 17 specialists from seven states who have incorporated research findings with traditional knowledge about bramble culture. Marvin Pritts, professor of fruit and vegetable science at Cornell University, and David Handley, vegetable and small fruit specialist with University of Maine Cooperative Extension, edited the guide. The guide is intended for both potential and established growers and will also aid extension specialists in assisting those interested in bramble production.

Bramble Production Guide introduces the bramble plant and provides nutritional information which could ultimately be useful in marketing the fruit for fresh consumption. Planning chapters focus on site selection and preparation, plant selection, and planting establishment. Several more chapters provide detailed information on the principles and techniques for cane pruning and trellising, pest and weed control, and nutrient, water, and spray application management.

"Bramble Production Guide," NRAES-35, is available for $45 per copy (plus shipping and handling) from NRAES, Cooperative Extension, 152 Riley-Robb Hall, Ithaca, New York, 14853-5701. Quantity discounts are available. Shipping and handling for a single copy is $5.50 within the continental U.S.

For information about quantity discounts, or for a free publications catalog, contact NRAES at (607) 255-7654, by fax at (607) 254-8770, or by e-mail at nraes@cornell.edu. NRAES also maintains a Website at www.nraes.org.

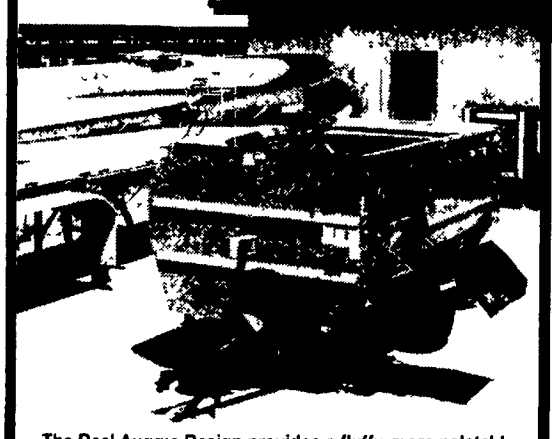
Reel Auggie = Results



The Reel Auggie Design provides a fluffy, more palatable ration that promotes feed consumption. When your cows consume more high quality feed, they'll produce more milk.
MORE MILK IN THE TANK, THAT'S THE BOTTOM LINE!
To see results, ask for a Reel demonstration from your local Knight dealer today.

Is pleased to announce the inclusion of...

KEENAN MIXERS

into our lineup of agricultural products.

WHY? Because we see the potential in this mixer to better control fiber intake in your cattle, which means:

MORE MILK – MORE BEEF BETTER HEALTH

HEALTHY Cows can Stay HEALTHY by Eating HEALTHY – But How?

Because when you use a Keenan Precision Cut Mixer Feeder your cow must eat her complete ration without sorting, which is very important in receiving the proper amount of fiber

TO STAY HEALTHY!

Keenan Mixers – Available in Stationery OR Trailer Little to Big!

KEENAN

3 R's in KEENAN Commitment to YOU!

Reliability: Nearly 50 years of research, testing and development – resulting in the KEENAN system as we know it today!

Ration: Structural fiber is sized to optimum length to assure major benefit to rumen/digestion process. Assistance in formulation of ration is offered by KEENAN, through sales professionals and certified nutritionists.

Results: Scores of satisfied KEENAN users attest to significant responses in herd health, milk production and "bottom-line" profitability, due in part or in total to the KEENAN system.

Your Source For Quality Grain Handling Equipment
A premium quality galvanized auger designed for low maintenance operation.

Mayrath introduces the all new "InLine Drive" series of portable grain augers Mayrath has combined operational efficiency with long term dependability providing you with a high quality, GALVANIZED auger at a very affordable price The revolutionary "InLine Drive" system minimizes the number of moving parts.. greatly reducing costly downtime and maintenance in the future.

Mayrath InLine Drive

DIAMETER	CAPACITY	LENGTHS
8"	3200 BPH	32', 42', 52', 62', 72'
10"	4500 BPH	32', 42', 52', 62', 72'

The InLine Drive
Unique in design, high in efficiency

The unique "InLine Drive" design features an internally mounted gearbox inside of an expanded, bell shaped tube housing. Auger flighting is positioned to allow a high volume of unrestricted grain flow around the internal gearbox. A new intake design utilizes double flighting and a cupped intake guard to offer a high capacity, complete cleanout operation A specially engineered hopper bolts directly to top of the intake guard, further enhancing the augers capacity

MORE THAN JUST A GRAVITY BOX:

Gravity Box Innovative Design:

- Capacities range from 400 to 190 bushels to match individual needs
- Unloading is fast and complete with steep-sloped sides and graphite-coated interior
- A low center of gravity and balanced weight distribution pro vide stable towing
- Rounded box corners protect optional tarp against punctures or tears
- A front ladder is standard for easy viewing of box contents a rear-mounted, five-rung ladder is optional

Gravity Box Quality Manufacturing:

- Rugged MIG continuous-bead welding and a one-piece door-side panel enhance sidewall strength and durability
- A full primer undercoat and durable high-quality equipment enamel topcoat help prevent corrosion
- The rack-and-pinion mechanism permits easy unloading-door opening, even with a full load of high-moisture grain

Gravity Box Options:

A tarp kit,complete with bows and straps, allows the gravity box to be used for temporary storage

- 16-, 14- and 12-foot unloading augers with a choice of steel or heavy-duty plastic outer tube and brush-tip, steel or plastic flighting
- An amber and red flashing tail light package will enhance transport safety
- A five-rung ladder for viewing of box interior can be mounted to the rear of the wagon

DON'T LOSE YOUR COOL OVER YOUR TRACTOR'S AIR-CONDITIONING SYSTEM

JOHN DEERE

Let us help.

If your tractor is still operating with the old R-12 system, let us modify it to the R-134a standards. Complete replacement of the compressor, receiver-drier, hoses, service fittings, O-rings, lines and expansion valves with R-134a parts will bring your tractor's air-conditioning system back to its original performance level.
Stop in today for air-conditioner repairs on your tractor, combine, or other equipment.

UNMATCHED PARTS EXPERTISE

Knowledge is power! Deer Creek's parts personnel have the expertise to answer your questions and provide you with solutions.
JD Cross-Search® provides access to over 800,000 non-John Deere applications, utilizing Genuine John Deere parts and Parts Country – parts for all makes. Let us be your agricultural solution center.

Cut faster... condition better

For greater maneuverability and higher efficiency, nothing beats the Model 1431 Discbine® disc mower-conditioner from New Holland. It features a 13' cutting width, and operates at high ground speeds in wet, heavy grass without plugging. Fire anthills and gopher mounds won't stop the new Model 1431 either. Outstanding features include:

- A center pivot-tongue design
- Independent modular cutterbar with ten small-diameter cutting discs
- 102" wide conditioning rolls
- A full range of vertical and lateral flotation
- A torsion-bar, roll-pressure system
- A cutterbar driven from both ends

NEW HOLLAND

For maximum harvesting efficiency, check out the Model 1431 Discbine. It's the best in the field.

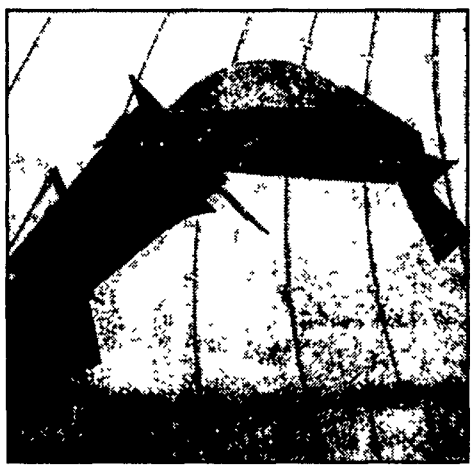
Silage Spreaders with a Heritage of Quality

Lancaster Level-Flo has been the leader in non-motorized silage spreaders for more than 25 years. Each spreader is specifically designed to meet the needs of the individual operator.



Choose the spreader that best matches the equipment you use to fill your silo.

The Model 1030 Multi-Flo® is our standard silage spreader With a 9" gooseneck, it is designed for average capacity blowers and silo sizes

The Model 1200 Multi-Flo® has a 12" wide gooseneck Its larger size all but eliminates plugging problems, even when you blow in haylage It is especially helpful in larger silos

The BlueMax® is built for those who push high-capacity silo filling equipment to the limit All parts of the BlueMax® subject to wear are made 25% heavier - and the stainless steel plate is twice as heavy For strength, there are reinforcements all around Even our well-known non-binding hinge is heavier

For more information or the location of the Lancaster dealer nearest you, call today 1-800-635-8708.

WARNING, ALL SILO OWNERS

Check your silo now for rotten staves. If you have been using your silo for 10 to 15 years for either cor silage or haylage, it is time to SHOTCRETE

RESURFACES INTERIORS:
- Coats the silo's interior
- Protects feed in storage
- Durable, tough, acid-resistant
- Increase useful life
- Economical

Before The silo's interior with plaster damage and stave exposed

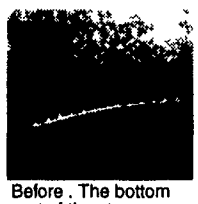
After The surface is reconditioned, and a new, thick, tough surface will protect stored feed

REPAIRS HOLES:
- Repairs even large holes
- Up to twice the strength of the original stave
- Rapid application
- Durable surface

Before A hole is worn completely through the silo wall

After With the hole repaired by ShotCrete and a new surface applied, the silo is ready for years of use

EXTENDS USEFUL LIFE:
- Support for old foundations
- Special repairs can be made... quickly and economically
- Little or no forming needed
- Stronger than the original



Before . The bottom part of the staves are completely worn away

After The ShotCrete System repairs and replaces the missing structure

WHAT MAKES THE Lon Agri-Plastics CALF NURSERY BETTER?

- Roomiest interior of any single-calf hutch on the market (overall dimensions: 62"W x 98"L x 55" H):
  - More distance between calf and walls...helps maintain the critical "comfort zone" (50-55°F) immediately surrounding calf
  - Better protection from wind, rain and snow...rear of hutch stays warmer on cold days
- Heaviest, single-calf hutch you can buy (approx. 138 lbs.):
- Longer, 10-year Manufacturer's Limited Warranty
- More "Standard" features... including right or left hand feed doors, inside manger with built-in double pail holder, two 6.5 qt. pails, two built-in bottle holders, top vent and rear vent

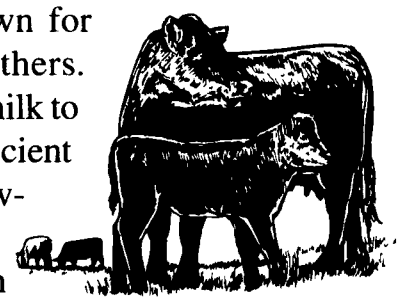
BEEF TIPS
Why and how to add Simmental genetics to your herd (Part 3)


1. Simmentals are known for adding milk to the mothers. Use Simmentals to add milk to a herd of cows that is deficient and produces slow growing calves.
2. Simmentals are known for being fast growing and have held the record for growth at the Penn State Bull Test for over a decade.
3. Simmentals are known for being calm. If your herd is skittish and nervous, growth can be affected as well as fertility. Keep your cows calm and add Simmental genetics.
4. Call the phone numbers listed below for a FREE sales catalogue and list of ALL breeders near you and in your state.

Attention: Swine and Poultry Producers

Announcing:

Crude Soy Oil Now Available

With the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer soybean oil as an animal nutrition product. Processing the soybeans ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!

Crude Soybean Oil

A product of Keystone's expelling process, this oil can be used in a wide variety of on farm applications. Crude soy oil is a natural alternative to animal fats and provides needed energy in various rations.

Uses of Crude Soy Oil Include:

- Use as a high energy feed ingredient in swine and poultry diets.
- Especially useful in sow lactation diets, pig starter and grow/finish diets.
- Used as an added energy source in broiler, turkey and layer feeds.
- Can be used for dust control purposes.
- Can be used as a lubricant for feeding systems.

Advantages of Crude Soy Oil:

- Use as a direct replacement for animal fat.
- Vegetable based product.
- Holding tank does not need to be heated if temperature is above 30 degrees, which reduces storage and handling costs compared to animal fat.
- Bulk delivery, partial loads available direct to farm by Keystone Mills.
- Customer may pick up to save delivery costs.

Other Soy Products Available:

- Keystone offers Golden Pro 46 XP which is 46% protein - 6-7% oil, Golden Meal 40 which is 40% crude protein with 18% oil.

Keystone Mills Soybean Exchange Program

- We will take your soybeans in trade for Golden ProXP 46, Golden Meal 40.
- Contact Keystone Mills for details on our soybean exchange program featuring these quality nutritional products.

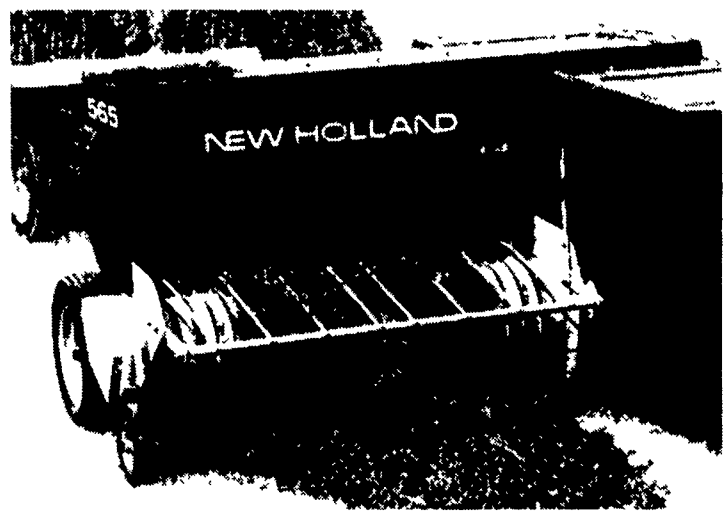
SQUARE, ROUND, WRAP

Designed and Built to Meet Your Needs & Quality



High capacity–High quality

The 565 New Holland square baler is designed and built to meet your capacity and quality requirements season after season.

- Wide Super-Sweep™ pickup gets all the hay
- Big feed opening... swallows big windrows
- Strong feeding system... Flow Action® feeder for long life
- Strong materials... in bale case and plunger
- Gear-driven twine system

The New Holland 565 consistently gives you tight, 14 x 8-inch bales. But don't take our word for it. Stop in today for a demonstration.

Small baler. Big features.

Our Model 638 Roll-Belt™ round baler is the smallest in the line, but it has the same features and functions as New Holland's larger balers. You can count on dense, uniform 4-ft.-by-4-ft. bales every time.

- Roll-Belt design makes uniform bales weighing up to 750 lbs.
- Requires a minimum 40-PTO-hp tractor

Put quality silage under wraps

New Holland round bale wrappers are the low-cost alternative to traditional silage storage—they seal your silage bales in "mini silos." You can harvest silage during peak feed quality, store it with greater flexibility, and feed it more efficiently with less waste.

Two models offer a side-mounted lifting arm, three-belt turntable, two large side-support rollers, and cable controls. The B37P is available with computer controls.
